COAL STRIKE MAKES 2,000,000 MEN IDLE

While English Miners Talk Peace Thousands of Germans Quit Work.

24-HOUR STRIKE IN FRANCE

Ocean Liners Withdrawn Because of Shortage of Coal—Foreign Ships at Norfolk Seeking Cargoes.

LONDON, March 11.—The National Miners' Federation unanimously decided to-night to accept the Prime Minister's invitation to meet the coal owners and the representatives of the Government at a round table conference, at which Premier Asquith will preside. The acceptance was coupled with the reservation that the principle of a minimum wage will be excluded from the discussion.

It is understood that this means that the granting of a minimum wage will be assumed to have been conceded, but it does not imply that the schedule of minimum wage rates drawn up by the Miners' Federation will not be discussed.

The coal owners have not yet accepted the Premier's invitation. They will meet to-morrow morning to decide this question. Even if the Welsh and Scotch owners stand aloof it is taken for granted that the English owners will accept. The conference will be held to-morrow afternoon, but the miners' representatives are not authorized to agree to any reduction of the federation's schedule of rates, or to any scheme determining the rates without a new ballot of the miners.

Therefore a settlement of the strike at the joint conference can be attained only if the owners agree to accept the miners' schedule, which is very improbable.

Another Week of Suffering.

The most hoped for from the conference is that some basis of agreement will be reached for the fixing of a minimum rate, which will be submitted to a ballot of the miners. That the strike will continue for at least another week is now regarded by the most optimistic as inevitable.

It has practically been determined that the coal strike must be ended by agreement, or immediate legislation will be invoked to bring about compulsory peace. A time limit for the negotiations is demanded on all sides, and Thursday is expected to see Parliamentary action unless the extremists on both sides relax in the meantime sufficiently to enable a settlement by consent.

At present almost the entire nation is under notice to quit work. Should the strike be prolonged throughout next week perhaps half of Great Britain's workers will be unemployed. The distress is widespread now, and the drain on funds is so great that some of the unions are already showing distress signals.

The courts are refusing to grant judgments and summonses on the ground that the common necessaries of life are beyond the reach of many of the poor.

2,000,000 Workers Out.

Besides the miners, another million workers, men and women employed in factories and mills in all parts of Great Britain, have been thrown out of employment owing to the impossibility of obtaining fuel to run the machinery, making a total of 2,000,000 out of work.

Railroads have restricted their train services, river steamers have ceased running, the gas and electric supply works have been compelled to restrict their delivery of illuminants, the mail services have been retarded, and many ocean steamers have had to be laid up in harbor.

As a final measure a minimum wage bill for miners will have to be introduced in the House of Commons. Many of the mine owners have expressed their sympathy with the principle of a fixed minimum wage, but others decline even to consider the idea.

Coal Advances 100 Per Cent.

For the rapidly dwindling stocks of coal on hand in North Wales an advance in price of from 75 to 100 per cent. has been demanded to-day, and this fact has necessitated the closing of practically every factory and quarry in that part of the country. In other portions of the United Kingdom conditions are almost as bad.

The shipments of coal from the ports of South Wales last week amounted to only 30,000 tons, compared with the usual total of 400,000 tons per week.

Two of the largest paper mills in the Midland Counties ceased working to-day, and all their employes were discharged. From every other point throughout the country reports are reaching London that work is being stopped.

The pressure of traffic on the street cars and omnibuses in London as a result of the restriction of the suburban train service has become so great that the authorities have given permission to people to stand up in the vehicles, the rule against which is in normal times rigidly enforced, infraction of it being severely punished.

Sir Arthur Markham, the great coal owner, addressing a miners' meeting at Nottingham to-night, advocated the adoption of a wage. He declared that no undue burden would be placed upon the coal industry or consumer if a minimum of 8 shillings ($2) daily were paid every collier. He added that the coal owners had raised ridiculous arguments against the minimum scale.

GERMAN STRIKE SOCIALISTIC.

Rivalry Between Unions Causes 50 Per Cent. to Remain at Work.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

BERLIN, March 11.—The strike in the Rhenish and Westphalian coalfields began to-day as expected. The number of strikers is as yet unknown, but 100,000 probably would be a liberal estimate. The number is increasing hourly, but so far has quite failed to reach the proportions prophesied. The affected districts are thronged with special police, armed with carbines and pistols. They include many constables from Berlin.

The first disorder reported is from Essen. In a collision between the police and 400 strikers seven persons received serious wounds. Many strikers were arrested. One man, who refused to strike, lost both eyes in a fight with strikers.

The strike leader in the Reichstag, Deputy Sachse, and ex-Deputy Hue hope the struggle will be carried on peaceably, and have exhorted the men

ISELIN FAVORS LYNCHING.

Defends Frederick O. Beach, Target of Gossip in Aiken, S. C.

Special to The New York Times.

AIKEN, S. C., March 11.—C. Oliver Iselin of New York, who has a Winter home here, addressed a letter to Mayor Gyles of Aiken, declaring that he would take pleasure in participating in the lynching of the person or persons responsible for the gossip which has been current since Mrs. Frederick O. Beach of New York was attacked two weeks ago to-night.

It has been broadly hinted in these reports that a member of the family made the attack, and that he and his friends had conspired to hide his guilt by charging a negro with the crime.

Mr. Iselin's statement offered an additional reward in the name of the City Council for the apprehension of the guilty person, provided the evidence of conviction should show that the assault was made with criminal intent.

"I sincerely trust these rewards and those which will be offered by others may bring about the results we all hope for," says Mr. Iselin's letter to the Mayor, "and will also help to run to earth the scandalmongers whose foul tongues have maliciously attacked the good name of one who already, by the most undoubted testimony, has been proved to be above slightest suspicion.

"I consider myself a law-abiding citizen, but it would give me much pleasure to participate in the lynching of the person or persons who are responsible for such slanderous accusations."

Friends of Mr. Beach have been active in denouncing the story that has been going the rounds and which received fresh stimulus when a society journal of New York reached the city yesterday. Mr. Beach has retained two lawyers of Aiken, but the detective he has had here for several days left the city to-night after telling the Mayor he had been unable to clear up the case.

Mayor Gyles to-day took the investigation in hand personally. He announced that he intends to go to the bottom of the case for the good of the town, and if possible place the blame on the guilty man, no matter who he may be.

The police say that it would be impossible to win any part of the reward offered by Mr. Iselin because of the provisions of the offer.

THREATENED BANKER BELL.

Mrs. H. C. Gage Arrested—Said He Kept Her Out of Washington Society.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 11.—Through the instrumentality of Charles J. Bell, a banker, and a cousin of Alexander Graham Bell, the inventor, Mrs. Harley Calvin Gage, 57 years old, who has a home in Dupont Circle, one of the best residential districts of Washington, was sent to the Covenant Hospital for the Insane to-day. Mrs. Gage is said to have threatened repeatedly that she would kill Mr. Bell because he had been the means of keeping herself and her daughter Margaret out of social circles.

Mrs. Gage and her daughter came here from New Jersey about eight years ago and established themselves in their present home. The daughter was placed in a seminary here, and Mrs. Gage endeavored to break down the portals of society. She seemed not to have enough money to meet the demands of society, but presently she mailed, together with her cards, a little booklet containing a family tree, which purported to show that her family and that of her husband traced back to Charlemagne and to several Spanish Kings.

Mrs. and Miss Gage were always seen at White House affairs and other semi-public functions but they were not admitted to society, and presently, it is said, Mrs. Gage began to make threats against Mr. Bell. No longer than a few weeks ago Mrs. Gage held a consultation with the Superintendent of Police concerning the difficulties which she said she had with Mr. Bell, and she was advised at that time to cease making threats against the banker. She persisted, however, it is charged, and recently Mrs. Bell insisted that her husband take steps to protect himself.

Mrs. Gage was taken into custody to-day and was held in $1,000 bail on the charge of having made "threats to kill." She will be kept in the asylum for thirty days and if at the end of that period she be adjudged insane by a Marshall's Jury she will be returned to the institution. If it be decided that she is sane, she will be tried on the charge of having made "threats to kill" Mr. Bell.

Miss Gage sent a telegram to-night to her uncle, Wilbur A. Mott of Newark, N. J., asking him to come at once or to send assistance.

Mr. Bell is a neighbor of Mrs. Gage's, but he declared that he had no idea why she picked him out as the one responsible for the failure of her assault on society.

WOMAN HELD AS A BURGLAR.

Says She Took Money and Jewels for an Unsettled Debt.

Mrs. Marie Fueler, of 102 East Tenth Street, was locked up in the East Fifth Street Police Station last night on a charge of burglary on complaint of Mrs. Frieda McCarthy, of the same address. Mrs. Fueler informed Detective McGrath, who arrested her on the street a short distance from the Tenth street house, that she had intended to sail for Germany on the steamship Crown Prince Wilhelm to-day.

Mrs. McCarthy told the police that the prisoner boarded with her until a few days ago, and that yesterday afternoon while she was absent from her apartments, Mrs. Fueler had entered by means of a key and had taken $60 in money, a gold watch and chain, and five rings valued at $130, from her trunk.

The prisoner, according to the police admitted having taken the money and jewelry, but insisted that the complainant owed her a large sum of money which she had refused to pay, and that she had merely taken the valuables and money as part payment of the debt. She was angry at her arrest and protested that her trunks were on board the steamship, and that she would be left in New York without her wardrobe.

FIGHT PITNEY CONFIRMATION.

Senate Debates on the New Jersey Chancellor's Elevation.

WASHINGTON, March 11.—The nomination of Mahlon W. Pitney, Chancellor of New Jersey, to be an Associate Justice of the Supreme Court, succeeding the late John M. Harlan, was fought an hour and a half in the executive session of the Senate to-day, and action finally was deferred until to-morrow afternoon.

Senator Reed attacked Chancellor Pitney's decision in the glass bottle blowers' case, in which the Chancellor wrote a majority opinion sustaining a restraining order which prohibited strikers from picketing.

Senator Borah defended Mr. Pitney and analyzed the decision on which the opposition was based. Senator Culberson and others joined in the opposition. Senators Clark of Arkansas, O'Gorman of New York, and Watson of West Virginia announced that they wanted an opportunity to discuss the case, and the nomination went over.

SHE DEFENDS LONDON WINDOW SMASHING

It Is Like Our Boston Tea Party, Elizabeth Freeman Tells Big Suffrage Meeting.

WAR ON SYSTEM, NOT ON MEN

Senator La Follette's Daughter Helps to Answer Twenty-five Objections to Giving Ballot to Women.

The biggest crowd that ever was jammed into the Metropolitan Temple, at Fourteenth street and Seventh avenue, went there last night to hear twenty-five objecions to woman's suffrage knocked into a cocked hat. The meeting was billed as "something new in a suffrage programme." It had been well advertised and a crowd of which not more than one-half was able to squeeze into the Temple was the result. Those compelled to remain out in Seventh avenue begged and pleaded for admission, but the police refused to permit any more to enter. The crowd outside continued to linger, however, so those who spoke to the meeting entered into an agreement to repeat their remarks at an overflow gathering.

Inside the temple the auditors, more than four-fifths of whom were women, were packed into the pews like sardines. The aisles were filled with standees. In the gallery the crush was so great that the people were backed up against the walls and stood three abreast in the aisles. The police evidently had not expected the crush, and only one policeman was on duty inside the temple to enforce the regulations regarding the crowding of public places. As the crowd grew larger he was forced to call for help, and reinforcements were sent to him from the Charles Street Station.

The meeting was presided over by Mrs. Marie Jenney Howe, who ued a big blackthorn gavel to maintain order. Beside her sat a young woman with a bell that made a sound like a cow bell, and whenever any of the speakers reached the five-minute limit this young person rang the cow bell until the speaker sat down, and it made no difference whether the speaker was in the middle of a sentence or not.

The speakers included Miss Fola La Follette, the actress daughter of the Progressive Senator from Wisconsin; Miss Inez Milholland, Charlotte Perkins Gilman, Miss Elizabeth Freeman of England, Miss Sadie American, Mrs. Harriet B. Laidlaw, Miss Beatrice Forbes-Robertson, Dr. Howard Woolston, Miss Maude Minor, Frederic C. Howe, Hutchins Hapgood, George Middleton, who is the husband of Miss La Follette; Mrs. Inez Haynes Gilmore, and George H. Gilman.

Could Have Kidnapped Asquith.

Miss Freeman of England created the most enthusiasm. She was down to answer the question of whether or not "Militancy Hurts the Cause," and she answered it in no uncertain terms. She paid her respects to Premier Asquith, Chancellor Lloyd-George, Winston Churchill, and the London police, the constabulary being referred to as the "employes of the British Government who maimed and beat women at the behest of that Government."

"Militancy hurts the cause. Does it?" exclaimed Miss Freeman, who does not weigh more than 100 pounds. "No, I don't think it does. You have only to read the history of the United States to get the answer to this question. You read in the newspapers of the destruction of property in London. In Boston they destroyed the tea. In London we broke the windows. In both cases it was the merchant who suffered, and the suffering was for a great cause. Do you ever stop to think of London, of the women who are beaten and maimed; of those who have died, some from cancer, as a result of the brutality of the employes of the British Government, the London police?

"They have asked us why we do not work to depose Asquith, Lloyd-George, and Winston Churchill. That is not the issue. The issue is the system. If we did away with Asquith and Lloyd-George and Churchill the system would go on just the same. We are out, not to rid England of a few men, but to rid her of a system, and we expect to do it."

When she had finished her speech, reporters asked Miss Freeman what she meant when she said the English suffragettes had been asked to depose the Premier and other Government officials she had named in her speech.

"They advised us to do away with them," she answered, "but we said 'No,' for we are not fighting Asquith and the others, but the system that they represent. Do you know, I was one of a number that was so close to Asquith that we could have kidnapped him had we wanted to."

Frederic C. Howe had to answer the objection that "women don't understand politics."

"They don't," said Mr. Howe. "How could they, for they have never had a chance. Most men can't cook, either, for the very sufficient reason that they have never had a chance to learn how to do it. Politics is a domestic matter and should be treated accordingly."

Hutchins Hapgood was called upon to handle the objection that the granting of the franchise to women "would make woman less attractive."

"The woman who wants to vote," said Mr. Hapgood, "is far more interesting than the vote. Granting the franchise to woman will make her more interesting to man and to the universe. Some suffragettes are awkward, and they are awkward for the same reason that a man is when he is hopelessly in love for the first time. A man in that fix is very awkward, but at the same time he is very interesting. But, as woman will when she is given the vote, he soon masters the situation. A woman in the unfamiliar field of the franchise may at first be awkward, but she will gain richer and deeper charms. Suffragism means that woman wants a larger home. The woman who knows many men well is much more interesting than she who knows only one man well."

Who'll Provide for These Women?

"Woman's place is in the home" was the objection assigned to Miss Inez Milholland.

"If her place is in the home," Miss Milholland said, "why is it that 9,000,000 women are now out of the home and at work in the mills, factories and workshops of the land? Why is the number increasing daily, and why is it that one-fifth of all the women of the world are out of their homes and earning their living in the gainful occupations? What are you going to do about these women if this objection is right? Are you going to pension them so they can stay at home, or are you going to let them starve? If you put all of these women back into the home you must provide for them. Are you going to do it? Women are among the working class to stay, because they must live and—"

The cow-bell chimed out before Miss Milholland had a chance to finish the sentence.

"I haven't begun to talk on this subject yet," she said as she retreated to her seat.

SPAIN LOOKING HERE FOR RAILROAD MONEY

National City Bank Said to be Ready to Finance Government Project on Favorable Report.

JOHN F. STEVENS OVER THERE

It Is Supposed the Purpose of His Visit Is to Determine the Value of the Prospect.

Negotiations which have been carried on between the Government of Spain and the National City Bank of this city may lead to the investment of a large amount of American money in a proposed new railroad to be constructed by the Spanish Government. John F. Stevens, former Chief Engineer of the Panama Canal, sailed for Spain last Thursday to look over the ground. He will return to this country with his report about the middle of next month. Roger L. Farnham, an officer in several foreign companies in which interests identified with the National City Bank have invested money, recently returned from Spain, where it is believed he went in behalf of the bank. Mr. Farnham is now in Washington.

Most of Spain's monetary needs have been provided for by French bankers in recent years, and the financing of her new railroad in this country would be an unusual departure. Leading institutions in France have been indisposed to enter upon new commitments lately, preferreing to husband their resources for domestic demands. It is understood that if the National City Bank supplies the funds for Spain's proposed railway, a large part of the bonds will be offered in Paris, but the condition of the money markets at the time will be the deciding factor in the placing of the loan.

Spain is badly in need of additional railway facilities, and for the difficult work of tunneling the Pyrenees is said to favor the adoption of American engineering methods. It is not known how much money will be required to carry the new line to completion, an unofficial estimate putting it as high as $60,000,000. Negotiations for a sale of railway bonds, guaranteed by the Government, were begun with the National City Bank interests some months ago.

It is understood that in the event of a favorable report being received from Mr. Stevens the money will be advanced as needed. The City Bank has not invited other bankers to join a syndicate to handle the loan, and if a large share of it is placed abroad it is not likely that any other houses will be associated with the bank.

The growing accumulation of money in financial centres of this country, partly due to a checking in new industrial and railroad enterprises since 1907 and a lessening in the demand for commercial funds, has made it necessary for American bankers to seek a wider field for investment. At the outbreak of the war between Italy and Turkey a group of American financiers offered to advance Italy any money she might need, and considerable sums have been put at the disposal of Berlin and Paris banks.

John F. Stevens, who made a physical valuation of the New Haven system while a vice-president of that company, has been regarded as James J. Hill's right hand man in Oregon since leaving Mr. Mellen. He recently resigned as president of the Spokane, Portland & Seattle to organize the John F. Stevens Construction Co. This company has just opened offices in the National City Bank building for the purpose of financing and constructing railroads and similar enterprises, and the Spanish contract, if awarded to Mr. Stevens, will be the company's first undertaking. It is said that Spain is anxious for the introduction of American railway methods, which the government officials regard as the best in the world. An officer of the Stevens Company denied yesterday that the president had gone to Spain for the specific purpose of obtaining data on which to base an estimate for the construction of the new line.

REVIEW DYNAMITE DEFENSE.

Accused Men, on Eve of Arraignment, Hold Secret Consultation.

Special to The New York Times.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., March 11.—A long conference between at least forty of the men indicted in the so-called dynamite conspiracy, which comes up in Federal court to-morrow, was held at the Hotel English this afternoon, at which the general situation and the charges against the accused were discussed. The meeting was held behind locked doors and surrounded with the greatest secrecy.

It is known that in the camp of the defense there is a question that some members of the Iron Workers' Union have been furnishing the Government with information. A story which has reached some of the defendants is that a former member of the union, who had been affiliated with the local in Cleveland, or with one not far from that city, had been giving the Government information.

From other sources it is understood that when the cases come to trial the defense probably will encounter a more surprising "attack from the rear" than the one referred to. It is said that in addition to McManigal, there have been at least three other informers within the union. One of these is said to have betrayed McManigal and J. B. McNamara, and led to their arrest in Detroit. McManigal, according to this information, finding himself the victim of a "squealer," retaliated by trying to "turn up the whole bunch."

KILLED BY DYING WIFE.

Shot Husband, and Then, Desperate, Ends Her Own Fast Ebbing Life.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, March 11.—So great was Mrs. Catherine Bucholzer's love for her husband that she could not bear the thought of being separated from him by death. This morning she crawled from her sick bed, shot and killed him, and then cut her own throat.

Mrs. Bucholzer, who was 24 years of age, previously had threatened to kill herself, knowing that the disease with which she was afflicted was fatal. Bucholzer, who was 28 years old, was seated at a table in the kitchen just after breakfast when he was shot.

DR. WILEY TO RESIGN TO BECOME EDITOR

Pure Food Champion Finds It Impossible Not to Heed Call of Larger Income.

WILL BE A LECTURER, TOO

Hopes to Name His Successor, and Is Understood to Favor Dr. Barnard of Indiana.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 11.—Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, Chief of the Bureau of Chemistry in the Department of Agriculture, has decided to resign his office and accept a business offer which has been under consideration for several weeks.

It is known that there have been conferences between Dr. Wiley and Secretary Wilson in which the subject of Dr. Wiley's resignation has been discussed, although to-night, when the Secretary was asked if he could confirm the statement he replied:

"To whom has Dr. Wiley tendered his resignation? Not to me, surely. He hasn't told me of it yet." A moment later the Secretary added:

"That story isn't ripe enough to pick yet."

When his interrogater replied that the Secretary said the same thing last Summer when asked to confirm the report that Dr. Rusby, the pharmacologist, and Dr. Wiley had been recommended for dismissal, Secretary Wilson replied:

"Oh, well, you picked that story before it was ripe, too."

The inducement which is said to have led to Dr. Wilty's determination to leave the Government service is the offer of a large salary to become editor of "Good Housekeeping," to which is added the equivalent of another large salary from his engagement on the lecture platform, where his is to-day one of the most popular names that can be offered the public from one end of the country to the other.

Owing to the exceptionally large income thus brought within his grasp, Dr. Wiley finds it practically unavoidable not to comply. He has given nearly thirty years of the best of his life to the public service and he has accomplished for the American people a work monumentally great in its purpose, scope, and completeness. And throughout it all, in the face of most stubborn opposition at times and with great odds against him, he has pursued steadily and patriotically the one course he laid out to take.

It is understood that Dr. Wiley will not give up his work immediately as he is desirous of the appointment of a successor who will carry forward his life work along the same lines of protection to the public. He has indicated his preferences to Secretary Wilson, but thus far has had no assurances that his recommendations will be accepted. The appointment is, to a great extent, in the power of the Secretary of Agriculture, although it is a presidential one.

Dr. Wiley's choice is Dr. Barnard, State Chemist of Indiana, one of the foremost advocates of pure food in the country. Dr. Barnard, it will be remembered, was for years in the storm centre when the concerns who desired to defy the Indiana law brought suit against the State authorities to prevent the exclusion of their goods manufactured in violation of the pure food regulations of the State Pure Food Board.

This was the case where the Remsen Board was permitted to be called out to Indiana to testify in favor of the adulterators and against the State authorities. Dr. Wiley was then prevented from giving his testimony, and Dr aBrnard was compelled to come to Washington, only to be prevented from getting Dr. Wiley's deposition in the usual manner. He had to go into the District Court and sue out a writ of mandamus before he could finally get Dr. Wiley's important evidence in the case.

Dr. Barnard has the confidence of Dr. Wiley and is a man of administrative force and the scientific fibre that would make him a worthy successor of the leader. He is also a pioneer in pure food legislation. He is a graduate of Harvard, has been identified with State food and drug inspection and administration since 1901. He has served on numerous important boards and is connected with many scientific societies.

Dr. Wiley is now in his sixty-eighth year. He enjoys perfect health, and delights in outdoor life. He has a large farm in Loudoun County, Va., where he spends his spare time and works when he feels like it, with a will and knack that shows that he knows how to farm and likes it. He has said that he ought before long to be able to retire and live on his farm relieved from the responsibilities and burdens of official life, and it is believed that this is one of the objects he has in mind in his decision to resign and undertake to earn the larger income that is now possible to him. His salary from the Government of $4,500 was augmented $500 above the average compensation of a bureau chief because of the confidence of Congress in his ability and integrity.

The completion by Secretary Wilson of sixteen years as Secretary of Agriculture, a longer period of service in the Cabinet than any man has ever before accomplished in the entire history of the Government, has given accent of late to the frequently recurring expectation that he would tender his resignation within a few weeks.

There is thus far no sign of such an intention on the part of the venerable Secretary, who goes back and forth to his daily duties with all the accustomed vigor and earnestness that have characterized him for the last four Administrations. The expected resignation of Dr. Wiley has suggested again that the Secretary would lay down the burden of his office about the same time. Probably this, however, is only a conjecture, as have been many other predictions of his resignation.

PURE SILENCE FROM WILEY.

"Nothing to Say," Says Doctor Over Long-Distance 'Phone.

THE NEW YORK TIMES called Dr. Wiley on the long-distance telephone at the State Hotel, Harrisburg, Penn., where he attended a dinner last night. The following conversation was held:

"Dr. Wiley, THE TIMES understands that you are about to resign your post with the Government to take over the editorial chair of a magazine. Will you tell us whether that is correct or not?"

"I don't know anything about it to-night. That is the same story that has been going around for three months."

"Well, will you confirm or deny it, doctor?"

"I don't know anything about it."

"Will you give us a direct confirmation or denial that you intend resigning to accept this or some other such post?"

"I can have nothing to say about that. It is the same old story."

DEMOCRATS WIN IN MAINE.

Again Carry 11 of 15 Cities, but with Reduced Majorities.

Special to The New York Times.

AUGUSTA, Me., March 11.—Elections were held in fifteen cities in Maine to-day and the result was the same as last year—the Democrats carried eleven, the Republicans four. The returns, however, show a total Democratic loss of 2,000 votes.

These are the cities where the elections were held: Biddeford, Saco, South Portland, Auburn, Lewiston, Hallowell, Augusta, Waterville, Rockland, Bath, Bangor, Eastport, Brewer, Belfast, and Ellsworth.

Interest centred in the Augusta election. Mayor Reuel J. Noyes, Democrat, was re-elected by 1,328 to 1,250 for Frank G. Farrington, Republican. The Democratic majority of 69 is 54 less than that of last year, when the same candidates ran. The Democrats elected five of the eight Aldermen, a loss of one. The municipal campaign was fought on State political lines, local issues being ignored.

Charles W. Mullen, Democrat, was elected in Bangor; Edgar F. Hanson, Democrat, to Belfast; Albert C. Marcille, Democrat, in Biddeford, and Victor H. Mutty, Republican, in Brewer.

RECORDS STORMS' APPROACH

Wireless Apparatus Registers Them 24 Hours Before They Arrive.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, March 11.—A paper read before the Academy of Sciences to-day disclosed the fact that M. Flagolet of Lyons has invented a special wireless recorder of great sensitiveness able to register the approach of storms 300 miles distant.

M. Flagolet asserts that with the apparatus storms can be detected twenty-four hours before their arrival.

MISS TAFT A GUIDE.

Leads Visitors Around Industrial Exhibition in Washington.

WASHINGTON, March 11.—Miss Helen Taft, daughter of the President, was one of several young women who pointed out to visitors to-day items of interest in an exhibit of sweatshop products.

The exhibit is held under the auspices of the National Consumers' League. Miss Taft has become an enthusiast in the reform movement and has familiarized herself with the conditions under which articles of wearing apparel are produced in the sweatshops. She explained to visitors the labor involved in the production of the goods, the wages paid for the work, and gave an interesting account of the life and environment of the workers.

MISS SEARS RIDES WINNER.

Athletic Boston Girl First, Lady Herbert Second, at Coronado Track.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., March 11.—Miss Eleonora Sears, the athletic "bachelor maid" of Boston, rode Joe Ross to victory in a quarter-mile dash on the Coronado track to-day. Lady Reginald Herbert, riding Hawkeye, was a close second. A big crowd witnessed the race.

Lady Herbert got away a length in the lead, with the inside track. Miss Sears's clever horsemanship won the race, for as they rounded the turn and came into the stretch she sent her horse into the lead and gradually drew to the front until she crossed the wire, two lengths to the good. A number of other society women were expected to appear in the race, but all decided to avoid the formidable competition involved.

Miss Sears was "dressed to win the race," she told her friends. She used a regulation English riding saddle and rode astride, with the stirrups well up. She was dressed in a reddish brown pair of peg-top trousers, tan army leather leggins, a plaid cap and khaki blouse, with white silk sleeves. She rode with all the grace of a professional jockey and was standing high in her stirrups and leaning well over the neck of her horse as she crossed the wire.

CROWD SEES WOMAN KILLED.

Her Handbag Caught In Car Fender, She Is Dragged 50 Feet.

A crowd of women and children saw Mrs. Kathryn Eppinger, 58 years old, of 150 Railroad Avenue, Cypress Hills, dragged to death between two surface cars at Jamaica and Alabama Avenues, East New York, last evening.

Her handbag had caught in the rear fender of one of the cars while she was crossing Jamaica Avenue. The bag was in her left hand, and as she stepped between the rear of the car and a horse attached to a wagon which was just behind, the bag swung between the upraised fender and the car's dashboard.

It was held fast at the side nearest the uptown track, and as the big car started forward the woman was jerked along. The strap of the bag was caught around her wrist, and, unable to release herself, Mrs. Eppinger was pulled along for fifty feet. As the car turned out of Jamaica Avenue into Broadway, she was swung around against the side of a car coming in the opposite direction, and, falling forward, was caught between the cars. Two women fainted.

SAYS KIMMEL SLAYER LIVES.

Insurance Company's Lawyer Promises to Produce Him at Next Trial.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., March 11.—J. A. Johnson, supposed slayer of George A. Kimmel, is well and alive instead of reposing in a grave in the woods near Coos Bay, Ore., according to Edward O'Bryan, chief counsel of the insurance company which was defendant in the famous identity case over which a jury in the United States District Court here disagreed a week ago.

John Boone Swinney, a New Mexican ranchman, testified at the trial that he killed Johnson and buried him a few minutes after Johnson had killed Kimmel, who was accompanying them on a treasure hunt. O'Bryan while in this city to-night declared Johnson would be produced at the next trial. Johnson, he said, is a jockey and at one time was a racehorse owner and in fairly prosperous circumstances. When asked where Johnson is now, O'Bryan said that there are only a few places where racing is permitted and added that Johnson is still at his old business.

Johnson, according to O'Bryan, lived in this city in 1896 and 1897, disappearing in 1898, the same year in which Kimmel disappeared from Arkansas City, Kas.

NO ALCOHOL ON DASH

Men Who Went to Pole Say It Was Too Warm for Furs—Dinner at Hobart to Amundsen.

Copyright, 1912, by The New York Times Co. (All Rights Reserved.)

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

HOBART, Tasmania, March 11.—I was privileged to-day to go on board the Fram, and again had a long interview for THE NEW YORK TIMES with Capt. Roald Amundsen, who furnished further details of his great dash to the south pole. He said:

"My four companions on the journey were:

HELMER HANSEN,
OSCAR WISTING,
SVERRE HASSEL,
OLAF BJAALAND.

"We all worked well together. I could not have had a finer, more loyal, or more determined party.

"For food we relied entirely on pemmican, biscuits, chocolate, powdered milk, and, of course, dog meat. The dogs were fed on pemmican.

"In my opinion we had the best and most satisfying provisions possible. In fact, from the beginning to the end of the journey we never felt an undue craving for something to eat or any feeling of not having had sufficient nourishment.

Used No Alcohol on Dash.

"Alcohol of every kind was absolutely barred on the journey. While staying in our Winter quarters we had grog as a treat every Saturday night, but when sledging we considered it advisable to carry no spirits. Nor did we take any surgical appliances, with the exception of a few bandages. We trusted to accidents not occurring.

"Of course, I had a camera. It and myself were inseparable. In addition to taking various pictures on the way, I obtained photographs at the pole. All the films were used, and the camera worked well. I am not an expert photographer, but the films have been put into most trustworthy hands to be developed, and, I hope, will turn out satisfactorily.

"We lost two dogs in crevasses owing to the harness breaking. After that the harness was strengthened and we suffered no more losses of that kind.

Dogs Better Than Ponies.

"The dogs proved very suitable for the work, for their weight being so little, they were able to cross snow-bridges which ponies would certainly have broken down. Occasionally the leading dogs broke through, but the others were able to hold them up, the harness, after the first incident, when we lost the two dogs, invariably holding good.

"I think what touched us most keenly on the whole journey was the unavoidable killing of dogs which had shared our dangers and done such splendid work. The killing of them went to the heart of every one.

"We left our Winter camp at the Bay of Wales ready for occupation for any one who chooses to go to it—clean from floor to ceiling, fuel ready in the kitchen stove, the lamps ready for lighting, crockery laid on the table. We left the place, indeed, 'prepared for visitors.' We also left a good supply of food in the depot, a further supply in the depot at 80 degrees, and a considerable quantity of dogflesh at 82 degrees. No danger to these provisions need be apprehended, I think, from the three missing dogs.

"I hope visitors will soon make use of the depots. Whoever does so is heartily welcome to everything there.

Heard from Japanese Party.

"There is a likelihood, I fancy, of the Japanese visiting the camp, for when the Fram left for Hobart some Japanese were camped in a tent on the barrier, their vessel having departed. I did not see them, but they had told Capt. Neilsen, the Captain of the Fram, that they intended staying only a few days to see what was the condition of things there.

"In my opinion it will not be long before the Winter camp which I left will be made the base of another expedition undertaking geographical exploration of a more detailed character, particularly in regard to King Edward VII. Land and its connection with Victoria Land, the nature and extent of the Ross Barrier, and the configuration of the mountains which stretch away apparently across the continent.

"I have already cabled that I do not expect to return to Europe for a long time, as I have work which I must do now in the arctic.

"I may say that I received authority from the Commonwealth Government to land in quarantine at Hobart twenty-one dogs, which I am presenting to Dr. Mawson's expedition. Owing to the non-arrival of any wireless message from Adelaide Land, some doubts have been entertained respecting the safety of Dr. Mawson's party and his vessel, the Aurora, but I sincerely hope that there are no grounds for fear and that the expedition is safe.

"I ought to add, too, that I deeply regret the foolish rumor which some one spread from Wellington, giving rise to unfounded hopes that I knew something of Capt. Scott.

Thinks Shackleton Mistaken.

"I see, according to reports cabled here from London, that Sir Ernest Shackleton says the plateau at the pole which I named after King Haakon is really the same as the one he named after King Edward VII. I think Sir Ernest is under a misapprehension, for when he reached his furthest point south he was ascending. We reached our greatest height, 10,750 feet, in nearly the same latitude as Sir Ernest Shackleton's furthest point, and we then descended, and at the pole itself we were on a vast, apparently level area, with a slight slope away southward, shown by the instruments, but not perceptible to the eye.

"In a general sense it is, of course, part of the same elevated area as that named by Sir Ernest Shackleton, but it is certainly not the same plateau. We had every right to name the plateau at the pole.

"I consider the place where we crossed the mountain range much easier than the Beardmore Glacier, which has been found to have many dangerous crevasses. We crossed crevasses, but they were not numerous, nor were they particularly dangerous.

"The Devil's Dancing Hall."

"Beyond the Devil's Glacier, as I have already said, we came to a place which we called the Devil's Dancing Hall, owing to the fact that the hollow ice echoed strangely underfoot.

"In determining the position of the pole we took the greatest precautions. Five miles short of the pole we stopped and took reckonings, and then advanced and took observations to determine the exact position. These observations were taken both by myself and by my companions. Naturally we could not determine the position with the actitude possible to a man in an observatory, but I am convinced that the error, if any, was very slight, and of course any error in the instruments can be corrected."

Work of Lieut. Prestrud's Party.

Lieut. Prestrud, who commanded the party detailed to go eastward to visit King Edward VII. Land, gave me the following account of his explorations:

"On leaving Framheim, our Winter camp, we went south to 80 degrees, following the track of the pole party. Then we turned east for sixty miles. On reaching the meridian at Cape Colbeck we went north 120 miles. We saw no trace of land there—nothing but ice and snow level with the top of the ice barrier 150 feet above the sea. It was splendidly easy running for our two sledges and our skis.

"After covering twenty miles, we came to the boundary of King Edward VII. Land laid down by Capt. Scott at 78 degrees south. There we mounted 1,000 feet in fifteen miles, and on Nov. 24 overlooked Ross Sea. It was free of ice except drift ice, and easily navigable.

"Going northeast seventy miles over the plateau, we came to bare rocks about 1,500 feet high, exactly as Scott described. Running away eastward was a low range of hills called by Scott the Alexandra Mountains.

"We returned to our base camp on Christmas Eve, and on Jan. 11 the Fram appeared—the most welcome sight we had seen for a long time.

"The pole party returned on Jan. 25, but the Fram was driven off the coast by bad weather, and we did not get away till Jan. 30.

"Capt. Amundsen is a great leader, with wonderful energy, foresight, and organizing ability. The way he worked was wonderful, and every detail was the outcome of careful thought."

One of Lieut. Prestrud's two companions was Johannson, who went with Nansen furthest north. Chatting with me, he said:

"Capt. Amundsen is a great explorer and has done wonderful work."

Talks with Amundsen's Aids.

Helmer Hansen, one of the four men who accompanied Capt. Amundsen to the pole, is described by Amundsen as the best dog driver he ever saw. Bjaaland is a wonderful ski runner, and, with Hansen, contributed much to the success of the expedition.

"It was not very cold," said Oscar Wisting. "I have felt it as cold in Christiania. We started with furs, but soon laid them aside, and except at night wore only our ordinary clothes. Still, we should never have got through without plenty of dogs, nor without Capt. Amundsen."

Sverre Hassel, another of the men who accompanied Amundsen to the pole, fully bore out Wisting's statement. He said:

"It was not very cold, and near the pole itself we experienced fine weather. I have known it colder in Christiania. Without the dogs, however, we could not have got through and kept up our food supplies.

"Dog flesh is not the worst kind of food. The dogs are very ready to eat each other; indeed, they are sometimes fonder of their companions dead than alive.

"Capt. Amundsen is a wonderful man. We could never have accomplished the journey without him."

As an example of the perfection of Capt. Amundsen's organization may be mentioned the arrangement he planned for finding the food depots. On each side he erected for some distance a line of snow cairns bearing numbered flags, so that if the party were off the proper track they would know, on striking one of the cairns, which way to go to find the depot.

Amundsen's Chart.

To-day I have seen Capt. Amundsen's chart, on which a thin red line a few inches long across the sheet of paper represents the permanent record of the 800 miles over which the party made their way to the pole. Starting from the base camp at Framheim, the line runs straight southward over the vast ice plain lying behind the Great Ice Barrier until it reaches the spot where the ascent was begun to the high land toward the pole. There the red line suddenly bends eastward, indicating the place where the Hjsberg Glacier offered a good route over the mountain barrier. Then the line runs due south again till a little dot shows the goal of the long voyage from the far north of Europe and of so much toil and heroic endeavor.

The Fram is still anchored in the river—a comfortable, roomy vessel, heavily laden, and drawing eighteen feet of water. A striking feature is the ship's absolute cleanliness, though the dogs, large, powerful animals, with furry noses, pointed ears, and of most varied color, have the free run of the decks, where they feed on stockfish and quarrel to their hearts' content.

Every man on the Fram has his own cabin, a little box 6 feet by 6 feet. The officers and men have separate quarters, well warmed and lighted and made very comfortable.

In the officers' quarters is a piano, decorated with stencil work representing flowers, presented by the ladies of Horten, Norway, Capt. Amundsen's birthplace. There are also other touches of home.

Capt. Amundsen's Cabin.

Capt. Amundsen's own room, which was formerly occupied by Capt. Nansen, is very much a replica of the others, but a little larger. It contains charts showing the route to the pole, and sketches of how the depots and cairns were laid down and how the observations of fixing the pole were carried out.

In the seamen's quarters there is a canary, named Fridtjof, which accompanied the Fram all through the voyaging since the vessel left Norway.

The Fram's motive power is supplied by an eighty-horse-power Diesel petroleum engine. Chief Engineer Sunderek says it has not once gone wrong in the course of the voyage.

Several visitors from shore were allowed on board the Fram to-day for the first time since the vessel's arrival. The crew will have a chance of getting a run ashore in the next few days. None seems to have suffered. The four men who accompanied Capt. Amundsen are all bronzed and healthy and do not appear to have suffered any ill effects. The dogs which returned from the pole trip also look well.

A dinner was given in honor of Amundsen to-night by the Norwegian Consul here. Admiral King-Hall, representatives of the Government and the Royal Society, and the Consuls for France, the United States, the Netherlands, Sweden, and Germany were also present. Much enthusiasm was displayed.

AMUNDSEN HAS GIVEN NO NEWS

Except to the Newspapers with Which He Had Contracts.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

HOBART, Tasmania, March 11.—Capt. Roald Amundsen authorizes me to state that no one [except the newspapers with which he had contracts] has received news from him, and that the story in The New York American has been stolen on your side. Capt. Amundsen is prepared to make a statutory declaration [affidavit.]

Confirming this statement, The Mercury says:

"Capt. Amundsen appears to have distracted the newspaper men all the world over. So soon as it was known that the Fram had arrived at Hobart, we received appeals for news from all quarters. Yesterday morning the London daily newspapers cabled to us, 'Has Amundsen succeeded?' and we could only reply that Amundsen was dumb.

"Then came an urgent cablegram to us from The London Times respecting the rumor that Capt. Scott had reached the pole, and asked us to cable a confirmation or denial or any facts immediately. This time we were able to send Capt. Amundsen's curt denial of the report.

"It seems that Capt. Amundsen has been filling in his time since landing in cabling his story to Norway and to The London Daily Chronicle and THE NEW YORK TIMES. Even when dragged out of bed last night to be confronted with the news from London that he had reached the pole, this dour Norse sea king stubbornly said, 'I will confirm nothing.'

"He has faithfully guarded the interests of the people to whom he was committed, but, though his silence is golden, it puts a very sordid aspect upon the heroism of exploration.

"Capt. Amundsen has been less fortunate than was Lieut. Shackleton in the giving out of his polar story. When the latter was returning from the antarctic, he dropped anchor at Stewart Island, went ashore himself, and visited the telegraph office and then returned to the ship. He thus dispatched a message to The London Daily Mail and cut himself adrift from inquiries until he reached Lyttleton. Before that time arrived, the story had been to London and back again and there was no seal on his lips when he came ashore.

"In the case of Capt. Amundsen, however, since he has been in Hobart reporters have haunted him and telegrams have poured in, begging for news and for a confirmation or denial of the rumors. It is a curious fact that last night the newspaper men were able to submit to Capt. Amundsen an extensive summary, received from London, of his own report, put on the wire on Friday afternoon and published exclusively in The London Daily Chronicle and THE NEW YORK TIMES.

"In keeping the reporters at a distance, Capt. Amundsen, of course, was only following the example of most modern explorers in these times, when news often has a high commercial value."

Capt. Amundsen is being entertained to-night by the Norwegian Consul, those present including the Admiral of the British Australian fleet and Henry D. Baker, the American Consul.

FRENCH SCIENTISTS ENTHUSE.

Expect Large Scientific and Geographical Results from Amundsen.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

PARIS, March 11.—M. Henri Poincaré, the famous scientist and cousin of the French Premier, said in an interview with a NEW YORK TIMES correspondent to-day:

"Amundsen's mission was especially a geographical expedition, but he has certainly not failed to make some highly interesting scientific observations. He has been face to face with glaciers whose structure must be completely different from ours—glaciers of gigantic proportions which form vast plateaus over lands that are naturally mountainous.

"Amundsen was able to observe their advance under suitable conditions, and as a consequence important meteorological problems may be solved, for it is very possible that the movements of these formidable masses exercise an influence on the seasons of the astral hemisphere.

"Owing to the direction he took to reach the south pole, Amundsen must have passed one of the magnetic points of the earth. There he certainly made experiments, which will exactly indicate whether the magnetic pole is at the surface or in the subterraneous strata of the earth. Very shortly I hope that we will know precisely what science has gained by discovery of the mathematical point at which the south pole is situated."

Charles Cabot, who for a long period was in the furthest south, was enthusiastic over Amundsen's success. He says:

"The astral pole was the last portion of our globe that remained a complete mystery. Thanks to Amundsen, we shall at last know if there really exists a vast continent around the antarctic pole, and will also learn where is its eastern section. The Pacific is limited in the direction of the pole by a continental coast line. In all probability this coast must extend still further toward the southwest, if King Edward VII. Land and Graham's Land are to connect and form a single mass. From this fact the existence of a great antarctic continent would acquire greater certitude.

"In addition to the physical formation of this part of the globe, we shall gain specific knowledge of the fauna and flora of these regions, regarding which Liouville and Gain have already furnished most valuable information.

"The mystery of the south pole no longer exists. Science has achieved a new conquest."

ENGLISH CONGRATULATIONS.

Telegram Sent to Amundsen by the Royal Geographical Society.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, March 11.—Major Leonard Darwin, presiding at a meeting tonight of the Royal Geographical Society, said amid applause that since the last meeting those present had heard that the courageous Norwegian, Capt. Amundsen, who was known to many of them, having lectured before the society, had succeeded in his endeavor to reach the south pole.

Major Darwin then read the following telegram, which had been sent to Capt. Amundsen at Hobart by himself as President of the society:

> On behalf of the Council of the Royal Geographical Society I congratulate you upon your magnificent journey and successful attainment of the south pole.

The applause which greeted the reading of this telegram showed, the Chairman added, that the society concurred in the Council's action in sending the telegram.

EUROPE RESPECTED COPYRIGHT.

Not a Single Violation, Despite the Keenness for News.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, March 11.—The British and European press generally have shown a laudable respect for newspaper copyright in handling Capt. Amundsen's dispatches.

Not a single paper infringed on The Daily Chronicle's European copyright, though the keenness of all to keep the reader posted was evidenced by the numerous brief summaries published by permission of The Chronicle, whose courtesy was handsomely acknowledged.

TO PAY AMUNDSEN'S DEBTS.

Committee Asks Subscriptions to Defray Unpaid Expenses.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

CHRISTIANIA, March 11.—The committee which has been formed here has issued an appeal to Capt. Amundsen's fellow-countrymen for subscriptions to pay off the debts incurred by him in connection with his south pole expedition, which amount to about $19,500.

The committee expresses the hope that it will speedily be in a position to telegraph to Capt. Amundsen at Hobart that all his debts have been paid.

Later on a national subscription for Capt. Amundsen himself will be started.

ITALIANS HONOR AMUNDSEN.

Duke of the Abruzzi Among Those to Wire Congratulations.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

ROME, March 11.—The Italian Geographical Society, of which Capt. Amundsen is an honorary member, will award to the Norwegian explorer its grand medal.

The Duke of the Abruzzi and Admiral Cagni are among those who have cabled congratulations to Capt. Amundsen.

PEARY'S OPINION OF DOG MEAT.

Not a Delicacy, He Says, Nor Yet Particularly Hard Rations.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 11.—Dog meat, in Admiral Peary's opinion, is not a regular item on the polar bill of fare, but it comes enough as a matter of course not to be thought of either as a delicacy or as particularly hard rations. Pemmican, on account of its reduced weight, is the standard food, but a remark made by the Admiral in discussing the relative value as motive power of ponies or dogs shows his matter-of-fact attitude toward dog meat.

"One advantage about dogs in arctic travel," he said, "is that when one dies it becomes food both for the men in the party and for the remaining dogs. If a pony dies the men can eat it, but the other ponies can't."

That was his only statement on the subject.

ROOSEVELT CONGRATULATES.

Ex-President Sends Message to the South Pole Discoverer.

Col. Roosevelt yesterday afternoon sent the following cablegram of congratulation to Roald Amundsen, discoverer of the south Pole:

> "Roald Amundsen,
> Hobart, Tasmania.
> "Heartiest congratulations."
> "THEODORE ROOSEVELT."

WILL PROSECUTE INFRINGERS.

The New York Times's Purpose Indorsed by H. L. Bridgman.

THE NEW YORK TIMES has instructed its attorneys to prosecute all infringements of the copyright of Capt. Amundsens' story of his discovery of the south pole.

Herbert L. Bridgman, business manager of The Brooklyn Standard Union, Vice President of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, Chairman of the Publishers' Association of New York City, Secretary of the Peary Club, a recognized expert on polar matters, and one of the principal supporters of Admiral Peary in all his expeditions, said yesterday:

"I am very glad to see that THE NEW YORK TIMES intends to defend its property rights in the Amundsen news, and if necessary to carry the war into Africa. No phase of the copyright question, over which so much discussion and legislation has occurred, is, it appears to me, as important as this. Great sums of money are expended merely that their results and value may be stolen, for that's the only proper word, and the grandest of larcenies goes not only unpunished, but condoned, sometimes complimented.

"Money which might be easily raised for expeditions is impossible because newspapers which would otherwise cheerfully contribute and share the expense, know that the results of their outlay, their investments will be pirated, and that they will have not only no protection, but the criticism and censure of jealous and impecunious rivals, if they undertake to defend their property rights.

"This situation has been for years a menace, and is now, for the Crocker Land expedition might easily obtain from the American press funds which it imperatively needs if the news and rights which it could transfer were protected in the open market, as any other kind of property would be, and I look upon THE NEW YORK TIMES as leading a great and imperative public reform, in which all honest newspaper men and explorers will alike sympathize and wish it early and complete success."

Killed by Chewing Match Sticks.

CAMDEN, N. J., March 11.—Charles McShea died last night at the Cooper Hospital from chronic phosphorus poisoning induced in a peculiar way. He had been for years a habitual chewer of match sticks. As other men chew tobacco or chewing gum he chewed the little pine sticks. He would break off the heads of matches and chew the wood. The phosphorus which was absorbed by the wood finally poisoned him.

COAL STRIKE MAKES 2,000,000 MEN IDLE

to refrain from alcohol. Deputy Sachse said:

"So long as we shun the fiery stuff the police and gendarmes can keep on playing cards without interruption."

The German coal syndicate has a great reserve of supplies, and declares there is small danger of industrial disaster, especially as the strike is by no means universal. A catastrophe would only be possible if a much larger percentage of Germany's 600,000 miners were on strike.

BERLIN, March 11.—The coal strike went into effect in the Westphalian coal mines to-day, when about 50 per cent. of the 350,000 miners employed there obeyed the call of their leaders to cease work. According to reports received from the mines, the first shifts to descend the pits this morning were considerably affected, but results were varied at the different mines. In some districts the cessation of work was practically complete, while in others only from 15 to 30 per cent. of the men struck.

Large forces of police are on duty everywhere throughout the region, but the strikers generally have kept quiet, and only two isolated attacks on non-strikers have been reported.

The conflict is quite as much a struggle between the leaders of the rival Socialist and non-Socialist unions as between the mine owners and their employes. The leaders of the non-Socialist Christian Union are so far holding their followers well in hand. The success of the strike will depend upon how far the feeling of solidarity with their striking comrades of the Socialist Miners' Unions is carried, while the fear of reproaches for strikebreaking will cause many breaks in the ranks of those who have hitherto not struck work.

Public opinion in the Westphalian district, which was with the miners during the last great strike, is now reported to be largely against the strikers.

The Stock Exchange took a favorable view of the situation to-day, coal stocks being firm.

The effect of the strike is not yet noticeable on industry in general, nor on the prices of the necessaries of life.

The Iron works in Westphalia, in the Grand Duchy of Luxemburg, and in Lorraine are reported to have supplies of coal sufficient to enable them to run for three weeks.

ESSEN, Germany, March 11.—Official figures relating to a part of the mines in this district show that of 170,868 miners employed 112,100, or 65 per cent., have continued at work.

The strike is fairly general in Eastern Westphalia, but in Western Westphalia a majority of the men continue at work. The non-strikers are unmolested when going to and from their work, and a large force of policemen posted at intervals along the streets have had no occasion to interfere.

OCEAN LINERS WITHDRAWN.

Shortage of Coal Prevents Sailing of St. Paul and Oceanic.

SOUTHAMPTON, March 11.—The American liner St. Paul, which was due to sail for New York on March 23, and the White Star liner Oceanic, due to sail for the same destination on March 27, have been withdrawn from service in consequence of the British coal strike.

The White Star liner Olympic, however, has coaled, and will sail for New York on March 14.

News was received here yesterday by the agents of the International Mercantile Marine Company, 9 Broadway, that owing to the coal strike the sailing of the New York on March 30, as well as the sailings of the St. Paul from Southampton, March 23, and the Oceanic on March 27, had been canceled.

The changing of the sailing date of the Olympic has given a great deal of work to the officials of the White Star Line, as her entire schedule for the year 1912 had to be put back one week. The coal strike will cause still more work in changing the passenger lists.

It is understood that the Cunard Line, in Liverpool, where they have their own works and immense storehouses, have been preparing for this strike for the last twelve months, and have a quantity of coal as well as all kinds of stores and provisions ready to supply their ships.

Shipping men here are sanguine that the British Government will intervene and stop the strike before it plays havoc with the commerce of the world. If it is not ended in a few days the trade to this side will be crippled.

A coal strike in this country would affect the West Indies and Spanish Main, because during the last ten years the American coal companies have gained the contracts for supplying the coaling stations at St. Lucia, St. Thomas, Colon, and other well-known coaling stations.

24-HOUR STRIKE IN FRANCE.

Miners, Among Other Things, Want Pensions on Reaching 40.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

PARIS, March 11.—The French miners began a twenty-four hours' strike to-day. It is intended merely as a demonstration, and the men will resume work to-morrow.

They want an eight-hour day, a minimum wage, and a definite guarantee of 36c. as a daily pension when they cease work at the age of 40.

The greater number of the men remained away from work. Regiments in all the mining districts were confined to barracks, but no disturbance is reported.

PARIS, March 11.—About two-thirds of the coal miners of France have responded to the appeal of the General Miners' Federation to strike for twenty-four hours.

This action of the miners is not directed against the mine owners, but is designed to show to the Government the "solidarity" of the miners and as a warning to Parliament that miners are not satisfied with the workingmen's Old Age Pension law.

OPERATORS REPLY TO MINERS.

Refusal of Their Demands to be Sent to Workers' Conference Committee.

The demands of the anthracite mine workers were gone over in detail at the meeting of the Operators' Committee of ten held yesterday afternoon at 143 Liberty Street. The reply which the operators have prepared will not be made public until after it is given to the Conference Committee of the mine workers, but it is known that the demands will be refused.

The refusal of the original demands disposes of them as far as the operators are concerned, but any new offer by the miners will be considered. The committee of the operators consists of E. B. Thomas, President of the Lehigh Valley Railroad; W. H. Truesdale, President of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western; J. L. Cake, L. F. Loree, President of the Delaware & Hudson Company; Morris Williams, President of the Susquehanna Coal Company; Percy C. Madeira, Joseph Dickson, Alvan Markle, F. B. Underwood, President of the Erie Railroad, and George F. Baer, President of the Philadelphia & Reading.

Coal brokers are increasing their stocks of anthracite as fast as possible for emergencies. All the ports where coal is being shipped are crowded with boats. The operators are shipping anthracite very freely, it is said. A representative of one of the largest coal firms said that the demand had the effect of increasing tidewater and lighterage rates. The harbor freights, which were formerly 15 and 20 cents a ton, he said, are now 25, 30, and 35 cents a ton.

"The situation is abnormal," he said. "Brokers and middlemen are holding anthracite in boats for spot prices, the highest bidder getting the coal."

The strike in England affects the steel and locomotive industry there and may lead to orders being placed in this country. Many ships are bing chartered in England to load with soft coal here, and it is said the high prices may make the operators more willing to settle with the bituminous mine workers.

Special to The New York Times.

WILKESBARRE, Penn., March 11.—Mine leaders who left here to-day for the New York conference say that the miners are not prepared to offer any compromise. Neither the miners nor the operators have made any attempt to get an extension of time after April 1 to bring about a peaceful solution of the situation, but both sides admit that after the first of the month it is possible that an extension of a week or two may be granted to bring peace.

NORFOLK, Va., March 11.—Nineteen big foreign steamers, all after coal and as anxious for cargoes that in many instances they are offering premiums to local dealers, are now gathered around the coal piers off Lambert's Point, Sewall's Point and Newport News.

Commanders of these vessels say the demand for American coal will steadily increase, that prices will advance correspondingly and that within ninety days the local harbor will be crowded with tramps seeking cargoes for speculative purposes.

TAMAQUA, Penn., March 11.—Efforts to strengthen the union in anticipation of a possible strike, caused a tie up in the Lehigh Coal & Navigation Company's No. 9 and Nesquehoning Collieries here, to-day, more than 2,000 men and boys being idle. The trouble was caused by the refusal of about a dozen workers to join the union and wear union buttons. Unless the trouble is speedily adjusted it is feared that the strike may spread to other collieries in the vicinity.

Soft Coal Higher in Boston.

BOSTON, March 11.—The retail dealers here to-day advanced the price of bituminous coal from $4.50 to $5.25 a ton. Hard coal retail prices remain unchanged at $7.50 for stove and $7.75 for nut.

TROOPS GUARD KNOX ON SALVADOR TRIP

Great Precautions Taken to Protect Secretary of State While at the Capital.

GOES ASHORE IN A BASKET

At State Dinner the Secretary Predicts Great Trade with New York When Panama Canal Opens.

SAN SALVADOR, Republic of Salvador, March 11.—It was the turn to-day of the Salvadoreans to extend a welcome to Philander C. Knox, United States Secretary of State, and they did it royally. The Foreign Minister at the head of a reception committee met the State Secretary's party on its arrival at Acajutla. The police band played the National anthems of the two Republics.

A special train was in waiting to convey the Knox party to San Salvador where another committee, headed by the Finance Minister, met and greeted the State Secretary. Guards of honor of infantry and cavalry saluted Mr. Knox and then accompanied his motor car to the residence of Deputy Carl Melendez, which has been placed at the disposal of Mr. and Mrs. Knox during their stay, and where a detachment of cadet corps mounted a guard of honor.

Crowds thronged the streets between the station and Deputy Melendez's house cheering and waving handkerchiefs and saluting in the friendliest manner. Throughout the night the Government buildings were illuminated with myriads of electric glow lamps and this will be repeated nightly until Wednesday when Mr. Knox intends to depart.

This morning the President of the Republic, Dr. Manuel E. Araujo, received Secretary of State Knox and his party at the Palace. The meeting was of a purely ceremonial character, the formal exchanges having been arranged to take place at the State dinner.

There is no diplomatic question pending at present between the United States and Salvador, but the State Secretary hopes by his visit to strengthen the commercial relations between the two Republics and to help to remove the susicion which has recently been prevalent of a policy of imperialism on the part of the United States.

In the course of conversation to-day when discussing the subject of the receptions which have been accorded to him at the various places he has visited, State Secretary Knox said:

"Nothing could exceed the kindness and hospitality of the Governments and the peoples I have visited unless possibly it was the work of dealing with the false rumors to the contrary which have been put in circulation by those seeming to desire to prevent a better understanding between the United States and Central America."

Many pleasant incidents have occurred during the trip of the cruiser Maryland. When she arrived off Acajutla a British vessel anchored there dressed ship in her honor. Secretary of State Knox and the others of his party when going ashore were obliged to use landing baskets, owing to the high surf. The Secretary of State's journey between the vessel and the shore afforded the photographers a great opportunity for new pictures.

As the launch conveying Mr. Knox approached the Custom House a salute of nineteen guns was fired, the Salvadorean colors were dipped and the Stars and Stripes run up, while the band on the pier played the "Star Spangled Banner." Every one present, except one man, uncovered. A policeman strode up to him and shouted:

"Take your hat off. That's the American National anthem."

The man replied: "I am an American myself," upon which the policeman saying "Then more shame for you," knocked off his hat which was blown into the water.

Gen Muller, the Chief of Staff of the army, when he was later reciting the incident, jokingly said: "Perhaps to-morrow the American State Department will present us a claim for $2 for one hat."

When the special left Acajutla for San Salvador it was preceded by two other trains, the first of which carried 100 soldiers and the second a machine gun. When asked why such precautions were taken, Gen. Muller said: "The precautions are taken only against foreigners. There is nothing to fear from the Salvadoreans. We have under surveillance twenty-five or thirty strangers, but they are are all Americans."

At the State dinner to-night Mr. Knox made a plea for closer intercourse between the republics. The dinner was held at the palace, and was the chief function of the Secretary's visit to San Salvador. A flattering welcome was accorded Mr. Knox by the many prominent Salvadoreans present, and the Foreign Minister in his speech spoke in most eulogistic terms of the United States and the man who had been sent to Central America to represent the American Government.

In reply Mr. Knox said:

"The opening of the Panama Canal shortens by 10,000 miles the water route between Acajutla and New York, which should be naturally one of the chief markets for the products of Salvador. When Central American products become popularized in the United States, trade with our Caribbean neighbors will grow to an enormous extent.

"The people of the United States have been too ignorant of their southern neighbors and their undeveloped resources. Friendship and peace will result from the reciprocal dependence of the countries upon each other's products, sympathies, and assistance."

HELD FOR WRECKING BAKERY.

Newark Police Arrest Three Men as Black Hand Members.

Three men were taken into custody yesterday by the Newark police on suspicion of having had something to do with a bomb explosion which partially wrecked a one-story bake shop in the rear of a two-and-a-half-story frame dwelling at 35 Adams Street a few hours before. The bakery was owned by Thomas Mistretta, who was slightly injured by falling bricks.

The men under arrest are Calegro Venuto, Vincenzo Davide, and Mariano Cucucello. The police think they are members of a Black Hand gang.

According to Mistretta he formerly kept a bakery at 63 River Street, but was hounded by Venuto into selling the business to him. After working for Venuto for a time, Mistretta opened the Adams Street bake shop, and Venuto, he alleges, immediately resumed his former tactics, with the purpose of driving him out of business. Demands were made on him for money, he says.

SUED BY HIS DOCTOR WIFE.

Husband Humiliated Her Before Patients, Mrs. Bucholz Says.

Dr. Louise Z. Bucholz, a woman physician of 73 St. Mark's Place, filed papers in the Supreme Court yesterday for a separation from her husband, Harry A. Bucholz. Since her marriage she has not had a happy hour, she says. Her complaint sets forth a variety of charges. One of these is that Mr. Bucholz wrote letters about his wife to neighbors, accusing her of improper conduct.

Dr. Bucholz declares that her husband threatened to shoot her unless she gave him money, that he used to slam the doors in their house whenever she was ill and that he on one occasion broke into her offices when she was in consultation and humiliated her before her patients by breaking the china and glassware.

resented enough already, Mrs. Inez Haynes Gilmore answered the objection that "the ballot means the bullet."

"Of all the arguments against woman's suffrage," she said, "this is the most ridiculous. It is so absurd that it is not worth two minutes, and I don't expect to use the five minutes allotted to me. Of the 3,000,000 men who fought in the civil war more than 2,000,000 were under the voting age. When they say that women cannot fight they tell an untruth. How about Joan of Arc and Moll Pitcher? If it is necessary for us to fight in order to vote, why, then, we will fight. I would rather march away with the music and go to war than stay at home and wait for somebody to come back and tell me all about it. But when women get the ballot war will be as extinct as the dodo, and there will never be another conflict of that kind."

That the franchise for women would result in increasing the work of the divorce courts was what George H. Gilman had to answer.

"Tain't so," was among the things that he said.

Miss Sadie American replied to the objection that "women are already overburdened." She admitted that this was true, but argued that the giving of the franchise would greatly reduce the size of the burden.

A Burden to Share With Angels.

"Women are angels," with the inference that they are not the voting sort, was the objection that George Middleton, the husband of Miss La Follette, had to answer. He looked at his blonde-haired wife and said that it was entirely true.

"The awful burden of putting a ballot in the box once a year," said Mr. Middleton, "is a burden that we should share with the angels."

Miss La Follette spoke to the objection that women, if permitted to vote," would take the offices away from the men." The gist of her argument was that if they did it would be because they were able better to administer those offices. Women, she said, had been able to make both ends meet despite the increased cost of living, and if she could do that in the home she could do the same thing in an official capacity, for, as she put it, "municipal Government, after all, is only municipal housekeeping."

Others heard were Swinburne Hale, who handled the objection that "men would cease to love us;" Miss Maude Minor, who ridiculed the objection put into the query of "what about the undesirable women?" Mrs. Harriet B. Laidlaw, who replied to the objection that "women are different from men;" Robert Bruere, who wrestled with the objection that "women are not ready for the ballot;" Lincoln Steffens, who wrote a letter denying that votes for women "would increase corruption;" Griffin Barry, who denied that woman suffrage "would create sex antagonism;" Charles E. Caffin, who was certain that if women voted "it would not destroy chivalry;" Miss Beatrice Forbes-Robertson, who is certain that the argument "that indirect influence is enough" is wrong; Mrs. Maud Nathan, on the objection that "women cannot defend their right to vote;" Elizabeth Gerberding who ridiculed the idea that women would not vote if they could; Bertha Rembaugh who assured her hearers that women if permitted to vote would not try to make men good in too great a hurry, and Morris Hillquit, who answered the objection that woman suffrage "is just, but not expedient."

WHY IT IS RISKY

To Have Clogged Nostrils

Your nostrils catch the disease germs and dirt that are in the air you breathe. If your nostrils are closed the germs of disease collect in your nasal passages and set up an irritation. This is called catarrh. The irritation produces a discharge. The discharge is loaded with germs. Your nostrils being clogged up, you cannot blow out the discharge in the natural way. The annoyance of choked-up nostrils causes you to free them in any way you can. You find that you can draw the discharge backward into your throat. This is called hawking, and is a disgusting, unnatural and unsafe practice, and gives the breath a bad odor.

Drawing disease germs from the nostrils back into the throat brings on deafness, throat disease and lung disease. It depends altogether upon what sort of germs you draw from your nostrils into your throat what disease you will contract. In one it will result in deafness, in another head noises, in another discharging ears, in others throat disease, in others bronchitis, in others pneumonia, and in still others tuberculosis.

Most cases of deafness and lung disease start from a closed, dry or discharging nostril. Here is the reason: Your nostrils are supplied with perfect air filters. These structures strain all the dust and germs out of the air you take. If your nostrils are open and healthy the disease germs are caught and entangled in the natural secretions of the nose as flies are caught on sticky paper. Once caught in the nostrils, the germs are blown out. If your nostrils are dry and sore the disease germs are not caught at all, but pass right on to your ears and lungs.

My specialty is freeing obstructed nostrils, treating deafness and head noises and healing sore places in the breathing tubes. I have spent thirty years studying the best way to do this. I can free the nostrils without cutting away the bone of the nose, thus leaving the nostrils, those important structures that were created by nature, to strain dust and germs out of the air.

Closed Nostrils Opened

When Mr. Edward W. Johnson first consulted me he said: "I have had catarrh in my nostrils for twenty-five years. I had a cough that bothered me a great deal, especially when I went to bed. My appetite failed. I got pale and weak. My nostrils closed tight two years ago and I had to breathe through my mouth. I took cold with every change of weather and coughed all winter. I saw where you cured Jeffries of closed nostrils and thought maybe you could help me."

Since Dr. McCoy treated Mr. Johnson he reports that his nostrils are open and he can sleep with his mouth closed. His appetite has returned. He gets up in the morning rested and his cough is nearly all gone. Mr. Johnson is sixty-one years of age and resides at 74 Oakland St., Brooklyn.

ARE YOU GOING DEAF?

I have made a discovery in the treatment of head noises and deafness which I consider an important one. My discovery does away with the necessity of passing instruments into the ear tubes, which measures have proved unsatisfactory, are painful, and instead of curing the disease have often forced it further up into the ear.

How important my method of treatment is will be shown in the case of Mr. Brown.

When Mr. W. R. Brown first consulted me he said: "My hearing has been bad since 1863. Several years after I first became hard of hearing I began to notice noises in my ears. The sounds in my right ear were like the tapping of a bell, and the noise in my left ear was like bees buzzing. My hearing got so bad that people had to speak very loud to me, and I would have to ask them two or three times over to find out what they were saying. You can judge how deaf I was when I tell you that in order to hear my little alarm clock to tell whether it was running I had to press it right up close to my ear."

Mr. Brown was placed under my method of treatment, and reports that his hearing has so far improved that he can now hear his alarm clock tick, which is in the kitchen, while lying in bed, a distance of thirty feet. The noises which constantly troubled him have disappeared. He says that he hears better now than he has since 1863. Mr. Brown is 65 years of age, and resides at No. 140 West Forty-ninth Street, New York City.

This is who I am and what I have done: I graduated in medicine in New York in 1879. I was the prize winner in my class. I won in competitive examination the position of physician to Bellevue Hospital, where I served in 1879 and 1880.

The following interview with Prof. Loomis will explain what he thought of me:
(New York World, Sept. 2, 1894.)
"Prof. Loomis, of the University of New York, the great specialist, said, in alluding to medical men who advertise: 'Dr. McCoy, for instance, is an able man, well educated, a thorough scientist and a first-class physician. He is a graduate of Bellevue Hospital. He advertises, does an immense business, and is doing much good.'"

If you think my training and experience should make me a good doctor and are in need of skilful services, I will be pleased to have you visit my offices. It will cost you nothing for consultation.

If you live at a distance from New York, I will be pleased to answer any inquiries you may make by letter.

ASK KOENIG TO SHOW FLAWS IN PETITIONS

Roosevelt Supporters Say They Wish Taft Leader Would Fight Their Lists.

PREDICT ILLINOIS SWEEP

Colonel's Headquarters Here Has Assurances That the Leaders in That State Want Roosevelt.

The managers of the Roosevelt Presidential boom in the city professed yesterday to be greatly disappointed at the statement made by Chairman Samuel Koenig on Sunday that the Republican County Committee had decided not to further protest the Roosevelt petitions which were filed with the Board of Elections last Saturday. Chairman Duell of the Roosevelt Committee said he would have much preferred if the organization leaders had made public any irregularities in the lists. Out of 8,000 or more petitioners, he said, only two names were found that should not have been on the petition.

"The worst news that our committee has received in some time," said Chairman Duell, "is that conveyed in a statement of County Chairman Koenig that the opponents of Roosevelt have decided not to further protest our petitions. When the regular organization had embarked on this course the Roosevelt Committee hoped that it would be carried to the end, as it believed that it would only demonstrate more fully the desire of the opponents to Roosevelt to throttle public sentiment.

"The sudden reversal of attitude on the part of the regular organization and its leader, self-ascribed as 'magnanimous,' is therefore, in a way, a disappointment. Before accepting this magnanimity we would, however, further call on Mr. Koenig and ask that we be furnished with a list of the 'many irregularities' that, as asserted in the morning papers, he has found. It is our right to know if there are such irregularities, and to demand from the person who clams to have such information that he transmit it to us.

"Our understanding is that out of the entire 8,000 petitioners only two names were found that should not have been on the petition. It is for this reason that we ask Mr. Koenig to kindly furnish us with the list of the 'irregularities.'"

Roosevelt Boom Outside.

Medill McCormack, who saw Col. Roosevelt at Sagamore Hill on Sunday, dropped in at the city headquarters long enough yesterday to make a statement.

"In New Mexico we have no organization and practically no work was done in behalf of Col. Roosevelt's candidacy," said he. "Nevertheless the Roosevelt sentiment in the State was so strong that the convention elected eight delegates, of whom seven were favorable to Col. Roosevelt.

"In the interest of harmony, on account of the local fight, the delegates were uninstructed. This, coupled with the Oklahoma convention, clearly indicates that in the States where people are able to obtain an expression of their choice Roosevelt delegates will be elected."

Additional figures purporting to show the trend of sentiment in Illinois for Col. Roosevelt's nomination were received by the committee from Chicago yesterday and given out. Here they are:

"Of the 4,136 precinct committeemen nearly 3,000 have been heard from, and Roosevelt is more than a 10 to 1 favorite, not only with the Republicans in those precincts, but with the committeemen themselves. A big majority of the committeemen in each of the seventy-seven of the 108 counties have gone on record as favoring the Colonel's nomination.

"Champaign and Livingston Counties, the homes, respectively, of Congressman William B. McKinley, President Taft's manager, and Frank L. Smith, the National and State Chairman of the Taft Campaign Committee in Illinois, show that a substantial majority of the precinct committeemen favor Roosevelt's nomination. Despite the open alliance between Senator Lorimer and President Taft and the neutral position thus far of Gov. Deneen and a large number of his influential friends, these conditions prevail throughout the entire State.

Expect to Get Minnesota.

"In the Seventeenth Congressional District, the home of Mr. Smith, the vote of the precinct committeemen to select delegates to the National Convention gave Roosevelt 86, as against 18 for Taft. 'Joe' Cannon's Congressional District, the Eighteenth, gave Roosevelt 90 and Taft 36, and the Nineteenth, the home of Mr. McKinley, caused the biggest surprise of all, with 129 voting for the Colonel and Taft receiving 25 votes."

Word also came from Chicago that the Republican organization in Minnesota is about to break away from President Taft. Frank Knox of the National Roosevelt Executive Committee sent a message saying:

"We secured from Gov. Eberhart his approval of a preferential Presidential primary in Minnesota, and as the Governor is a Taft man, this is particularly significant, inasmuch as the State Central Committee is in sympathy with him and usually acts in conformity with his desires.

"Therefore, as he has approved the Presidential primary, it is very reasonable to assume that the State Central Committee will provide for one. And I may say, from my observation of conditions in Minnesota and backed up by all our reports from there and by the polls conducted by the leading Minnesota newspapers, that a preferential primary will give Minnesota overwhelmingly to Roosevelt."

It was stated that a poll conducted by the St. Paul Dispatch resulted as follows:

Roosevelt	10,121
La Follette	5,088
Bryan	1,470
Taft	930

Word also came from Gifford Pinchot, who is stumping North Dakota, that the sentiment for the Colonel is boundless.

The Colonel's Primary Boomerang.

Another statement attacking Col. Roosevelt's stand regarding the primary law in this State was issued yesterday at Republican State headquarters, with the approval of Chairman William Barnes, Jr. It said in part:

> At Republican State headquarters to-day the continued and persistent misrepresentation by Theodore Roosevelt over the enactment of the primary law of New York, created not only surprise even to those who are conversant with his idiosyncrasies, but general amusement. In view of the record the Colonel's repeated asseverations that "the machines of both parties co-operated to draw up a primary law which imposes upon the people a system so cumbrous and so involved as to make it impossible to get a fair expression of public sentiment" and "prevent the people from controlling party organization" are totally devoid of foundation.

The statement goes on to say that not a Republican member of the Legislature voted for the bill; that it was denounced in both Houses by Republican representatives, and that it was scored by Leader Barnes. Col. Roosevelt, the statement continues, sent a telegram on June 23, 1910, to Lloyd C. Griscom, then Chairman of the Republican County Committee, in which he said that "the Cobb bill with the amendments proposed by you meets the needs of the situation." "The records," says the statement, "proves that in spite of the telegram, the great power of Gov. Hughes, the concentrated influence of admirers and followers of both Col. Roosevelt and Gov. Hughes, the Republicans in the Assembly killed the Cobb bill, which was favored by both, as cumbrous and involved. The present primary law is substantially the Cobb bill."

ROOSEVELT'S STUMPING TOUR.

Doesn't Fancy Too Many Cart-Tail Speeches—To Answer Taft Managers.

Special to The New York Times.

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., March 11.—Col. Roosevelt, upon his return to Oyster Bay this afternoon said that there had not been any definite plans made for his stumping tour of the country. He expressed the hope that he would not be called upon to make many speeches, and that he would dodge if possible a long "cart tail campaign." The Colonel will soon make public an analysis of his views on the control of big business, and will incorporate them into a speech he will deliver on the tour, along with his views of preferential primaries. The Colonel is thoroughly aroused by the accusations that have been made against him by the Taft managers concerning the Harvester Trust of which George W. Perkins is a leading director, and other corporations, and it is his intention to clearly define his position. It is expected that he will give a definite idea of what legislation he believes is necessary for the control of the trust.

Despite what the Colonel has said about cutting short his speaking tour his lieutenants freely express the belief that once he is started on the road he will invade all districts where it is pointed out to him that his presence may win the fight. His only engagements up to date are the address he will deliver at the St. Patrick's day dinner in Huntington, L. I., on the evening of March 18, and an address to the Brotherhood of Engineers in Gettysburg, on Decoration Day.

Col. Roosevelt went to Mineola again this morning to appear as a juror at the Nassau County Court House, but was excused for the day, and hurried on to New York by automobile, where he made an unexpected visit at the Outlook office. Before leaving Mineola he ran the gauntlet of moving picture men and his admirers will soon have the opportunity of getting a glimpse of him at the theatres in New York. The Colonel was in the best of humor and submitted without protest to the camera men.

Col. Roosevelt's callers at the Outlook office to-day included Alexander Moore, editor of the Pittsburgh Leader; Frederick W. Whitridge, President of the Third Avenue Elevated Railway Company, and Alderman George A. Morrison, of the Fifty-ninth District, in Brooklyn, who has come out for the Colonel.

Some one congratulated Col. Roosevelt yesterday on his letter to Senator Dixon in regard to the direct primaries, and he replied:

"I'm glad you like it. Now we'll see whether the people sit on the bleachers or not."

Congressman Campbell one of the Taft supporters, had said that the attitude of the Roosevelt men on the primaries was like "an appeal from the umpire to the bleachers."

CALLS IT ROOSEVELT POLITICS.

To This the Rev. Mr. Remensnyder Lays Defeat of Treaties.

Declaring that the amendment of the peace treaties by the Senate was in reality nothing more than a bit of petty politics played by Roosevelt's friends and the Democrats to harm President Taft on the eve of a Presidential campaign, the Rev. Junius B. Remensnyder, President of the Peace Commission of the Federal Council of Churches and President of the General Synod of the Evangelical Lutheran Church, said last night that Christian people should unite at once to force the treaties through in their original form.

"The campaign for arbitration," said the Rev. Mr. Remensnyder at his home, 900 Madison Avenue, "must be taken up with more energy than ever. The campaign is not in the hands of visionaries, but of moderate, judicious thinkers and workers. This temporary repulse is but a presage of final victory.

"Deplorable as is the Senate's action, amounting to a practical rejection, there are several things to be considered. First, President Taft exhibited genuine moral courage. Second, the vote of 42 to 40 on the main question indicated that victory lay almost within the grasp of the right side.

"The Senate, we believe, has disregarded the sentiment of the Nation. From public societies, from the press, from all the great churches, from mass meetings, there has arisen a demand for the enactment of these treaties. The movement cannot be successfully resisted."

CARNEGIE ADMITS HE HELPED.

But Says Roosevelt Didn't Ask for Cash for His African Hunt.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., March 11.—Andrew Carnegie contributed money to help defray expenses involved in Col. Roosevelt's African expedition, but the contribution was made after Mr. Carnegie had talked to Col. Wolcott of the Smithsonian Institution. Col. Roosevelt never asked Mr. Carnegie to contribute a cent for any purpose.

This information is contained in a statement made here to-day by Mr. Carnegie. He does not say what sum he contributed.

Mr. Carnegie said:

"My attention to the need of funds was called by Col. Wolcott of the Smithsonian Institution, and I contributed, feeling honored in doing so. Col. Roosevelt has never—either as President or as a private citizen—requested me to contribute one penny for anything, but, in return for the donation he presented the Carnegie Institute at Pittsburgh with some of the trophies of his hunt, for which I am his debtor for life.

"If that story [that Carnegie gave Roosevelt $20,000 for the African trip] has been brought out as an attack on Col. Roosevelt, in my opinion, it will only benefit him."

In Col. Roosevelt's book of his African hunt he frankly says that he could not have paid the expenses of the scientific end of his trip had it not been for the generous aid of Mr. Carnegie, Oscar Straus, Leigh Hunt, and other wealthy men.

STOTESBURY A DELEGATE.

John Wanamaker Also Chosen—Flinn, Roosevelt Boomer, Assailed.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, March 11.—The regular Republican organization leaders made public to-day the names of the men who will go as Taft delegates to the National Convention. While there are some politicians on the list it is essentially a list of business men. John Wanamaker and Edward T. Stotesbury have been chosen to represent the same Congressional district.

Mr. Stotesbury has signified his willingness to go as a delegate and to do everything in his power to make President Taft the party nominee. Mr. Wanamaker has not given an answer as yet but it is understood that he was sounded by friends of Senator Penrose prior to his name being placed on the delegates' list and his answer was far from being a denial. They will represent the Second District. In this same district Charlemagne Tower and Howard B. French have been selected as alternates.

Following a meeting yesterday between ex-State Senator William Flinn, of Pittsburgh, the leading Roosevelt boomer in this State, and several of his local representatives, the Taft leaders here announced to-day that Flinn and the other Roosevelt boomers are simply using the Colonel as a tool in an attempt to elect legislative candidates.

Mrs. Schenk to be Tried Again.

Special to The New York Times.

WHEELING, West Va., March 11.—Mrs. Laura Farnsworth Schenk is to be tried again on the charge of administering arsenic to her husband, John O. Schenk. Prosecutor Attorney Mandlan has agreed to March 23 as a day on which to set the date for the trial at the May term of the Criminal Court. Counsel for Mrs. Schenk made a desperate but unsuccessful effort to have the case stricken off the calendar.

PARTY PLEDGES KEPT BY TAFT, SAYS NAGEL

Worked On Despite Republican Critics Who "Have Filled the Air with Nostrums."

WARNS OF RECALL'S DANGER

Says Progressives Want the Party to Jump Off the Political Horizon—Cheered in Indianapolis.

Special to The New York Times.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., March 11.—Secretary Charles Nagel of the Department of Commerce and Labor was welcomed at Tomlinson Hall to-night by one of the largest crowds that ever assembled here at a night political meeting. For an hour before the hall was opened men stood in the rain in order to be certain of favorable seats, and after the stage and aisles had been packed more than 1,000 persons, many of them women, were compelled to leave because there was no room.

The Secretary was met at the railway station by a committee of the Taft Club, headed by its President, A. C. Harris, Minister to Austria-Hungary under President McKinley, and was escorted to the Columbia Club, where hundreds of Republicans and many leading Democrats called upon him in the afternoon.

Mr. Nagel expressed surprise that so many Democrats seemed to be interested in a Republican advocate of the nomination of President Taft, and was assured that there were many such in the State who will vote for Taft if he is the party nominee.

The Democratic ovation to the Secretary, however, was construed by other Republicans to be a protest against the initiative, referendum, and recall, advocated by Roosevelt and Gov. Woodrow Wilson, and it is said that assurances have been given by many of them that on such an issue they would vote for Taft.

Secretary Nagel's speech was received with much enthusiasm and was frequently cheered. While the record of the Taft Administration was listened to attentively, it was the speaker's characterization of the new political fads that received the loudest outbursts of applause.

Praises Taft's Administration.

Secretary Nagel lauded President Taft's Administration as a complete fulfillment of all the Republican platform pledges of 1908, and a strict continuation of the policies inaugurated by President Roosevelt, and made a vigorous attack upon the advocates of such governmental changes as the initiative, referendum, and recall. The Secretary declared that public men were attempting to "confuse the public mind"; that they were "busy making promises to which they cannot be successfully held"; that the recall of Judges would "make trimmers of men," and "deter men of independence and capacity from accepting positions of trust."

"It was conceivable fifty years ago that as a result of our internal strife there might have been two republics," he said. "It is conceivable to-day that if some of the suggestions impatiently put forward at this time are to prevail the question may arise whether or not there shall be one republic. Against such a contingency it behooves every citizen to set his face in absolute disregard of every other consideration, personal or political."

The efforts of President Taft to carry out the pledges of the party, he said, had brought no aid from his Republican critics.

"For the last three years," said Secretary Nagel, "during a period of unfailing struggle to realize and bring into action every pledge that was made in the name of the Republican Party, there has been uttered scarcely a word of approval by them of these things accomplished. Scarcely a hand was raised to help lift the burden which the party, by its consent and approval, had assumed.

No Offer to Help Taft.

"Instead, they have filled the air with nostrums, the acceptance of which they pronounce to be the sole test of the progressive spirit. Instead of aiding to fulfill what has been solemnly promised in the name of the people, it is proclaimed that the initiative, the referendum, and the recall of officials, including Judges, and of judicial decisions, shall from now on be the test of progressive Republicanism."

Secretary Nagel denounced the charge that President Taft had abandoned the principles of the last Administration. He declared that not one of those things for which critics of the Administration were now contending had been embraced in the last Republican platform.

"If the recall of Judges and decisions had been embodied in that platform," he said, "it is safe to say that there were men then, as there are men now, who could not stand upon such a plank and who could not support their favorite candidate upon such a platform because they would regard these principles as subversive of the fundamental principles of representative government."

To President Roosevelt, said Secretary Nagel, belonged the credit for arousing the people to the full value of the laws to protect them against monopolies and combinations. Col. Roosevelt first brought the inter-State commerce laws into full effect, he said, and President Taft had devoted himself to carrying out the pledges and policies inaugurated by Mr. Roosevelt, and indorsed in the National platform of 1908.

Pledges Kept, He Says.

"The pledges of that platform have been kept," declared Secretary Nagel.

"Perhaps never in the history of the Republican Party have so many distinct pledges of a platform been redeemed within one administration. It has been carried out with respect to its specific promises and according to its spirit. The President has by every act redeemed the pledges of the platform and his own promises."

Further remedies were necessary, said Secretary Nagel, to make corporation control effective, but President Taft's critics were giving him no aid in getting such remedies, he said.

"This task is still unfinished," said Mr. Nagel. "It is pressing for decision. It were better that we apply ourselves to the practical performance of so important a pledge, than to fill the public ear with vague promises for the fulfillment of visionary desire. The initiative, referendum, and recall are advocated by men who are ambitious for National office, and generally avoided by men who have to do with local affairs. Each is busy making promises to which he cannot be successfully held."

The adoption of those proposals, he said, would mean that "the Constitution, to all intents and purposes, when its guarantees are most needed, is abolished."

"It means that the determination of what is right, and, therefore, what is constitutional, must be left to the author of the nostrum itself," said Secretary Nagel. "It means one-man power; as pure democracy always has meant and always will mean. It is not progressive; it is reactionary; for by its teaching every people that have ever experimented with these doctrines have gone to their destruction.

"It is one thing to make complaints; it is quite another to provide the relief. It is one thing to entertain the people with declamation; it is another thing to formulate a rule which is calculated to promote the welfare of the people. In the past we have never denied that there was much truth in Mr. Bryan's complaints; but we have denounced his remedies. In the field of promises we have conceded him a monopoly. To-day we have to confess that critics in our own ranks have not only broadly accepted and enlarged upon his complaints, but have pre-empted and expanded the doctrine of his remedies."

Secretary Nagel declared that the Republican Party had always been progressive, but that "now we are asked to prove our allegiance to progressive principles by jumping off the political horizon."

NEW ROOSEVELT CHALLENGE.

Penrose Urged to Put Taft's Name on Pennsylvania Primary Ballot.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 11.—The fight between the Roosevelt and Taft partisans over the question of selection of delegates to the Republican National Convention by primaries brought out a new challenge to-day. It was from John T. Croat, Chairman of the Philadelphia Roosevelt Committee, to Senator Boies Penrose, Field Marshal of the Pennsylvania Republican organization.

Mr. Croat sent a long telegram to Senator Penrose giving notice that Roosevelt candidates for delegates would take advantage of the Pennsylvania law and have the name of Roosevelt printed in the space at the right of their names. He challenged Senator Penrose to have the name of President Taft printed at the right of the names of the Taft candidates.

The Roosevelt managers here are feeling very happy over their reports from Pennsylvania and declare that they will take a substantial majority of the delegates from that State away from the Penrose organization, at the April primaries. The Penrose men retorted that nothing of the kind will happen and as a reason for their confidence in carrying the primaries cynically cite the fact that they control the election boards. The Pennsylvania primary law contains a provision which prevents a voter from voting at a primary any other ticket than the one he voted at the last previous election. If challenged he must make affidavit in order to get his primary ballot.

The organization men say that most of the Pennsylvanians who may be expected to vote for Col. Roosevelt at the primaries voted the Keystone ticket at the last election. The organization men know these Keystoners and expect to challenge them at the primaries and force them to swear in their Republican primary ballots, or else prevent them from voting.

Senator Penrose said to-night that he would make no reply to Mr. Croat's challenge. He added that the organization had selected twelve good men for delegates from Philadelphia, and that they would be elected without indicating their Presidential preference.

Apparently satisfied with the results of his three-day visit to Toledo and Chicago, President Taft got back to Washington late to-day. From Harrisburg to Washington his train traveled as a special. At Altoona and the Pennsylvania capital crowds were out to greet him.

"The reception accorded me by the people of Toledo and Chicago puts me under a deep sense of obligation to them. The discussion of questions of government brought forth many sympathetic assurances and the American citizens of foreign birth or descent, of whom several great audiences were composed, seemed especially interested and concerned in the outlines of constitutional problems. The spirit of optimism, of faith in our institutions, of confidence one in another, is as strongly in evidence to-day as at any time in the history of our country."

The next trip so far arranged for the President begins next Sunday night and will take him to Boston and New Hampshire.

VIRGINIA CERTAIN FOR TAFT.

Convention Meets at Richmond To-day—Two More Tennessee Delegates.

Special to The New York Times.

ROANOKE, Va., March 11.—While the contesting factions from the Third and Sixth Districts will lead a fight for Col. Roosevelt in the Republican State Convention, which convenes to-morrow noon in the Academy of Music in this city, there is every prospect that the delegates to the National Convention will go instructed to cast their ballots for President Taft so long as his name remains before the Chicago Convention.

Congressman Bascom Slemp, Alvah R. Martin of Norfolk, Robert H. Angell of Roanoke, and possibly Senator John Paul of Rockingham will be named delegates to the Chicago Convention. Mr. Slemp will be selected State Chairman.

The Tenth District Convention was held at Buena Vista to-day, and the State and National delegates were instructed for President Taft.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., March 11.—The Seventh District Republican Convention at Franklin instructed to-day for President Taft. Marion Richardson and Charles S. Hopkins were chosen as delegates.

Senate, by 18 to 15, Adopts House Bill Permitting Voters to Choose Delegates.

ONLY REPUBLICANS OPPOSE IT

Democrats Certain That Gov. Foss Will Sign the Measure—Fixes April 30 as Date of the Primaries.

BOSTON, March 11.—Presidential preferential primaries on April 30 for the election of all delegates to the National political conventions are practically assured by the passage of the Primary bill in the Senate to-day, in concurrence with the House. The vote was 18 to 15, with six pairs. If there is no change in sentiment in either branch it is expected that the bill will be laid before Gov. Foss for his approval before the last of the week.

The bill wipes out all conventions for the selection of delegates to the National Conventions, and the thirty-six Massachusetts delegates will go to Chicago and Baltimore with the knowledge of the voters as to their Presidential and Vice Presidential preferences.

The Senate last week passed a bill limiting the preferential feature to district delegates, but the House amended the bill so as to include delegates at large. To-day the Senate accepted the House amendment by a vote in which the opposition was made up entirely of Republicans.

The Republican State Committee had already set April 2 for the caucuses and April 11 for the State Convention.

The Democrats of the Legislature expect that Gov. Foss will sign the bill.

DR. HIRSCH FOR SUFFRAGE.

Rabbi of Sinai Temple, Chicago, Declares Women Should Vote.

CHICAGO, March 11.—Dr. Emil G. Hirsch in his Sunday sermon at the new Sinai Temple referred to the question of women voting as "no matter to laugh at."

It was suffrage Sunday in Chicago, and a score or more of ministers made the question the subject of their sermons, among them Bishop Fallows of St. Paul's Reformed Episcopal Church. Dr. Hirsch's subject was "Shall Women Vote?"

"It is no question to laugh at," he said. "A leisure class is necessary to uncorrupt government. A man to give his whole time, labor, and devotion to his country, must be free from the burden of providing his daily bread. Women constitute the leisure class here, and have a wide knowledge and understanding of the deep questions of the day, and should have a right to vote on them."

He paid a high tribute to Jane Addams and Mrs. Ella Flagg Young, Superintendent of Schools, as examples of women who were highly capable of exercising the right of voting.

Bishop Fallows said: "There is not a right belonging to men that is not the right of woman."

PEKING OUTBREAK AGAINST REPUBLIC

Old-Style Troops and Many Citizens Tear Down New Flags —Trouble Quelled.

ANARCHY IN THE NORTH

Doubt Whether, Even if Troops Are Sent from South, They Could Restore Order.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Tuesday, March 12.—The Daily Telegraph's Peking correspondent says:

"Summary executions continue to be a grim feature of each day. It is officially admitted that thousands of heads have fallen in the past week at Peking and Tien-Tsin.

"Only the brush of a Gustave Doré could do justice to the hideous picture which the thoroughfares often present. Sometimes as many as four or five corpses lie in the dust, the decapitated bodies stretched in agonized attitudes, with the heads, literally hacked from the shoulders, remaining where they rolled. The very mules and ponies snort and refuse to approach those terrible objects. Only the rabble stands and gloats over them.

"It is an ominous feature that scarcely any of the guilty soldiers have been touched, all these miserable wretches being the mere refuse of the city."

PEKING, March 11.—Armed peace holds sway throughout the city. The legation quarter is closed and cannon have been mounted on the walls.

Yesterday the old-style troops began disorders, and were ordered to-day to proceed to Tung-Ho. They tore down the republican flags a few hours before the inauguration of Yuan Shi-Kai as President of the Republic. Many of the citizens followed suit, and for a time the authorities were confronted with a serious situation.

The Manchu garrison and part of the Third Division are now acting as a bodyguard to President Yuan.

The Manchus hold the site of the destroyed gate to the Imperial City with Maxims, permitting only merchants to enter.

Shooting occurs occasionally, and decapitations daily. Frequently at nighttime fires in the hills are visible from the city walls; probably the houses of farmers are being looted.

Children are remaining in the legation quarter. If the leading men were not able to take refuge behind a foreign gun whenever trouble occurred, peace might come more quickly.

For several weeks past repetitions of the stories of anarchy, atrocities, and suffering have been received from all the northern provinces. The legations are of the opinion that the Nanking Cabinet is not capable of re-establishing order unless the republican armies are brought to the north, and they question the Cabinet's ability to assemble sufficient force for that purpose.

A Swedish expedition which has been to Northern Shen-Si gathering together the foreigners has returned to Peking. The head of the expedition says that the Chinese guilds at Kalgan, 125 miles northwest of Peking, paid the Manchu division in barracks there 26,000 taels for not looting the city, but that the guilds are now taking measures for defense in the fear that the troops may break the agreement.

PEKING, March 11.—One of the first acts of President Yuan Shi-Kai after taking the oath of office yesterday was to signalize the definite inauguration of the republic by pardoning all prisoners except murderers and robbers and by the remission of all overdue land taxes.

The manifesto proclaiming this act of grace on the part of the new President also announces that the old Chinese laws will be applied temporarily for the present unless they are contrary to the spirit of republicanism.

The document contains an exhortation to all officials to unite in the promotion of the welfare of the republic.

NANKING, March 11.—The Constitution of the new Republic of China, as finally approved to-day, places the supreme power in the hands of the National Assembly. A notable feature is that all the acts of the President require the approval of the Assembly, and this body also has complete control over the Cabinet. The Assembly elects the President and Vice President and may pass any law over the Executive's veto.

Dr. Sun Yat-Sen will turn over the Great Seal of the presidential office to Tang Shao-Yi, Yuan's personal representative, as soon as the details of establishing the constitutional government can be accomplished. Pending this, Dr. Sun continues to hold office as actual acting President.

GERMAN PORT NEAR PANAMA.

Said to be Fruit Station Without Passing of Sovereignty Over Tract.

WASHINGTON, March 11.—The State Department has been watching for the last five months the negotiations of a German steamship and fruit concern for a coaling station on the north shore of Colombia, near the Panama Canal, but has failed to find evidence to warrant the assumption that the movement is anything but a purely busines undertaking and entirely unobjectionable to the United States government.

It is said there has been no suggestion of the passing of sovereignty over the proposed wharves or tracts of land and therefore the Monroe Doctrine has not in any way been called into question.

Various foreign steamship lines, it is pointed out at the State Department, already have coaling stations in South America, held under lease or sale, but without the passing of sovereignty.

NORTH GERMAN LLOYD LINE

Profits Greater Than Previous Year —An Increased Dividend.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

BREMEN, March 11.—The North German Lloyd Line in the financial year 1911 earned over $10,000,000 profit.

The management proposes a dividend of 5 per cent., writing off over $5,000,000 and carrying $750,000 to the reserve, thus placing the company in an exceptionally strong position.

BREMEN, March 11.—The annual report of the North German Lloyd Company was submitted at a meeting of the directors to-day. The report shows gross profits for the year of 41,500,000 marks ($10,375,000), an increase of 3,400,000 marks ($850,000). A dividend of five per cent. was recommended, as against three per cent. last year.

The report says that the reduction in the receipts due to a falling off in the North American passenger traffic was more than counterbalanced by increased freight earnings in the South American and Australian services.

The agents of the North German Lloyd Line in this city announced yesterday that the Directors had decided to recommend a dividend of 5 per cent., an increase of 2 per cent. over last year, at the general meeting, to be held in Bremen on April 3. The report showed that the profits of the year 1911 amounted to $10,375,000, against $9,500,000 in 1910, a gain of $875,000.

It was said the profits were largely due to the improved freight conditions to South America and Australia, as the North American passenger traffic showed a falling off.

The various reserve funds of the company have been increased materially. The general expense fund was increased to $5,175,000, as against $5,100,000 in 1910, and in the figures for 1911 is included $375,000 for extra depreciation of seagoing vessels. The insurance fund was increased by the addition of $365,000, the reserve fund by $100,000, the renewal fund by $225,000, and the extra reserve fund by $68,750. The increases in the reserve funds are approximately $1750,000 in 1911, as against $500,000 in 1910.

The financial position of the company has been considerably strengthened, as the indebtedness decreased from $9,100,000 at the beginning of 1911 to $4,875,000 at the close of the year, while the debts owing to the company on Jan. 1, 1912, amounted to $5,525,000, as against $3,875,000 on Jan. 1, 1911.

KING WANTS HIS $600,000.

Alfonso Has Not Relinquished Claim To Bequests By Mayor of Toulon.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, March 11.—In October last Albert Sapene, formerly Mayor of a small town near Toulon, bequeathed to King Alfonso $600,000. The testator's next of kin expected that his Majesty would renounce all claim to the estate, but Alfonso was represented to-day in an action brought in connection with the will.

The relatives maintain that Sapene was insane when the will was drawn. The verdict will be given in a week.

TO CURB PRODIGAL PRINCESS.

Sister Asks Judicial Council for Estate of Louise of Belgium.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, March 11.—Application has been made in the Paris courts in behalf of Princess Stéphanie of Belgium for the appointment of a judicial council to administer the estate of her sister, Princess Louise of Belgium, the eldest daughter of the late King Leopold.

The liquidation of her father's estate is not yet ended, but already $1,300,000, which is due to Princess Louise, has been garnisheed, placing the estate under a judicial council is imperative, the more so as it is expected that she will receive another fortune from her aunt, Princess Charlotte, the unfortunate widow of Emperor Maximilian. The latter is mentally affected and living in an isolated chateau near Brussels. She is now 71 years old, and her fortune, estimated at $10,000,000, will be divided among six heirs, unless Princess Charlotte has made special bequests.

It is feared that Princess Louise will take advantage of these expectations to run up more huge debts. In order to prevent this happening Princess Stéphanie is asking the courts to administer her sister's estate.

ITALY MAY EXTEND WAR.

Expected Result of the Powers' Effort Toward Mediation.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, March 11.—A telegram from Rome to The Chicago Daily News says:

"The Ambassadors of Russia, France, England, Germany, and Austria visited the Marquis Di San Giuliano, the Foreign Minister, on Saturday and asked him on what conditions Italy would accept mediation in the war with Turkey. His reply is not yet known, but it is certain that this country will not accept mediation unless Turkey recognizes unconditionally Italian sovereignty in Tripoli.

"In spite of the agreement of the powers to offer mediation on lines suggested by Russia, the attempt is not likely to be successful, as the powers directly interested in the war are unwilling to bring pressure to bear upon Turkey, which is determined to continue the war. On the other hand, Italy has not suggested and does not need mediation.

"If the attempt fails it is bound to enlarge the sphere of hostilities, and the war may be intensified instead of being stopped."

PRINCE PREFERS SAVAGE LIFE

Troubetzkoy Would Rather Live in Africa Than Be a Nobleman.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., March 11.—Prince Paul Troubetzkoy, the Russian artist, who arrived here yesterday to arrange his sculpture exhibition at the Art Museum, will leave for New York to-morrow to carve a bust of John D. Rockefeller. In explaining his philosophy, he said:

"I would rather be an African savage than a Russian Prince or any other kind of nobleman. There is no difference between you and me, or any other man, as far as nobility is concerned.

"The tendency of civilization is bad, as you may see by looking at our factories and other institutions where men's lives are worn away.

"I seldom read, because I want to get my impressions from nature myself without the influence of anybody's opinion.

"I don't eat meat, because in doing so I might be feeding on the flesh of a better animal than myself.

"I like you Americans for your independence and originality. In Europe the people accept the opinions of critics and do not think for themselves."

GERMANS TO TAKE UP AMERICAN ATHLETICS

University Movement to Supplant Sword Contests and Beer Bouts by Legitimate Sports.

EMPEROR INDORSES PLAN

First Intercollegiate Track and Field Meeting Will Be Held in Leipsic Next Year.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

BERLIN, March 11. — Initial steps were taken in Berlin last night for the introduction of athletics on American lines into the leading German universities.

German university men hitherto have confined "sports" practically to sabre fighting and beer drinking contests. Serious comprehensive efforts will now be made to popularize field, track, and aquatic athletics by means of intercollegiate competitions.

The movement has the cordial support of the Emperor and the Crown Prince, who often have attempted to persuade German students to dedicate to legitimate sports some of the time and energy traditionally concentrated to the bouts with the flowing bowl.

Representatives of fourteen universities, ten technical colleges, two veterinary schools, the Royal Agricultural College, and two mining academies attended yesterday's meeting. They agreed to exhaust all means at their command to arouse the enthusiasm of the German students for the new idea. It was the general opinion that various Governments which exercise control over the universities and colleges ought to finance to some degree student athletics.

The meeting resolved to organize at regular intervals intercollegiate competitions to be called "German University Olympias." The first meeting will be held, it is planned, in Leipsic in 1913. Impetus to the new movement was given in a large measure by Dr. Rudolf Tombo of Columbia University, who electrified German University men last year with a series of illustrated lectures depicting the glories of life on the river, on the baseball diamond, gridiron, and track in America.

SPANISH CABINET OUT.

Canalejas to Remain Premier, but to Rearrange the Ministry.

MADRID, March 11.—The Spanish Cabinet, which was reorganized in April, 1911, resigned to-day.

This action was due to a conflict of opinion which arose between the Minister of Public Works, Senor Gasset, and other members of the cabinet, resulting in the resignation of Senor Gasset.

Premier Canalejas then decided that a complete reconstruction of the Ministry was necessary. The King assured the Premier of his uninterrupted confidence, and gave him a free hand to rearrange his Cabinet as he deemed fit.

HOME RULE BILL IN A MONTH.

Asquith Promises Its Introduction on April 9 or 10.

LONDON, March 11.—The Home Rule bill for Ireland is to be introduced in the House of Commons on April 9 or April 10.

Premier Asquith made this definite promise in the House of Commons this afternoon, adding:

"This is the date when it had always been intended and contemplated by the Government to introduce the Home Rule bill. I have always thought that this bill, having regard to its magnitude and complexity, is by far the most important to be brought in this session, and that it ought to be produced under conditions which will secure adequate Parliamentary discussion."

OWNER OF LA PRENSA DEAD.

Dr. Paz, Proprietor of Buenos Aires Daily, Expires at Monte Carlo.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

PARIS, March 11.—A notable figure has passed away in the person of Dr. José Paz, proprietor of the great Buenos Aires daily, La Prensa.

Dr. Paz died at his villa of Mireflores, Monte Carlo, yesterday.

Señor Paz, who was the fonuder of La Prensa, the leading paper of South America, was 69 years of age. His work will be continued by his son, Ezequiel Paz.

Buenos Aires, where La Prensa is published, has the distinction of having the most polyglot collection of newspapers in the world. There are 472 publications in various languages in the city. Twenty-two of these papers are Italian, eight French, eight English, eight German, and one Arabic. Señor Paz was recognized as the dean of the journalists of South America, and also as a leader of progressive thought and constructive journalism. His family has been identified with the fortunes of the Argentine Republic since the beginning of the last century.

THINK THE TREATIES SPOILED

American Senate's Action Disappoints France and Japan.

PARIS, March 11.—The action of the United States Senate in regard to the arbitration treaties is regarded in semi-official circles here as tantamount to their virtual rejection. There is some hope, however, that new negotiations may be begun and that at a later period the United States Senate may restore the general arbitration treaties with Great Britain and France to a form which will be worth while.

The Foreign Office says that there is no truth in the report which has been published that Jean Jules Jusserand, the French Ambassador at Washington, is about to be transferred.

TOKIO, March 11.—The fate of the general arbitration treaties in the United States Senate has caused great disappointment here. Deep regret is expressed by many influential personages here that Japan gave her friendly consent to the modification of the Anglo-Japanese alliance by the introduction of Article IV., which says:

"Should either high contracting party conclude a treaty of general arbitration with a third power, it is agreed that nothing in this agreement shall entail on such contracting party an obligation to go to war with the power with whom such treaty of arbitration is in force."

This friendly action on the part of Japan may, it is pointed out, prove fruitless.

FOREIGN DISQUIET LESSENS

John Barrett Warns Against Intervention, and Urges This Nation to be Patient Toward Mexico.

MEXICO CITY, March 11.—A feeling of optimism pervaded the capital to-day, affecting foreigners and Mexicans alike. The demonstration of loyalty to the Government yesterday had the effect of stiffening the back of Government officials and private citizens, and there was a material increase in the number of enlistments for army service.

Everywhere the opinion was expressed that the fate of the revolution depends on the developments of the next few days, near Torreon. Renewed confidence in the ability of the Federals to deliver a crushing blow to Orozco was shown. Government officials say that in addition to the 2,500 men already in Torreon as many more can be equipped and sent there if necessary.

Reports from near Torreon are that volunteers recently recruited in neighboring towns are receiving arms and being entrained for Torreon, where Gen. Gonzales Salaz is mobilizing his forces.

Gen. José Delgado, who has been in command of the Isthmus of Telhuantepec, has been ordered north.

The panicky feeling of last week among foreigners is apparently gone, and those who remain seem to think there is little chance of harm befalling persons in the capital. This is further shown by the falling off in the demand for railroad accommodations.

A plot for the escape of forty or more prisoners from the Santiago military prison, where Gen. Reyes is confined, was frustrated to-day. The plotters were all ex-commissioned officers under court-martial sentence.

Eight hundred rebels were routed by 200 Federals in a street battle at Culiacan, capital of Sinaloa, according to a report received by the Department of the Interior.

OROZCO STAYS AT CHIHUAHUA.

Rebel Chief Is Apparently in No Hurry to Move South.

Special to The New York Times.

CHIHUAHUA, March 11.—Gen. Orozco is still in Chihuahua and has made no effort to get away. He has sent Gens. Campa and Salazar to Santa Rosalia to encounter any military obstacles the Federal Government may throw in his way.

He has about 3,000 soldiers who are armed. The recruits, coming in from the western part of the State, are all unarmed and there is no means of providing them with rifles.

Waiting for him at Torreon is a strong body of Federals armed with machine guns and artillery.

EL PASO, Texas, March 1.—Reports from Chihuahua say the advancing rebels are meeting with so much delay from burned bridges that Gen. Crozco may not be able to bring his army to Torreon for attacking until after the heavy federal garrison is able to crush the rebels in the Laguna district, from whom Orozco has planned to get reinforcements.

The Federals promise resistance at Santa Rosalia and Jiminez, where, though few in numbers, they are well fortified.

Col. Antonio Rajas and command from Juarez reached Chihuahua to-day, making the garrison about 1,400 men, with 800 already moving south on trains as an advance guard.

Mrs. and Miss Roosevelt's Tour.

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica, March 11.—Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt and her daughter, Miss Ethel Roosevelt, who arrived here last Thursday, returned to-day to Port Limon, whence they will sail. During their visit to the Costa Rican capital the wife and daughter of the ex-President of the United States were the recipients of much attention from the Government and people.

SUBWAY CONTRACTS DEFENDED IN BRIEFS

Service Commission Argues Companies Are Agents Carrying Out a City Purpose.

CITY NOT LENDING ITS CREDIT

Offset for Figures Shearn Put In for Injunction Seekers—Real Estate Men Approve Plans.

Briefs were filed yesterday with Justice Blackmar in the Brooklyn Supreme Court in the Subway injunction suits. That for the Public Service Commission, which was signed by George S. Coleman, Oliver C. Semple, and Leroy T. Harkness, relied in great part on the decision in the Sun Publishing Company's case that subways may be fairly built by the city as coming within the statutory meaning of "a city purpose."

From this it was argued that it was perfectly within the Constitutional powers of the city to lease out its lines to contractors for operation, and the contracting companies should be considered merely subordinate municipal agents to carry out a city purpose, for which they are entitled to compensation. The contracts now suggested with the Interborough and the Brooklyn Rapid Transit are then reviewed in the light of this contention, and it is urged that the original contracts with the Interborough had one serious defect. They did not provide for the extension of the present Subway line as necessity might arise.

In such a case, as the Interborough has been making very large profits, it has been inclined to stand to the letter of its rights, and now all the city is doing in order to get more subways and elevated extensions is to guarantee those profits in exchange for certain privileges, such as the right to order what extensions it pleases and to gain possession, if it desires, of one of the "legs" of the completed "H" subway. The difference between the Interborough and the Brooklyn Rapid Transit offer is expressed as merely that between property held in fee and by leasehold title, and it is pointed out that if the city were to attempt to buy out either company it would have to pay a very much larger sum than it is expected to provide by these prospective contracts. Consequently it is argued that the city is in no sense loaning its money or credit or incurring any indebtedness for the benefit of a corporation for anything that is not a city purpose.

In addition the Public Service Commission's brief contains a set of figures as to the future earnings of the new system materially different from those brought forward by C. J. Shearn in arguing the case of J. J. Hopper. Mr. Shearn contended that not till 1924 would sufficient be earned to pay the profit guaranteed to the Interborough, and that by that time the accumulated deficit which would have to be worked off by the city would be the great sum of $25,400,000.

The commission's lawyers now put forward a separate estimate, which shows the deficit against the city will be at its maximum five years earlier, in 1919, and will then be $9,672,000, and that by 1924 by the simple operation of the enlarged Subway system it will be wiped out entirely. As a matter of fact, it is believed by some of the city officials that even these figures are more pessimistic than need be as the percentage of gross receipts which will be needed for operating expenses is steadily diminishing.

Meanwhile it does not appear likely that the Public Service Commission will take any decisive action on the Interborough's offer at its meeting to-day. It is believed that it is useless for it to go ahead till it can be certain what the courts will decide as to the constitutional points raised against the offers of the Interborough and the B. R. T., and it is by no means certain that Justice Blackmar will feel that these are definite enough as yet for him to take judicial notice of them. As the commission is hard at work in carrying out portions of the construction of the new subway which will be included in any new system by whomsoever operated, it does not feel disposed to take up contentious matters until it is certain that its decision will hold water.

A special committee of the Allied Real Estate Interests, of which W. H. Cheseborough was chairman and William C. Demorest, Walter Stabler, Irving Ruland, Theodore F. Miller, R. G. Babbage, Allan Robinson and Joseph L. Buttenweiser were members, have adopted a resolution approving of the Interborough proposal so long as the B. R. T. gets the Broadway line. In stating that this seems the only method by which the city can hope to get a subway extension within four years the committee faces the question of a possible deficit at first, and points out that as far as the Interborough proposal is concerned the objections to this are of no great account.

It says:

> Assuming that the preferential payments to the Interborough Company, proposed in the plan, are accepted by the city, and the legality of the plan sustained by the courts, the worst that could happen to the city would be that the receipt of interest upon its investment estimated at $56,000,000, might be deferred for a few years after the operation of the extended system is commenced. As this payment is cumulative, however, the city should eventually receive it, and this objection is of minor importance in comparison with the fact that in no other way can a comprehensive and satisfactory system of rapid transit for the various boroughs of the city be built and operated within a reasonable period of time. The city's financial limitations are such that it cannot provide sufficient funds to build and operate an independent system, which would afford any adequate measure of relief, for a great many years to come.

Controller Prendergast has written to the Degnon Contracting Company, suggesting that much curiosity has been excited by the beginning of its Subway construction in City Hall Park and that as it is of importance that the public should realize that this construction has actually begun, it should post a placard on its work explaining its purpose.

JUDGE MAYER HURRIES CASES

New Appointee Wants to Clear Off the Court Calendar.

Judge Julius M. Mayer took his seat for the first time yesterday on the bench of the Federal District Court. He called the jury calendar, and when adjournments were asked by lawyers for what seemed to him frivolous causes he announced that as the calendar, through the vacancy caused by the death of Judge Adams, had fallen behind, he intended to bring it up to date as soon as he could.

A lawyer sought a further adjournment of a suit for breach of contract brought by an engineer named Vermule. The defendant, it was stated, had been unlucky in his choice of counsel. The first had died and several others had fallen ill and had to give up the case.

"You had better be careful," remarked Judge Mayer to the last counsel for the defense and then refused to postpone trial.

The first case for the new Judge is the second hearing of the libel suit brought by Gabriel Astruc, agent in Paris of the Metropolitan Opera House Company, against the Star Company. The article on which a verdict is sought was written by Vance Thompson and was published on March 21, 1909. It will be tried before a jury and is likely to last several days.

MRS. JAMES A. BAILEY DIES.

Widow of the Partner of P. T. Barnum Had Sold Circus Interests.

Mrs. James A. Bailey, the widow of the partner of the late Peter T. Barnum in Barnum & Bailey's circus, died yesterday morning at Hobe Sound, near Palm Beach, Fla. She was spending the Winter there on the Snider estate, adjoining that of the late Joe Jefferson.

Ruth Louise Bailey was born in Beverly, Ohio, sixty-six years ago, and her father was a hotel proprietor there when she first met young James A. Bailey, going westward as the advance man of a small circus. Shortly after their marriage he had a small wagon show, and she went with him on the toilsome road, supervising the wardrobe of the performers and helping in every way she could. And years later, when Mr. Bailey was associated with the biggest of all circus undertakings, she always journeyed with him wherever he went, and he always went with the circus.

At his death six years ago Mrs. Bailey inherited his circus interests, which included all of the Forepaugh-Sells property, the Barnum & Bailey Circus, and an interest in the Buffalo Bill circus. Four years ago she sold the last to Pawnee Bill and all her other holdings to the Ringling Brothers.

Mrs. Bailey is survived by her brothers, Theodore McCaddon and Joseph T. McCaddon, who ventured into France with an American circus some years ago, and by two sisters, Mrs. W. F. Harper and Mrs. Anna Hutchinson, whose son, Charles R. Hutchinson, is Treasurer of the Barnum & Bailey Show to-day. These brothers and sisters were with her when she died. Mrs. Bailey, who had been troubled for some time with bronchial trouble, had taken the T. A. Snider estate at Hobe Sound, near Palm Beach, for the Winter. Her home was The Knolls, in Mount Vernon, N. Y.

OBJECTS TO ESCALATORS.

Engineer Fears They Would Endanger Passengers at Pennsylvania Station.

Objection was raised yesterday before Commissioner Cram of the Public Service Commission to the installation of a moving stairway at the new Pennsylvania station between the Long Island platforms and the Concourse, a height of 14 feet, by George Gibbs, a consulting engineer of the Pennsylvania and Long Island Railroad companies. He maintained that on days when travel was very heavy, as on aviation days, when trains are arriving every two minutes, it would be difficult to handle the crowds by a moving stairway and that there would be a chance of accident.

Commissioner Cram waved aside the statements of the railroad officials that there was an elevator up which infirm and sick people are carried, as he said that he knew through continually using the station that few people knew of the elevator's existence. E. G. Connette, transportation engineer of the commission, reported in favor of replacing the two centre stairways by escalators, although he admitted that there might be in times of crush some delay through persons striving to force their way from the moving to the stationary stairways and vice versa. The hearing was then closed.

Urges $100,000 Jefferson Memorial.

WASHINGTON, March 11.—A hundred-thousand-dollar roadway and memorial arch for the home of Thomas Jefferson is proposed in a bill introduced in the House to-day by Representative Flood of Virginia. Mr. Flood wants $50,000 appropriated to build a highway from Main Street, Charlotteville, Va., to Monticello. At the gate to Monticello he would have erected an archway to cost $50,000. Monticello is owned by Representative Jefferson Levy of New York.

THE CIRCUS GAILY COMES TO TOWN

Housed in Madison Square Garden to Rehearse for Opening on March 21.

GIRAFFES HAVE A NEW BABY

Pilot and Hattie, the Elephants, Piqued When Left Behind—1,250 People in Cleopatra Spectacle.

A fringe of small boys around Madison Square Garden last evening, from within the muffled sounds of hoarse orders, of sawing and hammering and over in First Avenue the sight of a dark, shrouded cavalcade of animals and cages making its way silently down the island—all these phenomena told New York that the circus had come to town. Mott Haven knew it at sundown when the eighty-odd cars pulled into the New York & New Haven yards and all the Barnum & Bailey folk climbed out to the accompaniment of shouts and whistles and howls and trumpetings.

But long before this—days and days before this—the big elephants in the Winter quarters at Bridgeport knew all about it. The smell of Spring was in the air. Pilot and Hattie and Babe shifted more constantly and more uneasily at their posts, and trumpeted with greater enthusiasm when the keepers passed their way. They knew, as they always know, that the long period of fattening rest was drawing to a close, and that soon would come the season of work, the early Spring days at the Garden and then the long, fine Summer nights with only the canvas between them and the stars.

And to-day every boy and girl in New York knows that on the evening of Thursday, March 21, with a great blare of music from the band, the doors at the rear of the Garden will be thrown wide and in all their gorgeous trappings, the elephants walk around.

Old Acquaintances Here.

Nearly all those Barnum & Bailey folk that were at the Garden last year are stopping there at present. There are Maharajah and Emperor, the great lions and Couch Bahar, the Bengalese tiger, Mary and Mike, the priceless giraffes, and Kaffir, the two-horned rhino, and all the blessed ostriches, yaks, pigs, seals, cassowaries, flamingoes, monkeys, and, of course, Babe, the hippopotamus who eats and sleeps all year round without a trace of animation or interest in the outside world on that gala day, once a year, when George Conklin, her keeper in the old times, pays his fond visit to the circus.

But there are a few in the big gathering that are new, demonstrably new. There is a little collection of tiger cubs and lion cubs that first saw the light of day in Bridgeport this Winter. And, above all, pride and treasure of the collection, a wee baby giraffe that was born unto Mary and Mike five weeks ago—a little boy giraffe that came down to Mott Haven in a specially made, padded Pullman, all for his mother and himself. He is precious, this baby, for he is the second giraffe to be born in captivity in all the world.

Tradition has it that once in the London Zoo a giraffe was born, but he lived only a few hours, and does not count. Then, two years ago, to the pride and astonishment of Bridgeport, Mary gave birth to a wee giraffe, an event in the trained-animal world that was duly recognized some weeks later, when Mme. Noria christened the youngster "Bambino" in the Garden. The newcomer is waiting nameless.

Pilot Is Left Behind.

And if there are some new faces in the crowded, stuffy, noisy basement of the Garden to-night there are some dear, familiar trunks that are missing. For up in Bridgeport Pilot is sulking in his tent. So is Hattie, and so are two others, for when it came to counting trunks the circus managers decided that there really wasn't room for these four, and that for the show in New York, at least, they would have to stay behind.

Pilot is said to have taken this very much to heart, for while many of the animals resent the interruption of the peaceful months in Winter quarters, the elephants hail it with deep satisfaction. To them it means movement, which they like; new scenes, which delight their strange little eyes, and, above, all, it means peanuts, which they love.

So last evening when the animals came out of the train yards, crossed the bridge and marched downtown it was not Pilot, who knows these streets like a book, but Babe, big Babe, who led the way. But if Pilot and Hattie have been left behind, little Ko-Ko, the mischevous elephant, is on hand and so is Trilby, Hattie's little friend and protégé, who is so shameless in his mendicancy for peanuts that he is known to the keepers as Little Bum.

When the circus opens on Thursday evening of next week the first and the newest feature will be a grand spectacle, "Cleopatra," involving 1,250 characters, so they say; 650 horses, and endless dancers and singers.

RESCUE 32 ON ICE OF LAKE MICHIGAN

Crew of Steamer Hill Saved by Volunteer Life Corps from Two-Mile Crib.

BRAVERY OF WOMAN COOK

Mary Sanville Drags Wheelman, 72 Years Old, to Place of Safety on Ice Floe Near Shore.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Ill., March 11.—Thirty-one men and one woman, rescued from the wreck of the steamer Flora M. Hill, which was ice-jammed and sunk 500 feet off the two-mile crib, were brought into Chicago aboard the tug Indiana this afternoon. All were exhausted and showed the strain of the harrowing battle for life, which they fought on the ice floes.

The steamer, with its sides crushed and listed at an angle of forty-five degrees, gradually settled until its stern rested on the bottom of the lake.

Capt. Wallace E. Hill declared that the ship was valued at $50,000. It carried a cargo whose value was $40,000. The crew owe their lives to the volunteer life corps organized by Charles Jacobson, Crib Master. The rescued sailors faced death every minute as they stepped across the ice floes, blinded by the snow.

The vessel, under the command of Capt. Hill, left Kenosha at 7 P. M. Sunday. When the ice floe hurled the steamer on its side the crew deserted the vessel. Equipped with life preservers, they began the hazardous trip across the floes from the doomed boat. They were blocked by a windrow twelve feet in height. Here they were found, frozen and exhausted, by the crib rescuers.

Mary Sanville, cook, regardless of her personal danger, dragged Thompson, the wheelman, who fell exhausted, across the ice floes until blocked by the gigantic windrow. Thompson is 72 years old. The experience proved too much for him.

SAVED FROM SCHOONER AFIRE.

Crew of Unidentified Vessel Rescued Off North Shore, Mass.

BOSTON, March 11.—A fishing schooner afire off the Isles of Shoals was discovered by lifesavers along the north shore late to-night. The revenue cutter Gresham, which is cruising off the coast to the south, was notified and started under forced draught to the rescue.

A wireless message from Capt. Winram, through the Charlestown Navy Yard, stated that the crew of the burning vessel had been taken off by schooners which were standing by.

Lifesavers from the Plum Island and Salisbury Beach Stations also put off in their power boats to the aid of the schooner, the name of which is not known.

WANT SUNDAY LAW KEPT.

Ministers to Visit Mayor In Behalf of Theatre Employes.

At a meeting of ministers of all denominations held at the instance of the clerical conference in the assembly hall of the Metropolitan Life Building yesterday morning steps were taken toward effecting the release of striking theatre employes from sixteen hours of enforced Sunday labor. Bishop Courtney presided over the meeting. Resolutions were passed whereby the conference is to seek an interview with Mayor Gaynor to urge that he use his power with the Police Department and the Common Show License Bureau to revoke the licenses of all theatres breaking the Sunday law, and in case the committee is unsuccessful with the Mayor it is to call the attention of the Grand Jury and the District Attorneys of New York, Kings, Queens and Richmond counties to the failure to enforce the Sunday law.

The conference also approved an amendment to Section 1, Chapter 36 of the Laws of 1909, entitled "An act relating to labor, constituting thirty-one of the consolidated laws," to be numbered Eight-a and Eight-b and providing that:

> No person, partnership firm, corporation, municipality, nor any of their agents, Directors, or officers may require or permit any employe to work on Sunday in his or its employ, except at farm labor or household service, unless within the next succeeding six days during a period of twenty-four consecutive hours he or it shall neither require nor permit such employe to work in his or its employ. Nothing in this Section 8a shall be construed as authorizing any work or employment of labor on Sunday not now authorized by law.
>
> Eight-b. The Commissioner of Labor may appoint from time to time not more than ten inspectors of the second grade for the purpose of enforcing the provisions of the foregoing section of this act.

The conference has had promises of support and hopes to carry its programme through.

Pennsylvania's Y. M. C. A. Celebrates

The Y. M. C. A. branch of the Pennsylvania Station here was one year old yesterday. A reception was held last evening at the association's headquarters on the fourth floor. The 600 members were present, including two score or more officials of the Pennsylvania Railroad, Long Island Railroad, Pullman Company, and International Committee of the Y. M. C. A.

NEW SIGNS FOR SUBWAY.

Destination of Cars to be Shown in Red, Illuminated Letters.

Frank Hedley, vice president and general manager of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, announced yesterday the installation in the Subway of two devices for the information and guidance of passengers. In future on all express up-town stations from Brooklyn Bridge to Ninety-sixth street the destination of each train as it approaches will be announced by signs illuminated in red letters, as is now done at Ninety-sixth street.

In the centre of each car will be an illuminated sign stating to what terminal each train is going and whether it is an express or a local. It will be so placed that it will be visible to all passengers, whether seated or hanging on straps.

Bequests to Religious Institutions.

In the will of Mrs. Xantha S. Bartlett, who died on March 3, bequests to the amount of $25,000 are left to religious institutions. The will was filed yesterday for probate in the Surrogates' office. The estate is valued at $160,000. The Presbyterian Church of Chesterfield, Ohio, receives $10,000 as an endowment fund in memory of her late husband, George V. Bartlett; the Presbyterian Board of Relief for Disabled Ministers, $10,000; the American Bible Class, $5,000. The residue of the estate is left to the family.

Apologizes for Attack on Taft.

WASHINGTON, March 11.—Representative Akin of New York to-day apologized to the House for his language in a speech appearing in The Congressional Record of March 7, in which he assailed President Taft, Senator Root, and former Representative Littauer. He also requested permission to withdraw the objectionable matter, which was granted.

La Promenade des Toilettes at Gimbel Brothers

Our compliments, Madame!

Today we present the exquisite new modes that Paris has decreed for Spring and Summer, 1912—and it is our desire that you come and view this

Pageant of Imported Costumes

Although the style leadership of the House of Fashions vouches for the importance of this event, in justice to the Display we must add that it excels all our previous efforts. While we commissioned our fashion envoys to gather the finest Gowns, Suits and Wraps at the Paris Openings a few weeks ago without considering expense, the success of the showing will be to a great degree due to the artistic genius of the Parisian artists themselves.

"These are the most beautiful costumes that have ever passed through the Custom House!" exclaimed a man who has opened many trunks laden with Paris treasures.

The styles? They will be disclosed today.

However, we cannot refrain from saying that they reflect the modes that made glorious the Courts of Louis XV. and Marie Antoinette, besides those of the Second Empire. And as each artist had a different ideal, we shall present the New Modes from all the famous Parisian ateliers, including—

Paquin
Drecoll
Beer
Francis
Callot
Paul Poiret
Martial et Armand
Margaine Lacroix
Worth
Agnes Doucet
Bernard

This large collection of original Paris models includes toilettes for morning, afternoon and evening wear.

As the hat is the apotheosis of a beautiful toilette, this Display would be incomplete without the

New French Millinery

By Georgette, Lewis, Reboux, Louison and Other Famous Modistes.

The New Accessories of Dress will also be shown.

The modes will be presented in a veritable Spring setting, amid flowers and music, and will be worn by two score beautiful women in promenade along trellised garden walks on the Eighth Floor—starting in the Auditorium, passing through the Piano Salon and the Tea Room, giving ample opportunity for many thousands to see them.

La Promenade will be presented today and following days between the hours of 10:30 A. M. and 12:30 P. M., and from 2:30 to 4:30 P.M.

WELCOME!

SUGAR MEN ON TRIAL UNDER SHERMAN ACT

First Day Consumed in Getting Jury to Hear Case Against John E. Parsons and Others.

QUIZ TALESMEN ON TRUSTS

Those Who Were Prejudiced Against Them, and One Man Who Was In Favor of Them, Rejected.

Washington B. Thomas, first Chairman of the Directors of the American Sugar Refining Company; John E. Parsons, the aged former general counsel of the company; Arthur Donner, Treasurer; George Frazier, a Director, and Thomas B. Harned, a Philadelphia lawyer, were placed on trial yesterday before Judge Hand in the Federal District Court on the charge of having violated the Sherman anti-trust law and of having conspired to perform illegal acts.

John Mayer, who was indicted with them on June 30, 1909, was too ill to be present and will be tried separately, and as George E. Kissel and Charles H. Senff have died since they were accused, the indictments against them were marked nolle prosequi.

The entire day yesterday was taken up in getting a jury, the court sitting until after 5 o'clock before the box was filled to the satisfaction of both sides. Then a hitch occurred through the absence of Mr. Parsons, who had been in court in the morning, but, as explained by his counsel, had gone away in the afternoon to attend to the affairs of a hospital in which he is greatly interested. Judge Hand seemed to consider that as the charges amounted only to misdemeanors there was no great harm done, but District Attorney Wise contended that there were certain constitutional rights which the Supreme Court had ruled no man might waive, such as the right to be confronted by his accusers, so the actual swearing of the talesmen went over until this morning. The jurors and their occupations are:

1. FRED C. BABB, (foreman,) insurance, 76 William Street and 18 West Forty-fifth Street.
2. ROBERT HUNTLEY, President, 31 Nassau Street and 254 East Sixty-first Street.
3. FRED C. BONNY, secretary, 100 Broadway and 249 West 126th Street.
4. EDWARD W. GRAY, real estate, 144 Fifth Avenue and 305 West Fifty-first Street.
5. PATRICK F. GOFF, 518 Manhattan Avenue.
6. ANTON KORN, Jr., builder, 25 West Forty-second Street and 317 West Fifty-sixth Street.
7. ALBERT KORN, bonds, 52 Broadway and 45 East Seventy-fourth Street.
8. FRED KOPPER, Jr., broker, 10 Wall Street and 160 West Eighty-first Street.
9. CHARLES A. HUNTER, insurance, 37 Liberty Street and 46 Manhattan Avenue.
10. HYMAN KOPPERL, toys, 621 Broadway and 218 West 140th Street.
11. SAMUEL K. GAY, insurance, 277 Broadway and 210 West Twenty-first Street.
12. ANTHONY STOCKHAMMER, superintendent, 114 East Fifty-first Street and 243 East Fifty-second Street.

Calls Indictment Preposterous.

Concerned in the trial are a notable array of counsel. District Attorney Wise himself will lead the prosecution and associated with him are Assistant District Attorneys Crim and Knapp. Delancey Nicoll is the chief counsel for the defence and supporting him are Richard V. Lindabury, John D. Lindsay and T. S. Fuller, while James M. Beck represents, as general counsel, the American Sugar Refining Company and Mr. Harned will be defended by Leavitt J. Hunt, of Hunt, Hill & Betts.

The indictment which Mr. Nicoll declared in his examination of talesmen, only to be cut off by the court, one of the most preposterous ever brought before a court of law, is founded on the closing for seven years of the Philadelphia refinery of the Pennsylvania Sugar Refining Company. It is charged that on Dec. 31, 1903, the majority of stock in the Champion Construction Company, which, in turn, controlled the Pennsylvania Sugar Refining Company, was owned by Adolph Segal of Philadelphia. It is then alleged that Segal was induced on Jan. 4, 1904, to borrow through one Gustav Kissel $1,250,000 from parties unknown to him.

They turned out to be, the indictments declare, the men controlling the American Sugar Refining Company, who by this means got control of their rival, the Pennsylvania Sugar Refining Company, and the construction of the Philadelphia refinery was promptly stopped.

Among those in the courtroom who followed the proceedings with interest was Charles R. Heike, at one time Secretary and Treasurer of the American Sugar Refining Company, who was sentenced two years ago in the same room to eight months' imprisonment on the charge of being concerned in the sugar weighing and undervaluation frauds. His case is now under appeal in the United States Supreme Court. Oliver Spitzer, former Superintendent at the Williamsburg dock of the Havemeyer & Elder refinery, was also present. He was sentenced to two years in the Atlanta prison, but was pardoned by President Taft, so that he might be a witness for the Government against Heike.

In the examination of talesmen the usual questions were asked as to the connection of the prospective jurors with any concern which had dealings with the Sugar Trust. Occasionally some humor crept into the proceedings. As Mr. Nicoll was trying to find out how James L. Archibald felt with regard to trusts, he stated that he had some prejudice with regard to large corporations in that a cousin of his had owned his own cigar store and it went along all right until the United Cigar Stores Company opened a shop next door and took all his trade away.

"Then you have a prejudice against big corporations?" asked Mr. Nicoll.

"Well, no," was the reply, "I'm just telling you the experience of my cousin."

The court seemed to consider such callousness unusual, and took a hand in the examination, but Mr. Archibald was not strong enough in any resentment to think it would affect his verdict, and it was the court itself which suggested his stepping down.

One Talesman Favored Trusts.

On the other hand, one talesman declared himself unalterably opposed to any law to limit business combinations, even if they were monopolies, and this time it was the Government which was able to challenge for cause.

The Scheftels trial and its weary length had made a profound effect on the minds of several talesmen. One asked how long the trial was likely to last.

"Of, we don't intend to have five months' trial here," said Mr. Nicoll, and the talesman had to stay.

When another talesman declared that the detention for more than two weeks would be a great hardship to him, Mr. Wise declared that after his recent experience he had no intention of prophesying anything, and Mr. Nicoll announced that he had no intention of pursuing a policy of making technical objections. The trial will continue this morning at 10:30 o'clock.

The mandate of the United States Supreme Court fining the Amerian Sugar Refining Company $500 for refusing to surrender certain books and papers on a Grand Jury subpoena was filed yesterday in the District Court, and Frank L. Crawford, as counsel for the defendant, paid the fine to Commissioner Gilchrist. This is the first time that the Supreme Court has upheld contempt proceedings against a corporation, and District Attorney Wise considers the ruling an important precedent. Charles R. Heike, Secretary of the sugar company, had refused to surrender the papers.

MRS. BELMONT VISITS COURT.

Former Eleanor Robson Studies Children's Cases from the Bench.

Mrs. August Belmont visited the Children's Court yesterday and sat for some time on the bench beside Justice Mayo while he dispensed justice in the many juvenile cases brought before him. She showed great interest in the children and paid close attention to the testimony.

She intimated that hse was desirous of joining the Catholic Ladies' Committee, which nas charge of Catholic children who lack proper guardianship and are paroled or temporarily placed in institutions by the court.

W. B. CUTTING LEFT $2,000,000

Three Children Get $250,000 Each and the Widow the Residue.

The will of William Bayard Cutting, who died Feb. 3, was filed yesterday for probate. Almost the entire estate, the value of which is estimated to be $2,000,000, is left to his wife and three children.

Murray Bronson Cutting, Oliva Cutting, and Mrs. Justin B. Ward, children, are to receive $250,000 each, and Mrs. Oliva M. Cutting, widow, the residue of the estate. John D. Miller Jr., and Frances H. Reimer, friends, receive $5,000 each, and the Emanuel Church $5,000.

BRANDT'S LETTER CONTRADICTS HIM

Wrote to Senator Nelson That Gans Called Once at the Tombs to See Him.

TALKS NOW OF THREE VISITS

And on That One Occasion He Wouldn't Talk to Gans Because It Was Schiff He Wanted to See.

The letter that Foulke E. Brandt wrote to Senator Nelson of Minnesota from Sing Sing may yet figure importantly in the Grand Jury investigation into the case of the man who was sent to prison for thirty years for assaulting and robbing Mortimer L. Schiff. So far as can be learned that letter has not yet been placed before the Grand Jury. Its importance may be gathered from the fact that statements made in it are in flat contradiction of more recent statements made by Brandt to enlist sympathy in his fight for liberty.

One of the contradictions which it reveals has to do with the alleged visits of Howard S. Gans to Brandt while Brandt was in the Tombs awaiting trial. Since he was brought back from prison Brandt has insisted that Mr. Gans called three times to see him in the Tombs, and he and his counsel have intimated that as a result of these visits Brandt pleaded guilty to burglary in the first degree on a promise that he would be "let down easily and taken care of."

It is now asserted that in his letter to Senator Nelson Brandt referred to the fact that Mr. Gans had called once at the Tombs to see him. He had written to Mr. Schiff, pleading for an interview, and Mr. Gans had been sent to him. Mr. Gans told him Mr. Schiff could not come, but that he was there as Mr. Schiff's representative. This so annoyed Brandt, according to his letter to Senator Nelson, that he then and there declined to have anything to do with Mr. Gans.

This, in substance, is what Mr. Gans himself has all along insisted is the truth.

Not all of the citations that the lawyers want Judge Crain to consider before he decides whether Mr. Schiff and Mr. Gans shall be permitted to tell their stories to the Grand Jury had been turned over to him yesterday. Others will be submitted to-day, and the Judge will be asked to accept them, although he had set yesterday as the time when they should be in his hands. The difficulty the lawyers have been facing is that this case of Brandt's is a record maker in the matter of a judicial opinion, and therefore the best that can be done is to present cases which have the aspect of being parallel.

District Attorney Whitman, in the citations his office will present, seeks to cover the entire ground for both sides. He wants to hear everybody who can tell anything of interest bearing upon the arrest and sentencing of Brandt, and he especially wants to hear these two important figures in the case. If Judge Crain decides on Thursday that their presence before the Grand Jury will not make them immune from any proceeding directed against them for conspiracy, Mr. Whitman will be glad of it, he says. In this event the inquiry into the case may extend into next week. If they are not to testify the inquiry doubtless will end with the Friday session, and the matter be turned over to the Grand Jury for action.

Asked concerning his Sunday visit to Washington, Mr. Whitman said:

"I saw Senator Nelson while I was there and discussed the Brandt case with him. What the outcome of our talk was or the line of it, I must decline to disclose. The printed story that I also consulted with the members of the Swedish Legation is not true. I talked with nobody about the Brandt matter except Senator Nelson."

RIGHT TO WAIVE IMMUNITY.

Senator Brackett Seeks to Confer It in a Bill Just Introduced.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 11.—Another bill suggested by a phase of the Brandt case was introduced to-night by Senator Brackett. It provides that a person who files with the County Clerk a waiver of immunity may be called as a witness in any proceeding.

The right of Mortimer L. Schiff or Howard S. Gans to testify in the Grand Jury proceedings growing out of the Brandt case, on their offer to waive immunity, was questioned by the prosecuting authorities.

"A man should have the right to go into any court and tell his story if he waives immunity," Senator Brackett said. "I think that right is his now, but this bill, if enacted, will make it certain, and will preserve the evidence."

MODEL SON WAS A BURGLAR.

Double Life of Young Man Killed by Policeman Is Revealed.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., March 11.—Through the identification to-day of Joseph Diamond, who was killed by a policeman last Saturday morning, a double life was revealed—that of a model son while at home and a hardened criminal while away.

The identification was made by Mr. and Mrs. Louis Diamond, of East Seventh Street, New York, the father and mother of the dead man. The elder Diamond is a prosperous baker. According to the story told by the Diamonds the dead man was a dutiful son, writing regularly to his parents and making a trip to his home as often as possible. He had told his mother that he was a huckster. On the night before he was killed he had written a letter home telling his parents to expect him to be with them on the following Sunday. They were awaiting his appearance when they received the notice of his death. The police say Joseph Diamond has a record as a burglar in every large city in the country.

5 SHOTS FOR STEPFATHER.

Sachs Spat at His Mother, Boy Says—Bullets Go Wild.

Because, as he later alleged, his stepfather had spat in his mother's face, Sherman Mendelsohn, 16 years old, of 306 Belmont Avenue, Newark, fired five shots at his step-parent yesterday afternoon. The step-father, Louis Sachs, is the proprietor of a fish store at 150 Mulberry Street, Newark, and it was while the store was filled with customers that the assault was made upon him. Mendelsohn entered the store with a heavy revolver in his hand and pointing it at Sachs opened fire. The latter dropped to his hands and knees and crawled under the counter which his assailant perforated with three bullets.

When the five chambers of his revolver were emptied the boy walked out of the store and went to police headquarters where he gave himself up saying that he had killed his step-father. The latter appeared in the station house a few minutes later uninjured and preferred a charge of felonious assault against him. Mendelsohn told the police that his step-father had been mistreating his mother for some time and that the crowning insult came when he roused her from sleep early yesterday morning and deliberately spat upon her. When he had heard the story from his mother, the boy declared, he decided to buy the revolver and kill Sachs.

New Fishes at the Aquarium.

The fresh water collection at the Aquarium has been increased this week by varieties of fish which were on exhibition at the Sportsmen's Show last week in Madison Square Garden. Some of the specimens of muskallonge measure nearly four feet and weigh thirty-five pounds. There have also been added to the collection yellow perch, chain pickerel, banded pickerel, white perch, mud puppies, catfish, shiners, and sturgeons. They were all caught in the Adirondack region.

GOLD WIRE NEAR HIS HEART.

It Is Coiled in Patient's Aorta to Keep Artery Distended.

Dr. William C. Lusk performed an unusual operation at Bellevue Hospital yesterday by using gold wire to strengthen the aorta, the principal artery of the heart, in a patient who had been suffering from an aneurism till the walls of the aorta had been distended and worn so thin as to be transparent.

The patient was Henry Griffin, a fireman, 53 years old, who lives at Fourteenth Avenue and Avenue G. He could not be placed under an anaesthetic for fear of weakening his heart. Cocaine was injected in the left side, but the patient remained conscious throughout the operation.

The gold wire was introduced through a hollow needle. The rifles inside the needle caused the wire to form a coil inside the aorta, forming an artificial wall which extended the length of the aneurism.

The coil was an inch in diameter and eleven and three-quarters feet of the wire were introduced before the weakened section of the aorta had been reinforced. An electric plate was applied to the back of the patient, which had the effect of assisting the blood to coagulate on the wire.

CONTRACTOR FOUND DEAD.

John I. Valentine Ends Life with Gas in His Apartment.

John I. Valentine, a contractor, committed suicide some time Sunday night in his apartment at 647 Lexington avenue. His body was discovered yesterday morning by his son, Claude Valentine, of 123 West Ninety-sixth street, who had an appointment with him.

Mr. Valentine lived on the third floor of the apartment house, occupying five rooms. He lived alone. He had an office at 150 Nassau Street. The son could give no reason for his suicide, and he left no letters to explain it.

The contractor had connected a rubber tube with a gas jet, then put the end of it in his mouth and turned on the gas. Dr. King, of 649 Lexington avenue, said he had been dead several hours.

Valentine had an office on the eighth floor of the American Tract Society building. A young woman, who was in charge of the office, said she supposed that business troubles had caused her employer to take his life. He was defeated in a law suit a few days ago and had worried much over his loss.

Vantine's
The Oriental Store

Rugs for People with Ideals

CLOSE intimacy with the Orient and its finest wares is the warp of the Vantine Rug business. Comparison of Vantine Oriental goods with those of other shops shows the difference.

Knowing the East from Constantinople to Pekin—its arts and crafts and practises—being familiar with its hidden spots as well as the high places on the beaten track, we have the same advantage in collecting rugs that we have in bronzes, or lacquers, or rich old brocades.

If it is Kazaks or Mosouls or Kurdistans at $10 or $12 or $25, those here shown are not rugs bought for a sale. They are here only because they are unusually desirable rugs.

If they are Kermanshas or Chinese rugs at $100 or $200 or $500, they were not bought because they could be sold at so much a square foot.

They represent what ALL Vantine goods represent—the best that the East produces. Vantine's rugs to-day are on the floors of great public institutions that cost millions to build. They are in many of the most aristocratic homes of America. And they are in many a bungalow and cottage where the dollar counts.

They are valued by architects and decorators—by people with ideals—by those who realize that the ORIENTAL STORE is the logical ORIENTAL RUG STORE.

$12,000 IN WEAPONS CAST INTO THE SEA

Police Boat Patrol Carries Headquarters' Collection Out Beyond Scotland Light.

1,500 REVOLVERS IN THE LOT

They Represent the Partial Disarming of the City's Criminal Class—Blackjacks and Sword Canes Go, Too.

With scant ceremony at least $12,000 worth of guns, rifles, revolvers and a strange assortment of death dealing instruments, all seized under the broad definition of concealed deadly weapons, were taken down the bay yesterday afternoon on the police boat Patrol, and cast into the sea. They are now resting fifty-seven feet under water at a point two miles directly east of the Scotland Lightship. They were so destroyed under an order signed by Police Commissioner Waldo on March 5. The lot included 1,500 revolvers, their value estimated by the police at $11,000; 100 shot guns and rifles, valued at $1,000, and 350 blackjacks, slung shots, brass knuckles, dirks, sandbags, stillettos and knives of no stated value.

These weapons had been in the store room at Police Headquarters for the last six months. Some of them had figured in crimes. Most of the small weapons were found on arrested persons. Some were picked up by the police after shooting affrays and during raids. Their owners never came forward to claim them. The collection contained a number of pieces, large and small, that were turned over to the police by law-respecting persons after the passage of the Sullivan law.

The weapons were carefully gone over by the property clerk and a record made of each. Afterward they were put in boxes and locked. Some of the larger pieces, sabres and shot guns, were done up in bulky packages. There were twelve boxes and four packages in the lot taken down from Headquarters yesterday morning and deposited under guard on the aft deck of the Patrol at Pier A, North River. In addition to the articles of recent seizure was a small box containing some old and rusty exhibits. These formed part of the museum at old Police Headquarters. In moving to the new building some of these, uninteresting in appearance or in history, were discarded to give room for exhibits of more recent date whose records are entered in the last chapters of crime in New York.

Thomas Kennedy represented Commissioner Waldo, and with him was Lieut. Sheridan. They got to the pier just a few minutes before 1 o'clock and within ten minutes Capt. George Liebers had given the order to cast off and the Patrol was heading through the upper bay. As the vessel was passing through the Narrows, Capt. Liebers assigned two patrolmen to open the boxes and pour their contents out on deck. While this was being done the camera battery got into action and moving picture machines were set grinding the films past the lenses.

Arms Enough for a Small War.

The small arms filled the aft end of the Patrol and the guns and larger implements of death were stacked along the rail. There were enough weapons piled upon that few feet of deck, the Captain remarked, to start a South American revolution. There were pistols of every calibre and make, the smallest a tiny affair with a hard rubber handle, which could easily be concealed in the palm of the hand, and the largest a murderous looking miniature gun of rapid fire magazine type with a long barrel of dull steel.

The revolvers, the police estimate, ranged in prices from $1 to $28. They had been taken from persons of every nationality. There was the toy revolver of French make, which had been taken from a woman, the sawed off shot gun left behind by a fleeing Italian, and the ponderous looking "gun" much in favor with the Tong fighters of Chinatown.

Perhaps the most interesting weapons in the collection were the few which had been discarded from the police museum. There was a battered hardwood club about 14 inches long and topped with a cap of lead upon which was a torn and faded label indicating that the weapon had been "Used in the riots of July, 1863."

Tossed out on deck with an assortment of knives was one with a dull yellow bone handle. It had been a carving knife, one of a set, but the 8-inch blade was dulled and rusted where blood had covered it. Attached to it was a tag which read:

> Knife with which Mrs. Anna Lohman, alias Mme. Restelle, committed suicide. She cut her throat with this knife while in the bathtub on April 1, 1878, at 657 Fifth Avenue.

There has been very little improvement in the manufacture of blackjacks if one compared the wicked-looking leather-covered one which was "found on Broadway near Twenty-eighth Street by Officer McParlton on Oct. 4, 1869" with similar articles of more recent make which lay near it upon the deck.

A rusty bladed knife, six inches of steel, set in a nondescript handle, recalled a now forgotten story of love and jealousy. Its label reads:

> This is the knife with which Morris Verlosky stabbed Rachael Seligman, creating a wound which extended from the lower portion of the right ear to the margin of the mouth. The wound was pronounced dangerous. The stabbing took place at 77 Bayard Street on Sunday, Nov. 28, 1869.

Attached to the handle of a hilted, sharp-pointed knife was this reminder of a forgotten police episode:

> This knife was taken from John Wilson, who attempted to stab and kill John Dempsey on the night of June 28, 1869, at the Old Bowery Theatre. Wilson was committed on default of bail.

Cane Sword That Killed a Man.

An instrument of silent death was a harmless-looking cane of yellow wood. The policeman pulled the handle out, and there flashed into the air a long, thin blade, triangular in shape and ground down until it had a needle point. This cane sword was found sticking through the body of an Italian who was slain on the outskirts of the city one Spring morning a few years ago.

"This is the pistol with which Hannah B. Southland killed Stephen L. Pettles at Fulton and South Streets on Nov. 22, 1889," was written on the tag attached to a cheap nickel revolver of small calibre.

So ran the sordid record of crime. One bludgeon of flexible leather, topped by a ball of lead, had been seized within a year. It was plainly blood marked, but who was its victim may never be known. Police records are often as reticent as the heads of the department, and there was much one wanted to know of brass knuckles, stilettos, and other paraphernalia of the underworld. Noticeable in the collection was a Japanese long-bladed knife in a massive sheath of carved ivory.

When the Patrol passed close under the stern of the Scotland Lightship and dipper her flag in salute, preparations were made to cast the strange cargo overboard. The two patrolmen gathered the weapons together, and, under Capt. Liebers's watchful eye, kept guard to see that nothing was abstracted from the pile. Two miles beyond the Scotland Lightship Capt. Liebers gave the order to throw the cargo overboard, and the work began, while the moving-picture machines whirred away yards of film.

The weapons were gathered by handfuls and tossed over the side. A dirk knife struck the wooden rail and stuck there, the blade quivering in the sunlight. Pearl handled and bone handled, valueless and valuable, they were all thrown into the water. In fifteen minutes the last one went over the side. Then the Patrol turned and headed back to the city.

DROPS STOLEN $65 IN CHASE.

Thief Pursued by a Crowd in Ninety-ninth Street—Suspect Is Held.

While Herman Lankenauer, a collector for the Sheffield Farms-Slawson-Decker Milk Company, was making up his accounts in the hallway of 790 Columbus Avenue yesterday afternoon he was struck on the head with a club and robbed of $65, his collections for the day. Later, after a chase, a youth, who gave his name as James Dugan, 17 years old, and said he lived at 356 West 119th Street, was arrested.

The fugitive ran east on Ninety-ninth Street followed by the crowd and Lankenauer. At Central Park West Patrolman Rafferty saw Dugan running and caught him. There was nothing found on the prisoner and while the policeman was questioning him a citizen handed the $65 to Lankenauer. The money had been found in the street. Later a short wooden club, with one end filled with lead, was found in the hallway where the assault and robbery had taken place.

Dugan was arraigned before Magistrate McQuade in the West Side Court, and was held in $5,000 bail for trial after he had waived examination. He had formerly been employed by the company as a collector.

FORCED TO SLEEP IN HALL.

Girl Found by Policeman Suffering in Uptown Flat House.

Margaret Major, 12 years old, who said her home was in Danbury, Conn., was brought into the Children's Court yesterday. The girl had been taken into custody at 126 West Eighty-third Street by Patrolman Cunningham. He testified that residents had complained of the treatment she had received. She had been sent out into the hallway of the West Eighty-third Street house to spend the night, Cunningham said. The girl was paroled in the custody of the Children's Society pending investigation.

Cunningham said that the girl had been living in the family of a man who had been employed at the Metropolitan Club, Fifth Avenue and Sixtieth Street. Her mother, he said, was a friend of the man and woman in whose keeping the girl had been found.

RAMS BATTERY WALL IN HYDRO-AEROPLANE

After This Mishap Aviator Coffyn Flies Over the Brooklyn and Manhattan Bridges.

GOES AROUND THE ST. LOUIS

Hears the Cheers of Passengers and Is Near Enough to See Their Faces and Waving Caps.

After ramming the Battery seawall with his hydro-aeroplane yesterday morning, Frank Coffyn, the aviator, took a spin above the East River about 1,000 feet in the air in the afternoon.

Cheered by those in the street, trolley car conductors, and van-drivers, he passed the Brooklyn and Manhattan Bridges at a speed of 65 miles an hour.

When immediately over the Manhattan Bridge he swung around and returned to Battery Park front just south of Pier A, making one of the prettiest landings ever made in the bay.

The wind blew from the southwest at a rate of about 35 miles an hour all through yesterday, and Coffyn decided not to take up either his wife or his seven-year-old boy. It proved to be a wise decision, judging from his morning experiences.

It was shortly after noon that Coffyn and his two assistants began the work of warping the big, red, wooden float, on which his white hydro-aeroplane rested, out from the lee of the Battery wall into the open waters of the bay, which the southwest wind had made somewhat rough and tossing.

After splashing along the waves for 50 feet, the hydroplane rose and darted straight down the bay. The American liner St. Louis was coming up from Southhampton, and the flyer circled quite close to her, so that Coffyn could hear the cheering passengers and see their faces and waving caps.

After passing Governors Island Coffyn swung to the right and passed near the Statue of Liberty. He was about 300 feet in the air at that time. Returning toward Battery Park he began cutting the figure 8 and making dips and dives. Then he started to land. He did not allow for the wind and was almost blown into a tug, which was rigged with a derrick. He jumped over this, but, in doing so, was blown over within a few feet of the fireboat New Yorker, which lay at her pier. In swinging away from her he neglected to shoot up in the air agani and his machine got wedged in the jetty south of Pier A.

A crowd of 2,000 persons had been watching the flight from Battery Park, and it looked to them as if both the hydro-aeroplane and the aviator were seriously hurt. As the machine, with uselessly whirring propellors, continued to stick in the opening, the crowd rushed out on the jetty and helped Coffyn to get the tangle loose.

"I just cracked a few of the machine's ribs," said Coffyn carelessly after investigating the damage.

Coffyn's afternoon spin lasted about eleven and a half minutes. W. W. Jeffries, Treasurer of the White Star Line; H. G. Philips, E. E. Parvin, and R. H. Farley, three officials of the International Mercantile Marine, had come down to watch him, it was said, with the idea of determining whether hydro-aeroplanes could be used as ocean steamship tenders, some imaginative person guessed. He made a clear and easy start in spite of the wind and the whitecaps.

After going several miles down the bay he swung around and shot up the East River. The aid of the wind made him go at the rate of nearly 65 miles an hour.

HELD BABY FOR UNPAID BILL.

Magistrate Makes a Landlady Surrender Child Retained as Security.

Mrs. Jennie Davis, 22 years old, of 164 Ridge Street had Mrs. Addie Jacobs, 26 years old, who keeps a rooming house at the above address, summoned before Magistrate Corrigan in Essex Market Court yesterday. Mrs. Davis told the court that she had been rooming at the house for about three months and that she had recently lost her position.

She said that Mrs. Jacobs ordered her from the house for failing to pay her board bill, and that she kept her three-year-old baby as security, refusing to give her up until the bill was settled.

Mrs. Jacobs admitted that the story was true, and the court then ordered her immediately to return the child.

TO AWARD FIRE MEDALS.

Mayor Gaynor Will Present Thirty-four To-morrow at Fire Hall.

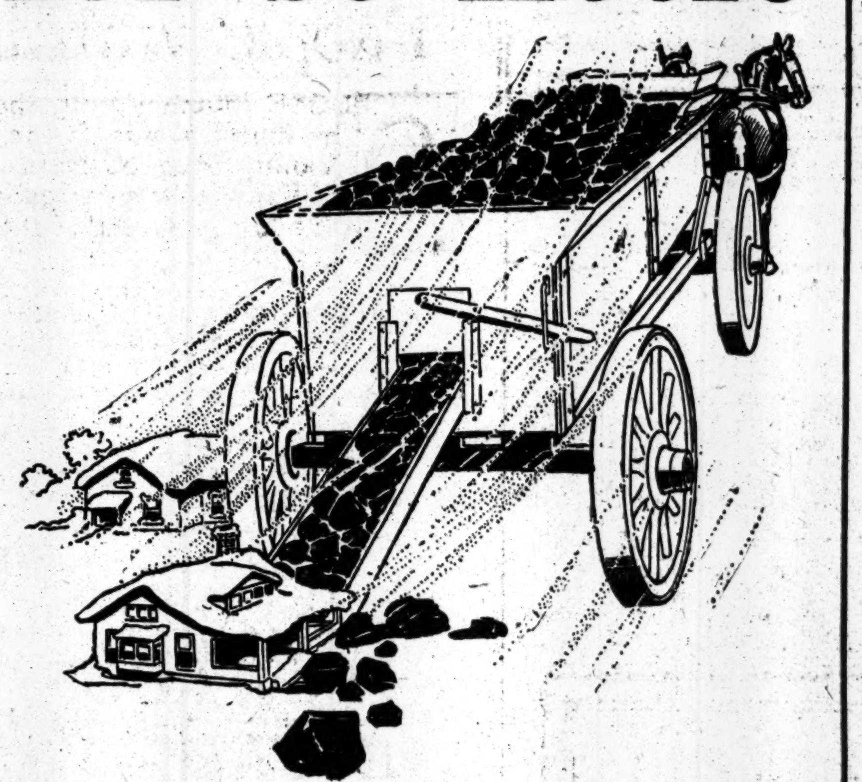
Fire Commissioner Johnson announced yesterday that thirty-four medals would be awarded for heroism and efficiency in the department to-morrow morning at 10:30 o'clock. Mayor Gaynor will present the medals and some 200 persons, including friends of the firemen and city officials, have been invited to attend the ceremony, which will take place in the assembly room at Fire Hall, in East Sixty-seventh Street.

This is the largest number of medals ever awarded in one year in the history of the department. The awards include the Bennett, Bonner, Trevor-Warren, Wertheim, Strong, Brooklyn Citizen, Brooklyn Daily Eagle, Hurley, and Stephenson medals. For the first time medals will be awarded to each member of the company performing the best work in the Fire College in 1911. The names of the winners will not be made public until announced by Mayor Gaynor. The temporary quarters of the new Fire Prevention Bureau, in a leased building opposite Fire Hall, will be formally opened by Mayor Gaynor after the presentation of medals. There will also be an inspection of the latest addition to the automobile fire apparatus of the department, a large auto hook and ladder truck, which has just been received. This truck is said to be the heaviest of its kind in the world. It will be inspected in front of the Fire Headquarters Building and will then be placed in commission.

After the inspections there will be a drill of the probationary firemen in the yard of Fire Hall.

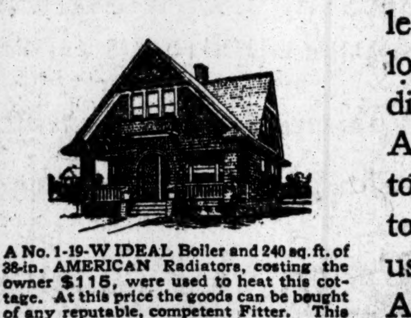
So much for so little

Suppose you could have delivered in one giant wagon all the coal you burned in the last 15 years in striving to warm your cottage by old-fashioned heating. Then, if you could see alongside of it a wagon to contain the far smaller amount of coal you would burn in the next 15 years by use of our ideal heating, the contrast in fuel-saving would be so great that you would gladly put in at once an outfit of

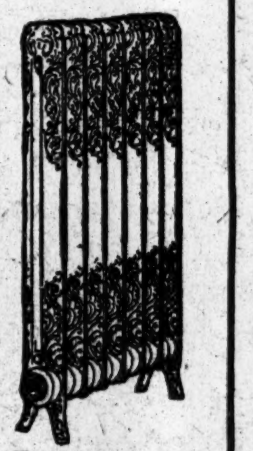


AMERICAN RADIATORS & IDEAL BOILERS

IDEAL Boilers are unqualifiedly the best in design, construction and operation that a world-wide experience and capital can produce. The most exhaustive tests in our Laboratories in the U. S., Germany and France conclusively show IDEAL Boilers make every ounce of fuel yield utmost heating results—they shut off all fuel waste. We take pardonable pride in saying, further, that in the many thousands of instances in which IDEAL Boilers have been installed in place of other heating methods or apparatus, they have proved far more economical in fuel than the heaters which they replaced—often reducing fuel bills one-half. Thus fuel-savings, plus health-protection, lessened house-cleaning, less wear on household furnishings, absence of repair bills, lower insurance rate, and long life of the outfit make a dividend-paying investment of IDEAL Boilers and AMERICAN Radiators. Don't think you have to wait to build a new house—easily put in old houses—farm or town—without tearing up in the least. Please let us tell you the full why, how and present attractive price. Ask for book—puts you under no obligation whatever to buy. We give you much comfort for so little money.



A No. 1-19-W IDEAL Boiler and 240 sq. ft. of 38-in. AMERICAN Radiators, costing the owner $115, were used to heat this cottage. At this price the goods can be bought of any reputable, competent Fitter. This did not include costs of labor, pipe, valves freight, etc., which are extra and vary according to climatic and other conditions.



IDEAL Boilers and AMERICAN Radiators change any house into a home.

We also supply the ARCO WAND Vacuum Cleaner, which has iron suction pipes running to various floors of houses, flats, schools, churches, hotels, hospitals, banks, theaters, etc. A turn of an electric button in any room starts the machine in basement, and with the magical ARCO WAND and a light-weight dainty hose ALL the dirt, dust, cobwebs, lint, threads, moths, insect eggs, etc., are drawn with lightning rapidity down the iron piping into the big, sealed dust-bucket in cellar. Costs little monthly for electricity to run. No dragging around a clumsy, inefficient portable vacuum cleaner—instead, you have a correct, enduring outfit that is part of the building—like heating or plumbing. Ask for catalog of the ARCO WAND.

PLAY OF RARE BEAUTY SEEN AT THE LIBERTY

Mr. A. E. Thomas's "The Rainbow" Tells a Tender Story and Is Beautifully Acted.

RUTH CHATTERTON'S HIT

Mr. Miller's Fine Artistry Again Revealed, and an Excellent Company Supports Him.

THE RAINBOW, a comedy in three acts, by A. E. Thomas. Liberty Theatre.

Neil Sumner	Henry Miller
Edward Fellows	Charles Hammond
Nicholas Hollins	Robert Stowe Gill
William Mortimer	Conway Wingfield
James Judson	Effingham Pinto
John Carpenter Gilmore	Daniel Pennell
Bennett	George C. Pierce
Mrs. Ruth Sumner	Edith Barker
Betsey Sumner	Laura Hope Crews
Cynthia Sumner	Ruth Chatterton
Jane Palmer	Hope Latham
Dolly Winter	Fania Marinoff
Elsie Davis	Ethel Martin
Therese	Marie Porterin

To attempt to weave the charm of such a play as Mr. A. E. Thomas's "The Rainbow" into the woof of a review is a good deal like trying to catch and fix the iridescent shimmer of the lovely thing from which it takes its name. For this play, in its essence a simple story of paternal love, is so bedecked with the riches of a sensitive imagination, and a sense of humor put in words, that it rather eludes description. Mr. Thomas writes with wit when he chooses, and with a sure hand on the heartstrings when his theme leads him to serious thoughts. And almost always he writes with such grace and facility and good choice of words that the result is literary—at times even poetic.

Which let it be understood at once is not to say that "The Rainbow" lacks those qualities which make for general appeal. On the contrary, it is first of all a story to appeal to the heart. And the charm of its principal figures are splendidly embodield and acted by Mr. Miller and his company.

That the actor-manager recognized how far responsible for the success of the play one of them was was evidenced by the graciousness of his action, when, in response to the many curtain calls, he came forward leading Miss Ruth Chatterton by the hand, announced that he would feel desperately lonely if she left him, and whimsically advised her not to expect a raise of salary on that account.

In a cast which was unusually capable from Mr. Miller down, Miss Chatterton, in a rarely sympathetic part, was also on her own account a rarely sympathetic figure. And she was this because she is that rara avis—if she will pardon the allusion—a natural ingenue. An exquisite little person, who knows how to express feeling and to radiate charm, she is so far without a trace of affectation. May she long continue so. They usually do not. But Miss Chatterton, perhaps, is as real an actress as she seemed last night, in which case exceptional praise need not spoil her.

So much having been said, one may leave the other players for a later paragraph, for Mr. Thomas's play itself deserves a major share of the consideration. It is clever not only in its exposition of the heart loneliness of the man who has seen his wife and child depart from him and leave him to his own devices but also in its exhibition of the tenderness which the presence of the child effects and in the contrasts which her presence emphasizes as between her estate and that of the flashy society into which the father has eventually drifted.

To begin with it was the wife's pride that drove them apart; and pride again—his as well as hers—has kept them apart. In the meantime the baby has grown into a bud of a woman without his ever seeing her. Then she comes, and the father worships. He is not bad, he has maintained a fairly respectable life.

But his set is "sporty," fond of loud dress, and slang, the card table, and the racing stable. And he would keep her from association with them. The thing is impossible. And the mother, who has held aloof, sees the first signs of a canker in the bud. She happens in inopportunely just after the father has asked the aid of one of his women friends—this one is not as bad as the rest and has a heart—to help him keep the girl apart. And there is nothing for it but to take the child away.

As in the scene of the father's first meeting with the little daughter, so now in one in which she talks amiably of her early return, when the father knows that she is going away for good and all, Mr. Thomas has written with real feeling and great good taste. A little less of the scene of parting might be better—it seems a trifle long drawn out—but it pulsates nevertheless with the something that brings a lump into the throat.

And it is easy enough to share the joy of father, mother, and child in the ultimate reconciliation. For, of course, that comes at the end of a third act which, in its beginning is not as good as what went before it, but finally eventuates into an exceptionally charming little scene. And throughout the play there are capital contrasting types of character, with incidents to bring them into play.

Again Mr. Miller has done the admirable thing, staging the piece with complete sympathy and understanding, and playing the role of the father with compelling sincerity and feeling, authority and humor.

In addition to Miss Chatterton, who avails her self beautifully of her exceptional chance, Mr. Miller provides an excellent cast.

In a scene of very considerable difficulties, one of those passages in which the mingled acid and sweetness of human nature must be conveyed, Miss Hope Latham provides one of the best pieces of acting of the performance. Miss Laura Hope Crewes plays with a fine suggestion of wholesome good humor and no little justifiable asperity splendidly, and Miss Edith Barker does the rôle of the wife with dignity and distinction.

The others are wholly competent, Mr. Joseph Pennell and Mr. Robert Stowe Gill being especially successful.

EDWIN GRASSE'S CONCERT.

Blind Violinist Plays Trio and Sonata with Falkenstein and Kefer.

Edwin Grasse, known to New York both as a violinist and as a composer, gave a concert in Carnegie Lyceum last evening, in which he appeared in both capacities. As is also well known, Mr. Grasse has the handicap of blindness. Of his own compositions were played a trio in A major, Op. 10, for piano, violin, and violoncello, and a sonata for piano and violin in C, Op. 14. In these he had the assistance of George Falkenstein, pianist, and Paul Kéfer, violoncellist.

Mr. Grasse's music shows much fluency and readiness in writing for the instruments, and especially for the strings; and his compositions do not lack for copiousness of melody and fertility in its development and disposition. It cannot be said that his thematic invention is often highly distinguished, but he has shown in the trio an avoidance of harmonic commonplace without an undue straining after originality. The third movement, a "tempo di menuetto," is especially pleasing in its melody.

Between the two ensemble pieces there were half a dozen solos of smaller dimensions, including two "Songs Without Words" by Mr. Grasse, and a transcription for the violin of one of Grieg's Norwegian dances. Mr. Grasse's playing of his instrument is under the circumstances remarkable. His assistants, Mr. Falkenstein and Mr. Kéfer, are known as admirable musicians, and seconded the concert giver in a most efficient manner. The audience was large and entirely sympathetic in its attitude toward Mr. Grasse the composer and Mr. Grasse the violinist.

'THE TYPHOON' IS AN ABSORBING PLAY

Lengyel's Drama of Psychological Portent Furnishes Thought at the Fulton Theatre.

Lengyel's drama of the conflict between the Orient and the Occident, psychologically speaking, reached New York at last in an English version last evening, when Walker Whiteside and his company performed "The Typhoon" at the Fulton Theatre. The play had already been seen in German at the Irving Place Theatre earlier in the season.

What the play means it may be left to the temperament of the individual spectator to understand. Some may read into it the fact that while the Japanese are taking what they can find in the way of knowledge and culture from the Occident, the process kills them. The Typhoon is caught, caged, tamed, and dies.

Others may be content to regard the play as a contrast between Eastern imperturbability and Western exuberance. And there is a third class which may be satisfied to contemplate "The Typhoon" simply as a drama, without regard to its psychological portent.

At any rate, "The Typhoon" is interesting, absorbing even, and very different from the ordinary run of drama. There is that in it which compels the attention of the thinking auditor, and yet the mere amusement seeker should find much to interest him. A play written in four acts in which the heroine dies in the middle of the second is extraordinary in itself. It could almost be included in George Bernard Shaw's list of Plays for Puritans were not the love interest, such as it is, of an extremely vivid nature, so long as it lasts.

In "The Typhoon" we are presented to a group of Japanese stationed in Berlin for all sorts of political, social, and educational reasons. One of them, Yokeramo, has been engaged in research work of the greatest importance to his Government. He has also become entangled in an affair with a German lady. His friends see complications in this affair which will interfere with his work and they ask him to abandon the girl. He is only willing to do so, however, when he learns of certain other events in the woman's life.

In the most dramatic scene in the play Yokeramo tells the woman that he is done with her, and she starts to go, broken, because she thinks she loves him. When he calls her back, however, all her scorn is awakened, and she turns upon him with a violent fury, which expresses itself considerably more volubly in the original Hungarian than it can in English. He is a yellow dog to her, and she despises him. Epithet after epithet she hurls at him until finally the Japanese self-control deserts him and he strangles her.

He telephones for his friends and they come to him at once. The one idea that obsesses them all is that Yokeramo is much too important a figure to be sacrificed. Japan needs him. The Councilor Joshikawa calls on some one else to make the sacrifice, some one else must confess to having committed the murder. Every one in the group springs forward. It is young Hironari to whom the honor is given, however. The original second act ended with the boy's sacrifice for his country.

However, when there is a star concerned it is doubtless impossible to give the climax of the strongest act in a play to an actor who has nothing to do for the rest of the evening. So last night several episodes from the omitted third act of the original piece were brought in to make Yokeramo the centre of attention as the curtain fell.

To omit the third act was probably the part of prudence. It contains nothing which is necessary to the understanding of the piece. It plays in the courtroom where the trial of the boy is going forward. At one point Yokeramo, torn to the point of anguish by the trial, confesses to having committed the crime. His confession is not believed, and the boy is sentenced.

Last night several comedy episodes from this act, and one or two dramatic ones, such as the testimony of the young friend of the murdered girl, were introduced into the close of the second act, which ended with Yokeramo pleading with his friends to allow him to give himself up in place of the boy. It must be said that the original effect of the end of the second act is largely spoiled by this intrusion of material which the playwright had used elsewhere.

There are many changes in the final act also from the original play, in which we are shown Yokeramo receiving attention and love from his European friends, while the Japanese want only his work, the completion of which they eagerly await. Just as he does succeed in writing the last word necessary Yokeramo dies. This means nothing to the Japanese. He has completed his task. He has done what he could for Japan, but his European friends grieve the loss of the man.

Some of these ideas are not very clearly brought out in the English version. One scene, in which an artist lover of the murdered woman, suspecting the truth, finally learns it, and starts to burn Yokeramo's precious manuscript in revenge, like Hedda Gabler burning Erik Lovberg's child, is a trifle melodramatic and out of keeping.

This drama, naturally, is difficult to play, and it is perhaps still more difficult to gauge the worth of a performance of it. It is notorious that when French actors play Americans, they are not in the least like them. A performance of "L'Angla's tel qu'on le parle" at the Comedie Française will convince anybody that they are not at all like the English. On the other hand, Americans in a French or German drama are not likely to give a correct racial counterfeit.

A sense of reality, however, along racial lines is required, to some extent in "The Typhoon," much more so than it is in "The Mikado" or Puccini's "Madama Butterfly," for instance. And to some extent this requirement was met last evening. However, self-consciousness is something that the Japanese do not possess. They are quiet, self-controlled. Their movements are slow and infrequent, but they are not self-conscious.

In a drama which deals with a race so unallied to ours as the Japanese the difficulty becomes ten times greater. American actors in general probably have only the most superficial idea of Japanese characteristics, and a few weeks' attention at the hands of a careful stage manager will not make them Japanese enough to satisfy anybody who has been near Nippon.

Last night in assuming these characteristics the actors concerned very often became wooden, posed, and self-conscious. This was not always true, and racial characteristics once aside, the dramatic values were usually properly handled. Only it might be observed that Mr. Whiteside could make more effect with his murder scene if he regarded the laws of crescendo a little more carefully. On the whole, however, his performance was well-considered and effective. Malcolm Williams in a rôle of a bibulous German artist was very good in one scene, and Miss Florence Reed as the German lady played a very interesting part in a manner to win commendation.

WALLER ACTS BEAUCAIRE.

Appears in Role He Has Acted Nearly a Thousand Times.

Lewis Waller's first appearance in New York under his own management was made at Daly's Theatre last night in "Monsieur Beaucaire," the romantic comedy by Booth Tarkington and Mrs. Evelyn Greenleaf Sutherland, made familiar here by the late Richard Mansfield. Mr. Waller has played the rôle of the barber-Duke nearly 900 times in London, and the part is said to be one of the best in his repertoire. The audience last night evidenced much liking for his acting, and his supporting company. There were eleven curtain calls at the end of the second act, and at the conclusion of the third act, the park scene, Mr. Waller was called upon for a speech.

Mr. Waller's leading woman, Grace Lane, appeared with him in his London production of the piece in the rôle of Lady Mary Carlyle, and last night she had the same rôle. The rest of the cast included Frank Woolfe as the Duke of Winterset, Henry Stanford as Major Molyneux, Henry Caryill as Beau Nash, Reginald Dane as Lord Townbrake, J. Malcolm Dunn as Mr. Rakell, Lewis Broughton as Mr. Bantison, Vincent Sternroyd as Marquis de Mirepoix, Edith Charteris as Lady Rellerton, Catherine Calhoun as Lucy Rellerton, Essex Dane as Mrs. Mabsley, Alice May as Miss Presbury, Dorothy Lane as Miss Paitelot, Violett Kimball as Miss Purlitt, and Mlle. Corday as the Countess of Greenbury.

AMATEURS IN THREE PLAYS.

St. Christopher League's Entertainment Nets $600 for Hospital Beds.

Under the auspices of the St. Christopher League amateurs—most of them members of the league—produced last night at the Plaza three little plays. The league, which is made up largely of society girls, raised enough money from its entertainment of last year to endow for one year two beds in the New York Nursery and Child's Hospital. More than $600 was cleared last night, and this will be used to continue the endowment of the beds. The plays were followed by a supper and dancing.

The plays were Herbert Hall Winslow's "The German Lesson," Racher Crothers's "The Rector," and Sudermann's "The Far-Away Princess." In "The German Lesson" Miss Ruth G. Davis, Theodore Steinway, and Harold W. Gould took the parts. In "The Rector" Henry C. Smith was John Heresford and Miss Harriet A. Clarkson was Margaret Norton. The others were the Misses Eleanor Bartlett, Helen Durkee, Maud Aldrich, and Eleanor Lapham and Mrs. J. Bryant Leake.

In "The Far-Away Princess" Miss Ella M. Lindley was the Princess, John M. P. Thatcher was Fritz Steubel, and Karl T. Fredericks was the lackey. The other parts were filled by Miss Gertrude Mills, who took the place left vacant by Miss Lisa G. Todd, and the Misses Elizabeth A. Lloyd, Edith M. Provost, Dorothy Fox, and Eleanor Bartlett and Mrs. J. Bryant Leake.

The boxholders included Mrs. J. Pierpont Morgan, Mrs. Edward Peaslee, Mrs. E. J. Berwind, and Mrs. H. Clay Adams.

The patronesses and patrons, many of whom were present, included Mrs. Spencer Aldrich, Mrs. John I. Baird, Mrs. James Christy Bell, Mrs. Robert C. Black, Mrs. Prescott Hall Butler, Mrs. Ashton Crosby Clarkson, Mrs. Vernon M. Davis, Mrs. H. B. Dominick, Mrs. William A. Ewing, Mrs. Birney Fellowes, Mrs. J. R. Guernsey, Mrs. William H. Harris, Mrs. Thomas Hicks, Mrs. George Walker Jenkins, Mrs. P. R. Jennings, Mrs. William Knigsland, Mrs. Seth Low, Mrs. J. Pierpont Morgan, Mrs. Edward Oothout, Mrs. Davis Provost, Mrs. William Robison, Mrs. Frank S. Witherbee, Miss Grace Potter, Miss Ruth Lawrence, Stephen Baker, Cornelius Du Bois, Joseph I. Delafield, Jacob W. Miller, Dr. Edward L. Partridge, Dr. Edward H. Peaslee, P. Stuyvesant Pillot, and W. Emlen Roosevelt.

"Tannhaeuser" Sung at the Opera.

"Tannhäuser" was sung at the Metropolitan Opera House last evening. The cast included Leo Slezak, Berta Morena, Olive Fremstad, Herbert Witherspoon, and Hermann Weil. Mr. Hertz conducted.

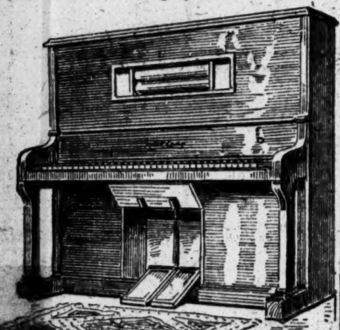
If You Want a Player-Piano That Will Lend Distinction to Your Home and Render Music Most Entertainingly, Whenever It Is Called Upon,

Buy a Beautiful Walters "Mastertone" Player Piano at $395

It Is Purchasable on the Easy Terms of $10 Down and $2 a Week

No extras to pay. Player delivered to your home on payment of $5.00.



Apart from its remarkably small price and the decidedly easy way in which one may be acquired, the Walters 88-note "Mastertone" possesses exclusive technical advantages that music lovers will readily appreciate.

It has two melody buttons which enable the performer to subdue the accompaniment and give freer play to the melody. It has a soft pedal lever for use when the volume of tone requires moderation, and to give the desired expression. The buttons and the lever are two valuable aids in the proper interpretation of any piece of music. Then there is a tempo lever which regulates and controls the speed. This device is acknowledged one of the most important features of the Walters Player-Piano.

It should be remembered, too, that only a little lever, moved with the utmost ease, converts the player-piano into a piano and back again, making it as valuable for teaching by hand as it is for providing immediate entertainment at the will of any member of the family.

We give, with each Player-Piano, 12 Rolls of Music, a Bench and a Cover.

Other Walters Pianos Offered on Convenient Payment Terms

Exchange your old piano for a beautiful new Walters Piano or Player-Piano. We will take your old one in part payment and let you pay any difference at $1 or $2 a week. Upon request a representative will call.

LAWRENCE STRIKE FUND IS TIED UP

Industrial Workers Ordered to Show Cause Why Receiver Should Not Be Named.

WRIT RETURNABLE FRIDAY

Misapplication of $50,000 Contributed by the Public for Relief of Operatives Is Charged.

BOSTON, March 11.—Joseph J. Ettor, William D. Haywood, William Yates, and William Trautmann, leaders of the Lawrence strike, and Joseph Bedard and James Sheehan, members of the strikers' Finance Committee, have been ordered to show cause why an injunction should not be issued preventing them from further distribution of relief funds and a receiver be named to take charge of the money. Judge Hammond, in the Supreme Judicial Court, to-day issued an order of notice in the case, which is returnable Friday.

Contributors to the fund who believe that the money has not been properly handled induced Attorney General Swift to permit his name to appear on an information which was filed to-day in the Supreme Court. The information names as relators James M. Prendergast, the Rev. Herbert S. Johnson, and Robert A. Wood, all of Boston, and all contributors to the relief fund, which is estimated to be more than $50,000.

The plaintiffs allege that the defendants conspired and have used substantial portions of the fund for purposes entirely different from what was intended; that the fund has, in part at least, been improperly used for the private and personal benefit of the defendants and their associates; that the defendants, or some of them, have drawn sums from the fund as salaries, a purpose for which they had no right to use the fund; that substantial amounts have been contributed for the board and private expenses of the defendant Ettor; that large sums were paid for transportation to New York and other cities of children for the purpose of inducing the public more liberally to swell the fund; that large sums have been paid to counsel for defending Ettor, and other large amounts turned over to the Industrial Workers of the World.

The plaintiffs say that they have been unable to get the defendants to disclose the exact nature of the expenditures, and so ask that the defendants be restrained from drawing any more money from the Lawrence Trust Company; that a receiver be appointed to take charge of the fund, and under direction of the court to distribute it in the way intended by the contributors, and that the defendants be compelled to restore all sums improperly abstracted by them.

Strike leaders in Lawrence to-night had little comment to make on the action to restrain them from further handling of relief funds. They declared that there had been no refusal to give an accounting, but that the Finance Committee had been so overwhelmed with work that they had had no opportunity to prepare such a statement.

PEACE CONFERENCE FAILS.

Meeting of Strikers and Employers Goes Over Until To-day.

LAWRENCE, Mass., March 11.—The conference between representatives of the strikers and of the American Woolen Company, which it had been expected would be an important factor in the early settlement of the textile strike, did not take place to-day through a misunderstanding. The strikers' representatives said they had received no word from Boston regarding a meeting. Chairman George H. Ellis of the Legislative Committee on Conciliation declares on the other hand that he sent a notice to the committee appointing a meeting at the State House this afternoon. It is now expected that the meeting will take place to-morrow.

There is a feeling in Lawrence, both among the leaders in the strike and citizens in general, that the end of the trouble is at hand. At a conference in Boston Saturday the American Woolen Company offered an average increase of 7½ per cent., and this was generally satisfactory to the strikers' committee, but there was a disagreement over details. The strikers insist that they will make no agreement with the American Woolen Company alone, but that they will demand a general settlement in all of the mills. This, it is believed, will follow an understanding with the American Woolen Company.

An eight-hour day for American and British working people was a topic mentioned at a meeting of the General Strike Committee. William D. Haywood read a letter from Thomas Mann, an English labor leader, inquiring if the eight-hour sentiment in the United States is strong enough to warrant a general movement on the part of organized labor this year. If sentiment favored such a movement on this side of the ocean, Mann wrote, a similar movement would be started in Great Britain, Australia, South Africa, and other British possessions simultaneously.

Haywood in commenting upon the communication remarked that the Industrial Workers of the World had been planning for some time to bring about an eight-hour day in the United States on May 1 next.

A demonstration in front of police headquarters by several hundred strikers and sympathizers, including many women, threatened this morning to cause serious trouble. The crowd assembled after the arrest of a woman striker, and became so menacing that the police had to use their clubs. The police say the woman displayed a revolver while engaged in picket duty.

The strikers made the biggest display of picketing to-day since the strike began. It was estimated that more than 5,000 persons paraded Essex and other streets. The greater part of the crowd was happy, evidently believing the end of the strike at hand.

Guitano Bruno was sentenced to the House of Correction for two months in police court to-day for attacking a girl operative. Two women were fined $25 each for the same offense. They appealed. One man picket was fined $100 for intimidation. Small fines were imposed on five women.

MORE WAGES FOR 150,000.

Southern New England Mills Likely to Grant Voluntary Increase.

BOSTON, March 11.—It was estimated to-night that 150,000 cotton and woolen mill operatives in Northern New England would share in an advance in wages of at least 5 per cent. before April 1. Advices indicate that manufacturers in Fall River and elsewhere in Southern New England are considering the advisability of meeting the increase decided upon by mills having their head offices in Boston. Should the 30,000 operatives in Fall River and a like number in New Bedford receive higher wages, manufacturers at other Southern New England points feel that it would be policy for them to take similar action.

An advance in all New England textile districts would directly affect from 250,000 to 300,000 persons. In New Bedford the Textile Council held a meeting to-night to consider a plan of communicating with the Manufacturers' Association regarding higher pay. Otis N. Pierce, President of the association, expressed his personal opinion that the fine goods market was not on a basis sufficiently firm to warrant an advance at this time.

Considerable unrest exists among the mill employes of Fall River. The mill firemen there held a meeting to-night to discuss a demand for an increase in wages. An advance has been granted to the firemen by the Fall River Iron Works cotton works and American Printing Company, owned by M. C. D. Borden of New York.

The wage question is to be discussed during the week at meetings of the Carders', Spinners', Slashers', and Weavers' Unions. There has been no change in the wage scale in Fall River since 1908, and some of the manufacturers say privately that they expect they will decide to grant an increase of 5 per cent. April 1. John Golden of Fall River, President of the United Textile Workers of America, in an interview to-day said:

"It looks as though there would have to be a general increase in all textile centres of the country. An increase is needed in this city, just the same as anywhere else, and I have no reason to believe but that the manufacturers will take the proper view of conditions and give the operatives what they deserve."

Notices of a 5 per cent. wage raise were posted to-day in Maine and New Hampshire cotton mills employing 35,000 hands, the increase dating from to-day. Mills in various Massachusetts towns advanced the pay of about 11,000 employes.

ASKS INQUIRY OF EMPLOYERS.

American Woolen Company Is Object of Congressional Resolutions.

WASHINGTON, March 11.—An investigation of the American Woolen Company will be asked by Representative Francis of Ohio when the Rules Committee of the House meets again to consider the resolutions calling for an inquiry into the strike conditions at Lawrence, Mass.

Mr. Francis has had a resolution in Congress ever since his election calling for an examination of the woolen company. He will appear before the committee at a hearing later in the week to present the data intended to prove that the American Woolen Company is a combination in restraint of trade.

Mr. Francis's original resolution asked an investigation of the campaign contributions of the woolen manufacturers and an inquiry into the extent of their business in the United States.

VOLUNTARY INCREASE GRANTED.

Mill Owners of Philadelphia, Friends of Taft Put Up Wages.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, March 11.—The leading textile operators of this city at a secret meeting Friday decided to increase wages of the workers on an average of 5 per cent. of their present wages and reduce their hours of working from 58 to 54 hours a week.

The wage increast and shortening of the working week, it is estimated, will affect 100,000 textile workers in Philadelphia. Most of the employers of these workers are members of the Union League which last Saturday went on record for the retention of President Taft for another term in the White House.

The operators, beyond acknowledging that the meeting had been held, refused to discuss what took place behind the closed doors. It was learned, however, that the new order of affairs will go into effect on April and it is believed the voluntary betterment of working conditions was made, first, because the employes were becoming restless and the operators anticipated a demand for an increase; second, because a new State law calling for a maximum of 54 hours for a week's work will shortly go into effect, and third, on account of the salutary effect the voluntary increase will have on the candidacy of President Taft.

This increase is believed to be the first step on the part of friends of President Taft to show working men that the Nation is prosperous and that they should support the President for a second term.

Mrs. Vermilya is Indicted Again.

CHICAGO, March 11.—Mrs. Louise Vermilya was indicted to-day for the murder of Richard T. Smith, a collector employed by the Illinois Central railroad, on March 11, 1911. Preparations were made to try her last week for the murder of Policeman Arthur Bissonette, but when the case was called the State's attorney dismissed it. The allegation against Mrs. Vermilya is that she caused the death of Smith by giving him arsenic.

'OUT OF LOVE CLUB' WINS THE FEDERATION

Women's Clubs Pay a Visit to the Salvation Army Rescue Home.

HOSPITAL FLOOR NEEDED

Federation Members Pledge Support to the Work—$15,000 Needed for the Second House.

Of all the city's welfare organizations there is none doing better work than the "Out of Love Club," according to Brigadier Bovill of the Salvation Army, who addressed the officers of the New York City Federation of Women's Clubs and the Presidents of the individual clubs of the federation yesterday afternoon.

It was at the Rescue Home of the Army, 318 East Fifteenth Street, where the federation women were being entertained at tea and introduced to salvation methods of work. The gathering was the result of the visit of Commander Eva Booth of the army to the recent federation convention at the Hotel Astor, which interested the club members to learn more of what the army is doing.

The Federation women laughed and applauded at Brigadier Bovill's little joke, but though the "Out of Love Club" is not one of the federated kind, each individual woman pledged herself to stand by not only the members of that club, but also by the girls and women of the Rescue Home, from whose ranks it is recruited. The club is made up of those who, having come to the home unhappy and forlorn, have had their "capsized consciences" righted, have been made well and strong in mind and body, and have started out to work for themselves, the young mothers taking their babies with them.

They are so happy to be doing well that they send money back to the home to help on its work—"out of love," Brigadier Bovill said, and many return every Sunday to tea and at other times when they can, staying often for a night or two in a dormitory kept for their use. They sent back $700 for the rescue work last year, but their own clubroom lacks a piano and a bookcase. This the federation women learned at the meeting.

"I'll give $100 toward the piano," said Mrs. J. Hedges Crowell, who is a prominent member of the Woman's Democratic Club.

"The Knickerbocker Club will give a bookcase," declared a member of that club.

Dolls for the Children.

"Don't forget to put some good books in the bookcase," said Mrs. John S. Crosby, president of the Woman's Democratic Club and one of the vice-presidents of the Federation. "And I am going right home to pick up some dolls around the house to send down to the babies here. One of the babies in the nursery held up a little doll with a broken head and said:

"'See my dolly!'

"I have a little grandchild of my own at home. She has eight or ten dolls. I'll take some of those and perhaps I'll buy some and send them down so that each baby can have one."

"I have a doll that my mother used to dress for me every year when I was a little girl," said Mme. von Klenner. "I was the only child in my family, and I have thought I couldn't part with that doll, but I am going to bring it down here."

The Salvation Army women who showed the federation members over the house had much trouble to draw them away from the babies. There were tears in many of the women's eyes at the thought of the hard lives that might lie before the little ones, and they said later downstairs when the speaking began that it was the duty of all federation women to help in every way these mothers and their little ones.

"If I had not been preaching another gospel for the past twenty years, that of woman suffrage," said Mrs. Priscilla D. Hackstaff, Treasurer of the Federation, "I should have been out on the street working for the Salvation Army. I believe in it, heart and soul."

53,000 Girls Cared For.

"It is not sentimental, maudlin love that is needed for this work," said Brigadier Bovill, who is in charge of the woman's social work for the Army, "but sensible, practical love and a warm clasp of the hand. The girls are apt to be hopeless and to feel that every one is against them. You can't touch them with a long-distance telephone. We have 130 rescue homes. There are 10,000 girls who pass through them yearly. Isn't there work for you women to do? More than 53,000 girls have been in our homes since they were first opened, and 80 per cent. of them have become self-supporting women."

Speaking of the work the women might do, she said that the Daughters of Indiana, of which Mary Garrett Hay is President, had already promised to pay for any girls from Indiana who might find their way to the home, and suggested that other clubs might work on similar lines.

Dr. Nan Gilbert Seymour, who is the physician of the home, asked for a hospital floor for the house, so that the girls may be kept under the good influence of the home from the moment they are brought into it.

"From being an expense and menace we make these women good members of society, and it is right that we should ask you to hold up your hands," said Adjt. Underwood. "A second house has been taken for the work this last year to increase the accommodations of the Rescue Home, and $50,000 is needed for it, $35,000 of which is on hand."

Mrs. William Grant Brown, President of the City Federation, presided at the meeting yesterday. Mrs. Olive Stott Gabriel and Miss Josephine McMahon were other speakers. Tea was served with home-made cookies made in the house.

Convict Paroled for Money Secret.

SALEM, Ore., March 11.—Charles Barrett, a convict who recently led the warden of the penitentiary to a cache where $7,000 in gold bars, stolen from the steamer Humboldt, was hidden, has been paroled by Gov. West. Barrett has disappeared in company with Secret Service agents, having agreed to lead them to the hiding place near here of still more buried gold, said to aggregate $27,000.

SCIENTIFIC MANAGEMENT
Opportunity

He who originated the statement that opportunity knocks but once at the door of any man is responsible for a great deal of discouragement in this world of ours. It tinkles in the ear like a precious little thought; but precious little did he know about opportunity. One may readily conceive that the adage may be true of those men who are foolish enough to believe it; for anyone who would accept seriously such an absurdity would not know an opportunity if he bumped into one on Broadway.

The man who invented the saying, instead of handing it out as a truism, thus enabling it to pass as legal tender of the sound currency of real ideas, might have done more good for his fellow men if he had sent it to a comic weekly, to become brain-food for idle barbers.

Opportunity is the ever-present Now. It exists at all times for all men. Man stands always facing it—if he only knew it; not necessarily the opportunity to secure for himself the things he may have decided that he must have, but rather the work which he may undertake successfully. With most of us the things we want prevent us from seeing the greater things which we may have.

If the Bush Terminal Company believed that opportunity called but once we would urge all those who can operate economically in our model factory buildings at South Brooklyn to grasp this one opportunity of their lives before it is too late. But we believe no such thing; and, moreover, we tell them frankly that we shall be glad to knock at their doors not once but several times, if we believe that their business is of such a nature as would make them, as tenants of the Bush Terminal Company, satisfactory both to us and to themselves.

We know that the opportunity has been embraced by a great number of substantial business men. From this we know that we are safe in declaring that our service and facilities present to a still greater number the opportunity for large savings.

If you will permit us to examine somewhat the nature and extent of your business we will tell you whether we think the Bush Terminal solves enough of your problems to make the moving worth your while. If we think that we do not present to you a real opportunity we shall tell you so frankly; for it would not be the part of a prudent business organization to obtain any but a satisfied tenant.

WOULD INVESTIGATE 'BASEBALL TRUST'

Representative Gallagher of Illinois Urges Action in Resolution to Congress.

CONTROLS NATIONAL GAME

"Most Audacious and Autocratic Trust in the Country," Says Gallagher—Johnson Courts Inquiry.

WASHINGTON, March 11.—A Congressional investigation of the "baseball trust, the most audacious and autocratic trust in the country," was proposed in a resolution introduced by Representative Gallagher of Illinois to-day. The measure would create a special committee of seven Representatives to inquire of the Department of Justice "what steps have been taken against the baseball trust, as against other illegal combinations," to subpoena witnesses and employ assistants.

It accused the "baseball trust" of presuming "to control the baseball game, its officials announcing daily through the press the dictates of a governing commission, how competition is stifled, territory and games apportioned, prices fixed which millions must pay to witness the sport, how men are enslaved and forced to accept salaries and terms or be forever barred from playing."

Mr. Gallagher said the Department of Justice knew that there was such a trust under the law, and that he would confer with the department in a day or two.

BAN JOHNSON'S RETORT.

Declares Many Ball Players Receive More Pay Than Congressmen.

CHICAGO, March 11.—When informed of the Gallagher resolution President Ban B. Johnson of the American League said:

"We would be glad to have an investigation. There is no baseball trust and competition is not stifled. Any one who desires is welcome to get in the game.

"So far as men being enslaved is concerned, a large number of the players are drawing salaries in excess of what is paid to Congressmen. That does not look like enslavement."

President T. M. Chivington of the American Association said:

"Any resolution of that sort presented to Congress must be based on lack of information of the extent, purpose, and operation of what is known as organized baseball. As a matter of fact, there is no violation of Federal, State, or municipal law in the operation of organized baseball."

LYNCH INVITES INQUIRY.

National League Is Not Stifling Competition, He Says.

"So far as the National League of Baseball Clubs is concerned," said Thomas J. Lynch, President of the league, when told that Representative Gallagher had introduced a resolution in the House for an investigation of the "baseball trust," "we invite an investigation. There is absolutely nothing savoring of a trust in our league. We do not in any manner stifle or attempt to stifle competition. I indorse everything that Ban B. Johnson, President of the American League, says, and especially his words concerning the 'enslaved' players. In fact, I will add to it slightly, by saying that not alone do some of the players receive more money for their work than Congressmen, but more than the average business man earns.

"We welcome any man of ability who desires to get into the game, especially the college boys. Let the investigation of the National League proceed. We have nothing to fear."

"RESOLUTION A JOKE."

Garry Herrmann Makes Light of Gallagher's Proposed Investigation.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, March 11.—Congressman Gallagher's resolution for an investigation of the so-called baseball trust was characterized as a joke to-day by August Herrmann, president of the National Baseball Commission.

"I don't know what he means," said Herrmann, "unless it is a joke. There is no baseball trust, and from the nature of the game, there never can be. The commission doesn't fix prices. Different prices are charged in different cities. There can be an investigation at any time without any objection from the National Commission."

CHICAGO, March 11.—John T. Powers, president of the Columbian Baseball League which has planned to put ball teams in a number of cities where the major leagues now play declared he had taken no part in causing the presentation of the Gallagher resolution.

"We have not clashed with the officials of organized baseball," said Mr. Powers. "We expect to enter the field in a number of cities and I do not expect any strong attempt to bar us out. I had nothing to do with the presentation of the resolution and do not wish to discuss it at this time."

BRITT COMES BACK TWICE.

Takes a Few Minutes from His Theatrical Worries to Talk Fight.

Jimmy Britt, ex-lightweight boxer, evidently has not entirely abandoned the idea that he possesses much of his old-time skill with the gloves. Just now Britt is devoting most of his attention to theatricals, but he is still a strong devotee of the boxing game, and he has been noticed close to the ring at all the big bouts staged here during the past three months. Following his act yesterday afternoon Britt entered into a discussion on boxing with several friends at one of the Broadway hotels. It was a very quiet conversation until Danny Morgan, manager of Knockout Brown, entered, and in less than two minutes everything was changed.

"Well, I suppose the stage looks so good to you now that the ring could never tempt you again," said Morgan.

"I wouldn't say that," was Britt's come-back, "because it is harder work on the stage than it would be outboxing some of the present-day boxers. Don't be surprised to see me back there any time."

"Another of those fellows with that tale about the old-timers being wonders, eh?" said Morgan. "Do you consider the lightweights of a dozen years ago superior to the present crop?"

"Comparisons are always odious," was Britt's answer. "I saw the old fellows, and I've been looking over the present crop, too."

"By the way," said Morgan, and his eyes snapped, "I have heard that you said you could whip Brown."

"Somebody has been telling the truth," Jimmy answered.

"What Kayo would do to you, Jimmy, would be a shame," laughed back Morgan, who cannot conceive of any 133-pounder being better than his little Dutchman.

"Well, he would have to hit me first," was Jimmy's reply.

"Are you sincere in what you are telling me and would you consider a match with Brown?" asked Morgan, in a tone of surprise.

"Most certainly," replied Britt, "and I have no doubt that I could stand him off safely and probably outpoint him. Give me a few weeks' time to get into shape, and I will take on Brown, or any of the present-day lightweights."

"You're on," answered Morgan, "and I'll show you a surprise."

And just to show the little Californian that he and his sensational protégé, K. O. Brown, rather welcomed such businesslike talk, Morgan and Brown sent Jimmy a big floral piece to Hammerstein's last night, to be handed to Britt over the footlights.

ABE ATTELL ACCUSED.

Charged with Having Proposed a Fake Knockout with Tommy Murphy.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 11.—The Call to-day prints an account of an alleged proposal for a "fake" knockout, said to have been made by Abe Attell to "Harlem Tommy" Murphy last Saturday night before their twenty round fight.

Attell denies the accusation and says he made no proposition to Murphy or his manager.

According to James Buckley, Murphy's manager, as he is quoted in The Call, the first suggestion as to "fixing" the fight was made by Attell, Feb. 26. He was not told positively that no agreement would be made, it is alleged.

"Another meeting was arranged," said the newspaper account, "and this time Murphy accompanied his manager. Murphy was asked if he would agree to fall to the mat after receiving a certain blow and pretend to be unable to rise. He said he refused.

"Last Wednesday or Thursday night, in response to a telephone message Buckley met Attell and again listened to the fighter's proposition.

"Attell approached Buckley again just before the men went into the ring. Buckley was called from Murphy's dressing room by Attell and asked if the Harlem boy was ready to play the part Attell wished to assign to him. Buckley says that even then he did not give a definite answer and that at no time had Attell received a definite reply."

Murphy, with Buckley left early to-day for the East to prepare for his fight with Packey McFarland at Kenosha, Wis.

Promoter James Coffroth announces that he has engaged Eddie McGoorty to fight the winner of the Dillon-Klaus bout to be held here March 25.

BUCK AND WAGNER DRAW.

"Bantam" and "Feather" in Good Bout at Olympic A. C.

Tommy Buck, the Philadelphia bantamweight, fought a ten-round draw with Young Wagner, the east side featherweight, at the Olympic A. C. last night. In three of the rounds the Quaker showed so much speed that the local boy appeared like a novice, but he was unable to keep up the same clip throughout the bout. Wagner had all the advantage physically, and he was also the more experienced. Buck weighed in before the bout in his boxing togs and tipped the beam at 118½ pounds. Wagner weighed 122 pounds.

The New Yorker was guilty of considerable foul work and was warned repeatedly by Referee Dan Tone. In the early rounds the referee stopped the bout three times to warn Wagner against the use of the kidney punch, and later he had to repeat his warning twice. Like many other boxers, Wagner will find trouble getting accustomed to the new ruling, as the kidney blow is a big part of his attack during the clinches. In the last two rounds Wagner showed a disposition to hold Buck with his left hand and drive right hand punches to the body.

Infighting and Buck's lack of experience alone saved Wagner from defeat. The Philadelphian seemed unable to protect himself from Wagner's swings during the clinches, and the east sider put plenty of power behind all his body blows. But in the open fighting Wagner was distanced. Buck has one of the best left jabs shown by any boxer here in months, and he also has a right uppercut with plenty of power in it. He floored Wagner in the second round with a right hand swing after pushing his head back with a left. Wagner was up again before a count was begun.

The bout was one of the best shown at the Harlem clubhouse in several weeks. Wagner had four rounds on his infighting, Buck outboxed him in four more and two were even.

Kubiak Wins All the Way.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., March 11.—Al Kubiak, the Michigan giant, had little difficulty in defeating Frank Moran, the Pittsburgh heavyweight, in a ten-round bout at the Knickerbocker Athletic Club to-night. It was Kubiak's battle from start to finish, and only in the seventh round did Moran show any cleverness.

Moran and Moore at Fairmont.

Local devotees of boxing who pick only the good things offered by the club managers will get an early start this week with the Moran-Moore bout, which takes place at the Fairmont Athletic Club to-night. This contest probably will satisfy the most exacting follower of things pugilistic, as both of the principals are widely known and their abilities as sterling performers are unquestioned.

Wendover Don't Want Johnson Fight

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, March 11.—Wendover, Utah, is no longer a candidate for the championship fight between Jack Johnson and Jim Flynn. Spokesmen for the business men who gave encouragement to Promoter Jack Curley last night announced that they had given up definitely the attempt to finance the battle.

Sailor Burke Has Easy Victory.

Charlie Victor, who was matched to box Sailor Burke in the main event of ten rounds last night at the Irving Athletic Club, failed to appear. Jim Maher was substituted, and in less than a round, after being floored twice, the referee stopped the bout to save the substitute further punishment.

EARLY GAMES NOT FAVORED BY BRUSH

But He Will Let Fans Decide Question by a Turnstile Vote This Spring.

President John T. Brush of the New York Baseball Club has sent an open letter to the newspapers in regard to the agitation among baseball fans to have the games started at a time earlier than 4 o'clock. The tone of Mr. Brush's letter does not favor a change to 3 o'clock or 3:30. He argues that 4 o'clock baseball has been a great success here and that it might be detrimental to change it.

Mr. Brush has been swamped with letters, favoring a change and protesting against it. The plan he suggests to find out the true sentiment of the patrons of the Polo Grounds is this: At the first series with the Eastern clubs at the park he will divide the shutes at the 50-cent and 75 cent gates into entrances for those who favor 3:30 o'clock as the starting hour and those who favor 4 o'clock. The count will be kept at the turnstiles at all these entrances, and after the first series of games has been finished a decision will be made and games will be started at the hour favored by the greatest number that passed through one turnstile or the other.

Mr. Brush favors the sentiment expressed by the patrons from the financial district, and points out that they are held at Wall Street until 3 o'clock and have a fifty-minute ride to the park. The prospects of a cold dinner does not worry them, he says, and they pour in in large numbers at the last minute.

The patrons from the suburbs are also considered by Mr. Brush, but he declares that his club is primarily a Manhattan institution, and the baseball fans of the island should receive the first consideration.

YANKEE YOUNGSTERS WIN.

Regulars Strike a Snag in Practice Game at Atlanta.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTA, Ga., March 11.—Practice games for the New York Americans began this afternoon and the regulars came a cropper at the hands of the young bloods by a score of 5 to 3. It was a poor day for baseball. Yesterday's fine day was followed by one which was chilly and with drizzling rains. The rain wasn't hard enough to prevent playing, the field was in fair condition, but the air was raw and the players, although not without ginger, didn't let themselves out more than they had to.

Wolverton divided up his teams as follows:

FIRST TEAM—Daniels, c. f.; Wolter, r. f.; Dolan, 3b.; Chase, 1b.; Hartzell, s. s.; Gardner, 2b.; Osborn, l. f.; Tonneman, c.; Hoff, Martin and Shears, p.

SECOND TEAM—Kauff, r. f.; Zinn, c. f.; Stump, s.s.; Simmons, 2b.; Coleman, 3b.; Priest, 1b.; Curry, l. f.; Street, c.; Ford, Quinn and Wolverton, p.

Wolverton pitched the last half of the fifth inning because by that time all his pitchers had gone to the warm clubhouse. The batteries were the only veterans in the second team. The regulars had the second team shut out until the last inning. Shears pitched that round for the regulars, and the second team did its only hitting off him. They jostled the straight ball he put up for five singles and these with three errors produced five runs.

Hoff pitched nicely the first two innings, as did Martin in the third and fourth. One hit was made off Hoff, a scratch, and none off Martin. Ford let the first team down hitless for two innings, and two swats were gathered off Quinn in the next two rounds.

Two wild throws to first by Stump, who is the image of "Jack" Knight, played a part in both of the first team's tallies. Ford used his moist ball once or twice, but at a slow speed. Both Hoff and Martin had good control. None of the pitchers opened out in earnest and the catchers were equally careful in the use of their arms in throwing to second base.

The six hits made by the second team fell to the lot of Zinn, Simmons, Coleman, Priest, Curry and Quinn.

The regulars made half as many hits, those obtaining them being Dolan, Tonneman and Martin, Tonneman's drive being a long two-bagger to right field. The score by innings:

							R.	H.	E.
Second Team	0	0	0	0	5	—	5	6	3
First Team	1	0	2	0	0	—	3	3	3

Rain Halts Brooklyn Again.

Special to The New York Times.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., March 11.—Another day was wasted by Manager Dahlen and his thirty-odd Brooklyn players here to-day, owing to the rain, which fell steadily all night, leaving the grounds ankle-deep in mud. All the work of the day was confined to about one hour this afternoon, when the pitchers and catchers had another session in front of the hotel. The remainder of the squad took to the roads. With the daily departure of big league players for their clubs' training camps, Dahlen decided to cancel all exhibition games with the All-Americans.

Jack Chesbro is here. The former Yankee pitcher, now a free agent, will take a course of baths and work out for another trial in baseball. Cy Young leaves to-morrow for Augusta, Ga. Cy Seymour has decided to remain here a week longer. Catcher Harry Smith of the Newarks left this afternoon to join his club at Petersburg, Va. Billy Hamilton, scouting for the Boston Nationals, arrived with the Boston Red Sox last night.

Wednesday, weather permitting, Dahlen will divide the team and play an exhibition game for the benefit of the Army and Navy Hospital.

SUN SHINES AT MARLIN.

Giant Regulars and Colts Get Into Action After Long Rainy Spell.

Special to The New York Times.

MARLIN, Texas, March 11.—After eleven days in retirement, the sun beamed down on Marlin to-day, and in celebration of the event Manager McGraw lined up his championship team against the colts this afternoon in the first practice game of the year between the "firsts" and the "seconds." The regulars won in six innings, 7 runs to 6, though the colts batted behind a formidable array of pitching talent. Otey Crandall started for Coach Robinson's team, and was succeeded after two innings by Christy Mathewson. "Big Six" pitched two innings, and Wiltse and Marquard, who followed him, worked only one inning each. Six of the regulars' seven runs were scored off Matty and Wiltse, neither of whom made any attempt to puzzle the batters.

Leon Ames toiled a while for the regulars, and during his two innings yielded three hits and as many runs, and almost caved in all the ribs on Hartley's right side. He had pitched the third string catcher three successive curves, and Hartley, looking for another, neglected to get out of the way of a fast one.

Little Henry Groh peeled off three straight singles, Harry McCormick got a single, and Jack Johnston, who succeeded him in right field for the colts, made a long triple; Big Bill Jacobson fanned once, but made up for that by tripling and scoring a run in the second inning. In all the colts registered nine hits off Crandall, Matty, Wiltse, and Marquard, as compared with twelve the regulars secured from Ferrell, Fullenweider, and Ames. Of the regulars, Devore hit two triples, Murray a home run, Meyers a triple, Merkle and Fullenweider doubles.

With the exception of the pitchers, McGraw used none except players who participated in the 1911 pennant race on his regular team. The line-up:

Score by innings:

								R.	H.	E.
Regulars	1	0	1	1	4	0	—	7	12	3
Colts	1	1	1	0	3	0	—	6	9	1

BASKET BALL MUDDLE AGAIN.

Stuyvesant Will Play De Witt Clinton on Any Armory Floor in City.

The officials of the Stuyvesant High School basket ball team yesterday made a proposition to the De Witt Clinton team that the deciding game for the interscholastic championship be played at the Eighth Regiment Armory on Friday or Saturday. Stuyvesant has protested against playing Clinton at the City College court, because it is too small, a feature which favors the Clinton system of play and because there is no assurance that spectators will be kept off the court.

Dr. A. P. Way, the coach of the Stuyvesant team, said yesterday that his boys were willing to play on any armory floor in New York. Clinton defeated Stuyvesant on an under-sized court earlier in the season, and this gave them a decided advantage, because they are trained on a small court. Dr. Way said that in the correspondence his team had with Clinton and with the Chairman of the Basket Ball Committee there had not been the slightest intimation that the game would be forfeited. As he understood it, if the College of the City of New York court was not satisfactory, and Stuyvesant had good grounds for their objections to that court, any armory court could be engaged. Dr. Way also denied that an armory would cost $100 for the game, but said that many armories about the city could be obtained at rental prices ranging from $10 to $25.

CLOSE POOL MATCH.

A. B. Hyman Defeats E. P. Raynolds 125 to 123, in "Pocket Billiards."

The final round robin tournament for the amateur championship at pocket billiards was started at the Amateur Billiard Club yesterday, and in the evening game A. B. Hyman defeated E. P. Raynolds by a score of 125 to 123, and in the afternoon Lester F. Carter defeated Dr. Walter C. Douglas by a score of 125 to 83.

The Hyman-Raynolds match was by far the most interesting of the tournament. After Hyman had displayed his superiority in the early frames, Raynolds showed a streak of high-class shooting, and in the sixteenth frame was within four balls of the goal. Hyman was as cool as the south pole, and jockeyed about with safeties and position play until he won out by a scant two points.

The scores by frames:

A. B. Hyman—7 15 14 5 14 0 15 0 8 13 8 0 9 5 2 1 14 2. Total—132. Scratches, 7. Net total, 125.

E. P. Raynolds—8 0 1 10 1 15 7 2 7 15 6 10 13 14 1 2. Total—127. Scratches, 4. Net total, 123.

Lester F. Carter—14 11 11 9 6 5 10 8 11 7 0 10 10 10 6 7. Total—145. Scratches, 20. Net total, 125.

Dr. Walter G. Douglas—1 4 4 6 9 10 5 7 4 8 15 5 5 5 5 9. Total—102. Scratches, 19. Net total, 83.

Winners with the Cue.

John Dankelman of the New York team in the National Intercity Three-Cushion Carrom Billiard League, defeated Charles McCourt, Pittsburgh's representative, in the opening game of a three-game series at Doyle's Forty-second Street rooms last night, by the score of six points, while McCourt scored five points.

In the continuation of the amateur handicap three-cushion carrom billiard tournament at Keeney's Knickerbocker Billiard Academy in Brooklyn, last night, Harry Millwood (30) defeated Charles Otis (40) by the score of 30 to 38 in eighty-one innings. The latter's high run was four. This evening W. Price (32) will oppose Edward Milkman, (31.)

HALL WINS AT THREE WEAPONS

Fencers' Clubman Scores with Foil, Duelling Sword, and Sabre at N. Y. A. C.

Ten amateur fencing experts battled last night at the New York Athletic Club for the President's medals at three weapons—foil, duelling sword, and sabre, and after the usual five hours of competition Sherman Hall, Fencers' Club, was returned the winner, with J. B. Parker, New York A. C., second, and Dr. Gignome, N. Y. A. C., and Paul W. Allison, New York A. C., tied for third place.

The rule of last year, which warranted the highest men at the end of the preliminary round finishing for the honors, was not followed, which was one reason for the long drawnout series.

The entries for the three weapons were: New York A. C., V. P. Curti, C. A. Bill, J. B. Parker, Dr. J. E. Gignoux, and Paul W. Allison; Fencers' Club, Sherman Hall and Paul Meglan; Columbia University, J. H. Northrup; Fakers' Club, G. W. L. Bladen.

The prizes were won last year by J. T. Shaw, Fencers' Club; Dr. Gignoux, New York A. C., and E. B. Myers, Fencers' Club.

The two highest men with the three weapons on each strip in the prelimnary were acorded the honor of fencing in the final round, with the result that the qualifiers were Dr. J. E. Signoux, Paul W. Allison, J. B. Parker, and Sherman Hal, their wins showing 8, 8, 7, and 7, respectively, for the three events.

In the foils Dr. Gignoux was the only contestant to get through all his bouts undefeated. Northrup, Parker, Hall, and Allison came along with three victories each, while Bill and Bladen failed to show to winning advantage in any of their bouts.

Curti, Parker, and Allison proved the best in the dueling swords, totaling three wins each. Bladen was the only one to be blanked, a similar fate befalling him in the sabres.

At this weapon Bill, Weylas, and Hall proved the best, but the scores of the first two did not warrant their getting points enough to be considered for the final round.

Everything in connection with the series went along, so far as the foils and duelling swords were concerned, "according to Hoyle," but the actions of several of the contestants in the sabres savored of pirates boarding a treasure ship. This was particularly the case when Gignoux and Pitt faced, as they slashed in a manner to call forth condemnation by the judges, who asserted that the men, by their foul work, were to be condemned. At any rate, the contests at this weapon were full of action in nearly every bout. The summary:

FOILS.

Strip No. 1—Curti beat Bill, 4 to 0; Northrup beat Curti, 4 to 3; Parker beat Curti, 4 to 1; Hall beat Curti, 4 to 3; Northrup beat Bill, 4 to 2; Parker beat Bill, 4 to 2; Hall beat Bill, 4 to 0; Parker beat Northrup, 4 to 1; Hall beat Parker, 4 to 0; Northrup beat Hall, 4 to 3.

Strip No. 2—Gignoux beat Allison, 4 to 3; Allison beat Meylan, 4 to 2; Pitt beat Meylan, 4 to 3; Gignoux beat Bladen, 4 to 1; Allison beat Bladen, 4 to 1; Meylan beat Bladen, 4 to 1; Pitt beat Bladen, 4 to 1; Gignoux beat Pitt, 4 to 2; Allison beat Pitt, 4 to 2; Gignoux beat Meylan, 3 to 2.

Strip No. 2—Gignoux beat Bladen, 9 to 0; Allison beat Gignoux, 8 to 7; Meylan beat Allison, 9 to 5; Pitt beat Bladen, 9 to 2; Allison beat Bladen, 10 to 0; Gignoux beat Pitt, 8 to 7; Meylan beat Bladen, 9 to 4; Meylan beat Pitt, 9 to 5.

New Yorkers in Motor Boat Company.

Special to The New York Times.

GREENWICH, Conn., March 11.—The building of speedy hydroplanes for the yachtsmen on Long Island Sound will shortly commence at Cos Cob, where the Smith-Ryan Company has leased the shipbuilding plant of Palmer & Duff. The company was incorporated to-day for $250,000. The champion hydroplane Reliance Six has arrived here from the Motor Boat Show and will be used as a model. In the new company are James F. Smith, J. J. Ryan, the owner of the Reliable; George Boles, Lawrence Mulligan, J. D. Green, and Senator Timothy Sullivan of New York. The new plant covers six acres of ground near the Riverside Yacht Club.

Dr. Roller to Wrestle Hindu.

The international wrestling contest which will be staged next Friday night at the Clermont Avenue (Brooklyn) Rink between Karla, the Hindu champion wrestler, and Dr. Roller, the athletic physician who has appeared in every principal city in the world, should be fraught with a deal of significance. The contest should produce one of the most exciting struggles ever seen in public, as the dark-skinned foreigner is determined to win decisively and prove his right to recognition from the foremost wrestlers.

ROBESON GOLF VICTOR.

Rochester Contestant Takes First Honors in Pinehurst Tournament.

PINEHURST, N. C., March 11.—Irving S. Robeson of the Oak Hill Country Club, Rochester, captured the chief trophy in to-day's final round of the eighth annual Spring golf tournament, defeating C. N. Phillips of the Greenwich Country Club 2 up on the home green. Mr. Robeson rounded out a card of 78, to 81 for his opponent.

Chisholm Beach of Fox Hills defeated C. L. Becker of Woodland, 3 up and 2 to play, in the consolation.

Competition in the other principal divisions and the two overflow consolations was keen. W. L. Milliken of Indianapolis won the second division, W. E. Wells of Steubenville the third, S. A. Hennessee of Cooperstown the fourth, R. H. Hunt of Worcester the fifth, W. S. Rathbone of Detroit the sixth, Donald Parsons of Youngstown the seventh, the Rev. T. A. Cheatham of Salisbury the eighth, F. A. McMaster of New York the ninth, and H. B. Wheeler of the Allegheny Country Club the tenth.

J. G. Nicholson of New Bedford and R. C. Shannon, 2d, of Oak Hill won the overflow divisions.

GOLF FAVORITES WIN.

Best Players at Palm Beach Capture Matches Rather Easily.

Special to The New York Times.

PALM BEACH, Fla., March 11.—All the favorites came through nicely to-day in the first round at match play for the golf championship of Florida, winning by easy margins. Richard Hyde defeated A. F. Southerland in the only nineteen-hole match. James H. Hyde, holder of the title, will play H. J. Topping to-morrow, when Walter Fairbanks opposes H. P. Farrington. The summary:

Swimming Protests.

Two protests have been entered with the Games Committee of the Public Schools Athletic League by the High School of Commerce, regarding the swimming championships at the College of the City of New York last Friday night. One regards the eligibility of an athlete and the other the decision of the judges. Both protests will be acted upon at the next meeting of the committee and may give Commerce title to the 1912 honors.

Palmer of Manual Training High School, winner of the 50-yard swim, is the athlete whom Commerce protested. It is charged that he has represented an athletic club in public competition within twenty weeks, the time required by the P. S. A. L. before such an athlete can represent his school. If the committee sustains this protest first place will go to Curtin of Commerce, who finished second in this event. The other protest concerns Schwartz of De Witt Clinton, who tied with Mack of Commerce in the plunge for distance, later winning in the swim-off. Commerce declares that Schwartz moved both hands and feet in this plunge. Both protests were registered by P. J. Rotherham, a member of the Faculty Athletic Committee at Commerce.

The revised score shows Commerce tied with Clinton for the swimming championship, each having 15½ points. The first score gave Clinton 16 to Commerce's 15, but in this rating Schwartz's victory in the swim-off was counted, rather than the tie at the close of the regular competition.

Yale Oarsmen Row Outdoors.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., March 11.—Forsaking the boathouse to which they have been confined until much later than usual the Yale 'Varsity rowing squad to-day began its outdoor rowing. Forty candidates, all that has been left of the squad through four reductions the past month, were ordered upon the water this afternoon. Pair oar shells were launched, four or five being kept continuously in the water, each set getting nearly an hour's work. Head Coach Jim Rodgers directed the drill and Capt. Romeyn assisted. Ice floated down Mill River frequently and kept the coxswains on the lookout, but there were no collisions.

Coach Rodgers said to-night that he though that outdoor rowing would be possible daily until the close of the season. Yale oarsmen are usually able to get upon the harbor by Feb. 15. No attempt will be made to form eights for barge work for another week.

BOSTON TERRIERS SHOW.

Rockcliffe Beautiful Doll Best Dog in Club Exhibition.

Mrs. J. W. Minturn's Rockcliffe Beautiful Doll won double honors last night at the monthly meeting and exhibition of the Boston Terrier's Club of New York at the Hotel Gregorian. Mrs. Minturn's entry captured the cup offered for the best dog or bitch at the show, and also won the first prize for the best dog or bitch never having won points at any show. In the latter class M. Schachtel's Ringmaster's Kid was a close second, but captured the blue ribbon for the open dogs class, the second going to M. Ryan's Dee Doddy Belmar, with Mrs. G. H. Pell's Wampage Sosco third.

More than 150 members attended the meeting prior to the show and thirty dogs were benched for competition. The awards:

Best Dog or Bitch never having won points at any show.—Won by Mrs. J. W. Minturn's Rockcliffe Beautiful Doll; M. Schachtel's Ringmaster's Kid, second; M. Ryan's Dee Doddy Belmar, third.

Best Marked Dog or Bitch in Show.—Won by Dr. W. A. Darome's Lady Billy.

Open, Dogs.—Won by M. Schachtel's Ringmaster's Kid; M. Ryan's Dee Doddy Belmar, second; Mrs. G. H. Pell's Wampage Sosco, third.

Best Dog or Bitch in the Show.—Won by Mrs. J. W. Minturn's Rockcliffe Beautiful Doll.

"Mike" Murphy on Franklin Field.

PHILADELPHIA, March 11.—"Mike" Murphy, the Athletic trainer and coach of the University of Pennsylvania track team, who has been in poor health since last Fall, to-day made his first appearance of the season on Franklin Field. He said his health is much improved and that he will take active charge of the track candidates as soon as the weather will permit outdoor work. He expects to be in good condition when the time arrives for him to take charge of the American candidates for Olympic honors this Summer in Sweden.

We won't attempt to paint our Spring negliges in too vivid colors, though after the quiet tones of the season just past they are decidedly bright in spots.

But outside their beauty of coloring, their first claim is their newness and freshness.

Every fancy neglige shirt in our stores is absolutely new, save a handful that were $4.50 and are now $2.75.

New ideas in weave and pattern you expect as a matter of course, but an unexpected and novel detail of some of the new shirts is a clever device for keeping soft cuffs out of the way when you want free wrists.

Thousands of new Spring "Stars" and "E. & W.'s" now in our stores, and on display in our windows today.

$1.50 to $3.50.

DICKSON DEFENDS MOTOR CAR RACING

Followers of the Sport Want Clean, Honest Contests on Road and Track.

Millions of people last season witnessed the automobile races held in various sections of the country. Thousands of devotees of the motor car are dyed-in-the-wool followers of this, the greatest of modern sports, so when one of the leading automobile manufacturers publicly attacked racing and suggested that the American Automobile Association wash its hands of its control, the country naturally looks to some able champion of the cause to make reply. George M. Dickson, whose company last season was a prominent contender in races of all sorts, having won eighty-four first places, captured the world's Stock Championship, the world's Road Race Championship, the world's fastest stock straightaway mile record, &c. Benjamin Briscoe urges that the A. A. A. should let go its control of automobile racing, and casts insinuations upon this sport, belittling its importance.

Dickson replies: "The A. A. A. is an amateur sport governing body. The Manufacturers' Contest Association—an organization composed of the manufacturers themselves, makes the rule that govern races, and then places these regulations in the hands of this unbiased sport governing body, the A. A. A., for enforcement.

"By this method automobile racing is kept clean, honest, and the public is assured of true sportsmanlike control of the events. If the A. A. A. should surrender its control it would then leave racing at the mercy of car builders. I shudder to think what might then happen; wildcat races, manufacturers' hippodromes, and, in fact, commercial exhibitions purely, and not genuine sporting events.

"In short, Mr. Briscoe's recommendation seems to me to be the best way of robbing racing of its merit and destroying the public's confidence in the sport.

"I do not agree with Mr. Briscoe about the value of races. This value, both to the builder and buyer, cannot be estimated. The race tracks are the laboratories where our own cars have for years been put through the white heat of analytical tests, where every ounce of power and every fiber of strength has received abnormal, brutal tests. Racing has aided us in designing and building our cars, in assuring quality. The public can judge value by watching our car perform in the open against competition, and if our car goes 300 miles at terrific speed, not only wins, but comes through without a weakness shown, then I believe this is one of the most honest means of modern business of allowing the public to judge our product. Every time we race we risk, to an extent, our reputation. I can see, however, why some builders shrink from risking their reputation in such battles. A 300-mile race at terrific speed will "tell more" on a car than three years of ordinary service will in the hands of private owners.

"Just to show how sincere we are with our National stock car, we invite the American Automobile Association to schedule a race of cars the same as our customers buy. Let the American Automobile Association drop in on any one of our dealers anywhere in the world, select a car from off the salesroom floor, and without our knowledge of what car they get or from what dealer they get it, enter it in a contest against all comers selected in a similar manner. This, I believe, is certainly a fair and truly sportsmanlike proposition. To date we have heard of no other manufacturer who is willing to risk his reputation thus. We take this means simply of guaranteeing to the public the quality of our cars and the sincerity of our methods of doing business."

TEAM POSITIONS GRATIS.

Scheme to Buy Way Into Olympic Circles Nipped in Bud by Committee.

At a meeting of the Executive Committee of the American Olympic Committee held yesterday at the New York Athletic Club the proposition of a club paying the expenses of one or more of its members as part of the competitive contingent of the Olympic team was promptly taken up to the end that the organizations were notified that the committee would under no circumstances accept money to pay the expenses of any athlete the donor might name.

The committee by unanimous vote instructed James E. Sullivan, the Secretary of the committee, to inform clubs seeking such privilege that if an athlete is qualified to make the team he will be selected, and if those who are anxious to pay the expenses of two or three men think those men are qualified to go on the team they had better send their contributions to Julian W. Curtiss, the Treasurer, at once, because after the meeting of the Team Selection Committee on June 10 there will be no additions made to the team.

This action was made necessary because of offers from a prominent Western club and a large Western university to contribute amounts equal to what would constitute the outlay necessary to defray the expenses of the men they would like to name.

Those in attendance at the meeting were Prof. William L. Sloane, Julian W. Curtiss, Evert Jansen Wendell, Alfred H. Curtis, Matthew P. Halpin, and James E. Sullivan. In the absence of President Robert M. Thompson Bartow S. Weeks acted as Chairman. Mr. Weeks reported for a special committee on transportation made up of himself, James E. Sullivan, and A. H. Curtis.

A telegram was received from Everett C. Brown of Chicago announcing that Ogden Armour had contributed $500 to the fund. The President of the Chicago A. A. has also contributed, and the leading clubs and colleges in the West have taken a great interest in the fund. Mr. Brown says that within the next few weeks at least $10,000 will be forthcoming from Chicago.

On an appeal from Chicago the committee decided to change the date of the Pantathlon and Decathlon tryouts from April 13, 19, and 20 to May 18, 24, and 25. It is believed that the weather will be more favorable for good performances by those who desire to compete in those events.

Nelson and Huff in Match Race.

SPOKANE, Wash., March 11.—Jack Nelson, winner of the 220-yard dash at the National A. A. U. meet in 1911, and Harry Huff, who won the 100-yard dash at the Jamestown A. A. U. games in 1907, have been matched and forfeits posted for a 150-yard race for a $1,000 side bet. The race will be run in or near Spokane in July or August next.

TO MAKE COWARDS OF JUDGES.

Ex-Senator Spooner has found the right word for the recall of Judges and their decisions. "It would make "a coward of every Judge on the "bench," said Mr. Spooner at the annual banquet of those who studied law under the late Prof. Dwight. A coward on the bench is unthinkable. There was a time when Judges wrote their opinions in fear of the King. They were freed from that thrall. They are still free and independent. That is why they are honored, why, with the exception of half-crazed radicals and those they mislead, they have the confidence of the public.

A Judge who writes his opinions in fear of anybody or anything, whether it be the crowd in the streets or at the polls, whether it be of a political boss who has in his hand the power to give or withhold a renomination, whether it be newspaper clamor and attack, or the criticism and the abuse of demagogues, is a pitiful object. A Judge can be worthy of respect, of his own respect and of the people's respect, only so long as he delivers opinions that embody only his best judgment of what the law is. To make him subject to any other consideration or influence is to enslave him. Nobody would be insane enough to imagine a physician making his diagnosis and prescription subject to revision by a crowd at the street corner. The one is no more preposterous than the other.

"I am a firm believer in the people," said Senator Spooner, "in the sober "second thought of the people. But I "have seen the people, when appealed "to by some gifted and attractive demagogue, go wild." When the people of this country made their Constitution they put in safeguards against outbursts of popular wildness. It is only from gifted and attractive demagogues that there comes any demand for the removal of these safeguards.

THE STYLE OF THE EXPLORERS.

It has been the privilege of The New York Times within the past few days to lay before its readers papers written by four of the greatest living explorers. It is a notable group, Peary, Amundsen, Shackleton, Nansen. Never before in the history of journalism has the opportunity been offered to a newspaper to present the writings of men engaged in a life work so apart from the common experience, in whom that work had found and developed such remarkable qualities, physical, moral, and mental. Certainly never before has subject matter of such peculiar and unexampled interest been treated by men who are not authors in the usual sense, but who are, in a high sense, authors of works of unparalleled importance and originality. And their writings, simple narratives of astonishing effort and achievement, or comments thereon, have a charm as well as a value altogether their own.

The trait which, we think, must have impressed many readers in the accounts given to The Times by Rear Admiral Peary and by Capt. Amundsen, the two who stand in the first rank of final success, is their sincere modesty, their absorption in the things done, the lack of all concern in the rhetorical presentation thereof. Not that they are indifferent to the impression made, but they are mastered by the substance and instinctively feel that the simplest and most direct is also the most telling way of communicating the momentous deeds of which they are the reporters and the doers. Naturally they write, as "full men," to borrow Bacon's phrase. Their stout hearts must thrill with the thought of years of toil undergone, of danger faced and passed, of courage indomitably maintained, of disappointments met and forgotten, and of the long-pursued goals finally won. But of all these, in their stories as they have given them to The Times, there is no mention save as they enter into the account to be rendered. They write with the unadorned realism of Caesar in the tale he told of the war that made him Emperor of Rome and master of the known world.

Hardly less remarkable is the style of Sir Ernest Shackleton, in commenting on the achievement of Capt. Amundsen. With him the point of view is necessarily a little different. Complete success in the quest on which he [illegible] comments was denied to him, but his efforts were not less heroic and his motives were on the same plane. His nationality forces him to consider, along with the accomplishment of Amundsen, the situation of his countryman embarked upon a like adventure. He discusses it with admirable fairness and without a trace of reserve as to the real work of Amundsen. Nansen, on the other hand, an expert of experts, has the pleasing task of giving his tribute to one of kindred blood, a comrade and a beloved and trusted friend. What is common to these two and to the successful competitors for the honors of the north pole and the south is the strong feeling they all have as to the interest of science that underlies the tremendous contest in which they have all been engaged. A contest it has been, a tense and strenuous one, taxing to the uttermost the endurance and the resources of those engaged in it. But it has been one in which facts and phenomena of world-wide and secular interest are involved. It has been a struggle to subdue or surmount the forces of nature and to wrest from her savagely reluctant breast the secrets of her remotest regions. It has been a struggle to push a little further the boundaries of man's knowledge, to raise a little higher the level of his attainment. The invincible curiosity of the race that grows more eager and insatiable with each gratification of it is the untiring motive that has inspired and guided this marvelous expenditure of energy, this superb manifestation of unselfish discipline. And the stories these restless and ingenious explorers tell have for any appreciative reader a fascination of their own arising from the curious harmony between the style in which they are told and the wonders of which they tell.

THE PARK INVADERS.

The property owners of the Bronx are stirred by rumors of park invasions in that borough, which has no park room to spare for public buildings, but plenty of eligible sites out of parks for any needed buildings. The Bronx Civic Club is alarmed by a report that a special ordinance is under way to permit the city to take park lands for public buildings. The spirit of park invasion cannot be quelled. We have just passed through a bitter conflict to save and restore the City Hall Park, but the echoes of the strife have not died away before the air is filled with rumors of new plans for park invasion.

The Bronx property owners will unite to save their park lands for park uses. It would be well for the intelligent taxpayers in all the other boroughs to unite for the same purpose. Most contemporary ideas of park improvement seem to express themselves in huge building schemes. We are glad to know that Park Commissioner Stover does not favor the plan of building an art museum on the site of the old receiving reservoir in Central Park. His idea of converting that into a garden when the water is removed is commendable.

THE PAWNSHOP BILLS.

The burglars, the pickpockets, and the thieves of this city, those that read the newspapers, will watch the reports of what is done this morning with Assemblyman Franklin Brooks's bill providing that all the pawnbrokers file daily at Police Headquarters an accurate, fully descriptive list of articles pawned with them. At present any pawnbroker may act as a "fence" with impunity, because he need not file such a list, and the entries in his books need not be descriptive. Police Commissioner Waldo asks that this bill be passed.

It is rumored that Mr. Smith, the minority leader in the Assembly, will oppose this bill, as well as another measure introduced by Mr. Brooks, which is aimed at reducing somewhat the 400 per cent. a year profit the pawnbrokers may collect from their customers. In previous years such bills have been quietly throttled in committee. They are now reported out. What will Leader Smith and his followers say about them?

PATENTS.

The Scientific American, which has at heart the interest of patentees throughout the country, and of the public which is affected by the faulty administration of the patent law, vigorously urges in its current issue the investigation advocated by the Inventors' Guild. Lawyers, inventors, and manufacturers alike feel that the procedure of granting patents and of litigation about patent rights after a thorough sifting of the facts should be overhauled and bettered. The Scientific American instances protracted trials, like the prosecution of infringers of Mr. Edison's lamp patent, which cost him $2,000,000; the Selden patent case, which occupies twenty printed volumes of testimony, and the Knibbs patent valve case, drawn out over thirty years, as typical of this procedure. The fact that patent attorneys themselves, who are supposed to profit by it, have grown weary, and are, in fact, "among the first to urge reforms," is significant.

The Inventors' Guild asks that a commission, eminent as the men who made up the Railroad Securities Commission and the Commission on Second Class Postal Rates, be appointed by the President. Their investigation should be unbiased, and should present a complete picture of the patent system from the points of view of all interests. Doubtless, from the report which such a commission might prepare, would spring lasting reforms of the Patent Office, proper amendments of the patent law, and, above all, the creation of a Court of Appeals. Such a court should be composed both of lawyers and of scientific men, expert metallurgists, chemists, and engineers, trained to decide technical questions without tedious and expensive delays. But the investigation and report upon conditions as they exist are needed first; the reforms will naturally follow. We have no doubt that President Taft realizes the importance of this need, which has become urgent, and at present is ill expressed in the form of dangerous and radical bills.

TALCOTT WILLIAMS AT COLUMBIA.

Mr. Talcott Williams, who has been appointed Director of the Pulitzer School of Journalism at Columbia University, is a master not only of the art of making a newspaper, but of the art of imparting to others the knowledge he himself has acquired. Thus in a double sense Mr. Williams is equipped for the Director's tasks and responsibilities. His appointment will be generally recognized as an admirable one, as doubtless the best that could be made.

Mr. Williams has for many years been a member of the editorial staff of The Philadelphia Press. He has spent his life in newspaper work, in the actual work of making a daily newspaper. He has had ample experience in the news departments of journalism and in editorial writing. He has a peculiarly high reputation for the breadth and accuracy of his knowledge. He has been a student in many fields not directly tributary to daily journalism, and his scholarship and learning have been put at the service of the public in innumerable lectures and public addresses. The authorities of Columbia University felt that they were fortunate in securing as Director of the Pulitzer School a journalist of Mr. Williams's broad experience, and the appointment was cordially approved by the Advisory Council of practical newspaper men.

MR. WATSON'S COMPLAINT.

William Watson complains of the attitude of the English monarchy toward literature. He notes, of course, that when a British King favors a stiff felt hat of peculiar shape, or a soft hat of tweed or velveteen, that kind of hat quickly becomes fashionable. He probably infers that if the King showed fondness and appreciation for good literature, he would make that fashionable, too. It does not necessarily follow. The King to-day is the nominal ruler of a self-willed democracy which may be particular to get the right sort of thing in the way of hats, but is not alert in the appreciation of literature. It is perfectly true that literary taste and monarchical authority have been widely separated since the last of the Stuarts. The four Georges cared nothing for books, and Victoria's literary taste was strictly middle class.

But surely Mr. Watson has no regret that he was not born to sing in the era of Francis I. of France; that he has not been compelled, like Dante, to choke down the crust of charity at a rich patron's table; that he need not depend for a part of his fame and much of his living on the whims of a Frederick the Great. England has done something for its poets, but not much. Edward VII. was well disposed toward all the arts. "You go in for the Shakespeare thing, don't you?" he once asked Sidney Lee. "Well, keep it up; it's a good thing." Lee "kept it up," but no English literary man or woman of the present day owes much to Kingly favor. As for inviting men of letters to meet visiting sovereigns, that would never do. There are too many men of letters and the King must not discriminate.

The modern author must get along without any sort of patronage. Democracies reward hugely poets and prose writers who touch the public heart. But still a poet who must live by the sale of his wares in the market may be a good poet, and destined to be called great by future generations, and yet may reach the verge of starvation unless he forsakes his ideals. There is no reason for Mr. Watson to feel hurt about the honors accorded to Kipling and Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, or any other poets or prose writers on whom the limelight of public favor falls. We trust that he may find both inspiration and encouragement on this side of the ocean. But patronage is surely scarce here, and not very influential, while our literary ideals are uncertain. It is perfectly true that many men of letters in America have been well rewarded for their work.

One thing certain is that the poor poet who cannot sell his poetry must either be content to write and starve or must seek a more remunerative calling. Few of us can live by doing precisely what we like best to do.

ADVERTISING SALVATION.

It is no new thing for revivalists and reformers in religion to comprehend the art of advertising and make use of it. Not to get so near home as to be accused of unkind personalities, we may fairly say that St. Chrysostom, Luther, Whitefield, John Wesley, and Moody had the qualities of good advertisers. In other words, they knew how to interest people in what they were doing. They were aware of the "psychological moment." There is, however, a new turn in the advertising campaign of the Men and Religion Movement. Its promoters are paying directly for their advertising by the line and placing it in the newspapers with the scientific skill acquired by trained modern advertisers.

They know that in a practical world, and this world of ours has been practical since the beginning of history, no man and no cause can get anything for nothing, and instead of wasting that part of their capital they can spare for advertising, they are using it to the very best advantage. That their returns will be large we do not doubt. Profits in money they are not seeking, but the profitable and systematic spread of the means of salvation. Since its inception this movement has been unique in the history of religious revivals. Its method of advertising is its own, and it will pay.

FEEBLE-MINDED DELINQUENTS.

Two-fifths of the inmates of the Elmira State Reformatory, according to its physician's records, are mentally defective. They should not have been sent there. When their terms expire they must be liberated. They are dangerous. There is no place to put them.

This, in substance, is the report of the New York Prison Association, in showing to the Legislature the vital need of a State custodial asylum for feeble-minded male delinquents. Other correctional institutions than that at Elmira are concerned. Matteawan and Dannemora, the two prisons for the insane, are full. There is no custodial asylum. Assemblyman Whitney's bill to provide one should be passed.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

We're Worried About Those Dogs.

One's belief in canine fidelity is a good deal shocked, and perhaps a little shaken, by Amundsen's statement that "three of the best dogs deserted the party at 83 degrees." Before condemning these deserters utterly, however, and before holding them up to the scorn of all after-ages as base violators of all doggish standards of virtue and morality, anybody who has been honored with the friendship of the one animal that has ever shown more than dubious traces of that feeling for human beings will consider the circumstances very carefully, and will find, if he can, explanations that will also be excuses—as explanations always are—for what the three "best dogs" did.

And the explanations can be found. For one thing, and a very important one, these dogs were treated as the servants of a group of men, and lacked that special intimacy with a single master which is required to bring out the finer potentialities of dog nature. They probably differed from dogs really deserving to be called "best" just as kennel-bred and kennel-raised dogs differ from, and invariably are morally and intellectually inferior to, dogs that from birth have shared the home life of a so-called owner, who loves them, not because they are useful, but because they are lovable.

Then these dogs had doubtless observed, and possibly drawn conclusions from, the accelerated mortality among their number. That wouldn't justify desertion "at 83"—not for a dog—but it would mitigate the seeming treachery a little. Amundsen himself thinks that the three dogs went back to learn what had become of one of the pack whose presence they missed. That is only an assumption, and probably wrong, for, keen as is the interest of dogs in each other, it never for long overcomes their preference for a close human associate.

Taking everything into account, it will be safe to hold the three dogs innocent till more proof of guilt is presented. They may have just wandered away in a driving blizzard and followed the backward trail, thinking they were going forward.

Tasmanian Facts and Figures.

Perhaps never before now have any great number of people had their attention called to news from Tasmania, a land which, though of no little importance in its way, is yet so far from everywhere except Australia that interest in it and its happenings is very rarely shown.

The once famous Dutch navigator and explorer, Abel Janszoon Tasman, discovered the island in 1642, while making the first circumnavigation of Australia, and named it Van Diemen's Landt, after the then Governor of the Dutch East Indies. That is the name that appears in all the old geographies. The Dutch didn't settle the island, but in 1804 the English sent convicts and their guards to live on it, and the transportation system was continued there until 1853, long after the Australians had rebelled against criminal immigrants. The present population is about 200,000, pretty well scattered over the island's 24,000 square miles, with Hobart the only large town.

Tasmania is now a thoroughly up-to-date English colony, governmentally a part of Australia. Its women vote. The climate is temperate and healthy. Gold, tin, copper, silver, and coal are mined with profit, agriculture flourishes, and much timber is exported. The last native Tasmanian died in 1876, but there still survive a few "Tasmanian devils," small, savage creatures that prey upon the assorted marsupials which are the characteristic fauna of the island.

As everybody knows now, Tasmania is well provided with means of communication wtih the rest of the world, and it is a curious fact that Hobart got its first detailed account of Amundsen's journey by way of London, whence the explorer's dispatches were sent back to the same office from which they were forwarded. That was going a long way around, but it didn't take many minutes.

Bicycles May Be Revived.

One of our correspondents laments the passing of the bicycle and prophesies its return to favor. When we did both, not long ago, several manufacturers promptly informed us that they were still making the machine in very large numbers, and that they were now as much better as they are cheaper than in the "good old days."

Of course the manufacturers know, but it is a fact that, in this part of the country, at least, not one bicycle is seen now where the wayfaring man had to dodge a hundred, and certainly their vogue as a pleasure vehicle has decreased nearly to the vanishing point. The reasons for this change are not very clear, for the bicycle has all the attractions it ever had, with not a few added, while the roads on which it can be comfortably used have enormously increased in mileage, thanks, in large part, to the bicycle's big brother, the automobile. It should never be forgotten, however, that the bicycle gave the good roads movement in this country its first real start.

Bicycling for pleasure probably had the impermanence of a mere fashion because it involved the doing of a lot of hard work. That always tends to unpopularity. Another thing that hurt the sport was immoderate indulgence in it—the "century runs" that exhausted all except the strongest participants and caused the hypertrophy of many a heart. Racing, too, had its usual evil influence, and now the bicycle has apparently ceased to be viewed as an end in itself. It is treated only as a cheap and swift means of getting from one point to another.

The bicycle may come again. Mechanically it is a most admirable device, and even the automobilists should not look upon it too haughtily, for where would they be had they not stolen its pneumatic tires?

Why Not Try Striking?

In explanation of window-smashing by the British suffragettes, Mrs. John Winters Brannan told the Women's Political Union that something had to be done to win from the Government something of the same serious attention that it has been giving to the miners. The latter, she said, had forced action on their demands by hurting great business interests, and the women hoped, expected, or intended—just which is not quite plain—by a like demonstration to arouse the Government in behalf of their older and, in Mrs. Brannan's opinion, more important cause.

The analogy between the two cases is not perfect, for, up to the present, at least, the miners have not added acts of commission to those of omission. Fortunately, from their point of view, the former were enough. To make coal scarce they had only to stop work, for scarcity of coal means instant trouble and prompt disaster in most modern communities.

Really to follow the example set them by the miners, the women, instead of breaking glass, should have "struck" as women—they should, that is, have refused to render the many special services which form what may be called their trade or profession. That, if done by a sufficiently large number of women, would certainly make any Government take immediate notice and proceed to "do something."

Anybody can do miner's work, after a fashion, but if women went on strike there would be none to take their places as homemakers. To do it, however, would take more courage than it does to throw bricks through windows—would mean hardships worse than those of Holloway Gaol. But it would be effective.

WINSTED, PLEASE NOTICE.

New Rochelle Has Chicken Feeding Device That Beats Your 'Phone.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Without desiring to detract from due appreciation of that enterprising gentleman of Winsted, Conn., who keeps in touch with his chicken house by phone, have to advise Winsted, Conn., has nothing on New Rochelle, N. Y.

A Wall Street associate, Elbert W. King by name, living at 17 Hemlock Place, New Rochelle, N. Y., has for the last two years daily fed the morning meal to the numerous fowl of his large chicken run by way of the "from bed to feed trough trolley."

This ingenious line of transportation connects direct with Mr. King's bed, out of the window and over some 200 yards of garden space to the hennery. The action throughout is automatic. The cord releasing the basket from the bedside rings a bell in the chicken house, acquainting the fowl with the fact their breakfast is en route.

In reaching the feed pen a spring releases and dumps the food basket into a "hopper," from which lateral spouts convey to the several feed troughs.

In justice to New Rochelle, trust you will give this equal prominence with the article from Winsted, Conn. FREDERICK F. LYDEN.

Distinguishing New York's Women.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I heard some women talking the other evening—New York women—and they said that New York women were the smartest dressed women in the world, and that anybody could pick out a New York woman in any crowd of well-gowned women anywhere. Everybody agreed except one man, and he said, "Pish!" Then he added "Piffle!" and went on to say that there wasn't a woman in the bunch who could go into Fifth Avenue any fine afternoon or to the best hotels where elegantly dressed women from all parts of the country, including Manhattan, were wont to congregate, and pick out the New York women. They scrapped viciously with him for a while, but when he pulled from his pocket a lot of photographs of well-dressed women and asked those to whom he was talking to select the New York women they balked. Later, when they had calmed down somewhat, they tried it and made as many misses as hits. From which it may be inferred that maybe after all this talk about the women of New York being such superior dressers may be taken with a grain of salt. Nicht war? W. J. L.

Opposed Salaried Men's Unions.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In reporting my speech made before Cornell Alumni at Schenectady last Saturday your paper and some others have attributed to me the view that college men should organize into trade unions to prevent their salaries from going down. As a matter of fact, I expressed quite an opposite view, as you will easily see from the following extract from my typescript:

> Common workers need unions and strikes as an intermediate step, because through them they slowly, but surely, come to a clear understanding of indomitable economic laws and get ready for a universal industrial democracy. But educated men and women should despise going through the same stage of economic development the second time; they should see ahead in what direction things are tending.

Appreciates The Times.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Some one kindly sent me a copy of your editorial article, "The Closed Shop Crisis." I have had a neat little frame put around the article and am hanging it in my office, where it may be seen by any one coming in.

You publish a sane, sound, sensible paper, and, unlike many, you stick to your text and print only the things that are fit to print. J. L. HUDSON.

"Aerogram" and "Aerophone."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Referring to the recent discussions in your columns as to an appropriate name for wireless apparatus and the message, why not "Aerograph" and "Aerogram," respectively? The word "Aerophone" might be applied to the wireless telephone. F. A. B.

A Widow's Deficit.

A woman whose husband died two months ago must manage to support her four children until the oldest boy can begin work. The father had saved nothing on account of his intemperate habits; and the only relative, a sister, is obliged, like the widow, to take in washing. The food for this family of five costs more than the mother earns, and she needs help to meet the rent. Her one idea is to be able to support her children, and she has sought the aid of the Charity Organization Society until the oldest boy can help. She is well able to give them a good bringing up. The society asks for $312 with which to pay the weekly deficit of $6 during the coming year, that this mother may keep her children with her and realize her ambition without the necessity of overwork.

Gifts may be sent to the office of this society, 105 East Twenty-second Street, and will be acknowledged.

The Charity Organization Society acknowledges with thanks the following contributions received in response to previous appeals in The Times:

E. N. E., $5; E. W. D., $1; J. A. W., $1; Hugo Baer, $1; G. F. Bradley, $1; In Memory of Little Dorothy, $1; Through New York Times, $7; Mrs. J. P. WHAT IS IT WORTH?

Estimates the Presidency by Personal Cost to Its Incumbent.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

At present there are about a dozen aspirants for the Presidency who seek to persuade their fellows into the belief that their individual nomination and election will be conducive to the happiness of the universe. Many a derby besides contains apartments gradually being furnished for "bees." As only eight Presidents at the most can serve in a generation, many of those mentioned are destined to disappointment.

Meanwhile many millions of native voters, without ambition or ability to serve, view the spectacle with delight or distaste, according to constitution of temperament. It is a question whether former incumbents of the office now probably in another sphere are happier, if the records of their conduct and acts are accessible. Unimpassioned history is tepid in display and treatment of the past, exhibiting that men have not yet developed their full possibilities of wisdom in the administration of public affairs, and that the attainment of the office is merely one of the failures of success, just as the acquirement of some great fortunes is accompanied by a nagging conscience.

As the Chief Magistrate of a nation one becomes its slave, as he must relinquish individuality at the command of constituents. In the quest of happiness mental placidity and physical comfort are paramount factors, and are found "far from the madding crowd." The office is one in which there is no domestic privacy. There is the seeming obligation to lay cornerstones, review Sunday school parades, entertain those or be entertained by others for whom no interest is felt. It is to be aroused during travel to make midnight speeches in pajama-ulster combination of costumes from car platforms, to "cram" information concerning events and places, to speechify perfunctorily on occasions of no consequence, and to listen to and make addresses to foreign diplomats of new assignments in language and sentiment unintelligible to each other; to be forced to make official appointments of strangers on the representation of party requirements. It is to be trailed by Secret Service men, photographed in ridiculous situations, reported when visiting the dentist or chiropodist, or falling up or down stairs, or when indulging a "cold," investing, or in the exercise of the minor incidents of life. It is to have the public sauntering through one's habitation, to be pestered by a multitude of servants within, a police cordon without, perhaps cursed with a valet, and probably by an army of the dissatisfied. The obligation to be framed in a silk hat, new patent leather shoes, and a perpetual smile of cheerfulness add to the temptations to resignation, flight, or suicide.

Happy, happy, indeed, should be many millions of native voters who succeed in escaping the honored afflictions, and rejoice in obscurity, shirtsleeves, easy shoes, and any old resting place for them. PLACIDITY.

IMMUNITY IN BRANDT CASE.

Not Granted if Witnesses Are Merely Permitted to Testify.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Of all the bad law which has been spread broadcast by newspapers in connection with the daily discussion of the Brandt case there is none more glaringly inaccurate than that attributed to Brandt's counsel in this morning's papers to the effect that immunity for witnesses is certain if they are permitted to testify before the Grand Jury. The reason assigned for this contention is that the act of testifying automatically grants such persons immunity under the Constitution.

Section 6 of Article I. of our State Constitution provides that no person shall "be compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against himself." This is the only provision of our Constitution which has any application to the question of the effect of testifying against one's self. Argument is unnecessary to demonstrate that one volunteering to testify is not testifying under compulsion. The Constitutional provision is limited to testimony against one's self secured by compulsion. It is not necessary, however, to rely upon the distinction between testimony compelled and testimony volunteered. Chief Justice Church, in the case of Connors vs. The People in 50 N. Y. at Page 242, which has been frequently cited with approval by our courts, in construing this provision of the Constitution, states,

> The prohibition in the Constitution is against compelling an accused person to become a witness against himself. If he consents to become a witness in the case voluntarily and without any compulsion it would seem to follow that he occupies for the time being the position of a witness with all its rights and privileges and subject to all its duties and obligations. If he gives evidence which bears against himself it results from his voluntary act of becoming a witness and not from compulsion. His own act is the primary cause, and if that was voluntary he has no reason to complain.

The Singer case, (18 Abb. N. C. 96,) which has been cited by Brandt's counsel as authority for his novel proposition of law, expressly stated that "it is not pretended that the appearance of this defendant before the Grand Jury was in any sense voluntary." The Singer indictment was quashed on the ground that the defendant was taken from jail and compelled to come before the Grand Jury.

The case of The People vs. Acritelli, (57 Misc. 576,) decided by Judge Crain in 1908, is authority for the same proposition. In the famous decision of Judge Humphrey in the case of United States vs. Armour & Co., appearing in 142 Federal Reporter at Page 808, the defendants were granted immunity from prosecution under the act of Feb. 25, 1903, solely because they had been compelled to furnish evidence against themselves. The language of this statute, which was construed by Judge Humphrey to apply only to testimony given under compulsion, is copied verbatim in Section 584 of our penal law, which is our immunity section relating to conspiracies.

A person volunteering to testify in proceedings against himself can claim no immunity from the consequences of his testimony. This is both common sense and the law as uniformly construed by our courts. GEORGE W. MORGAN.

RESURRECTION.

The air is still.
The edge of Winter's blade
Is turned by long, hard use.
The brown earth, fallowed rich,
Breaks through the melting snows.
The mountain stream
Chants a high anthem from a bubbling heart.

The gray-haired skies
Recall the smooth-browed calm
Of blue-eyed youth.
The trees, still bare,
Yet breathe maternal mystery,
And whisper to the eager-asking birds
A secret prescience. And but last night,
A cricket stirred
And shrilled its bell-like song across the field.

Now Flora walks abroad,
Her fertile tread
Leaving a magic imprint on the mould;
And who have eyes
May see her as she passes o'er the grass.
Her breath is balm,
Her gaze, compassionate warmth;
Her finger-tips drip myrrh,
And everything that senses her approach
Thrills with the joy of resurrected hope.

The birthday of the world is come again.
The old, old earth,
So long despairing, wakes from lethargy,
Renewing faith the cynic, Winter, jeered:
Life is immortal!

MAKE MUTES SPEAK BY SOUND VIBRATION

Public Exhibition of Work Done at the New York Institution for Deaf and Dumb.

MELODY QUICKLY TAUGHT

Once Speechless Pupils Give a Vociferous Demonstration of the Progress They've Made.

An entertainment was given yesterday afternoon at the Kinemacolor Theatre in Fortieth Street by instructors from the New York Institution for the Deaf and Dumb, at 163d Street and Fort Washington Avenue. It was the first public exhibition of the sound vibration system of instruction in the school.

About 450 boys and girls from the institution were present at the matinée exhibition of the life-colored moving pictures, accompanied by Major William H. Van Tassell, military instructor, and I. Bjorlee, a member of the school Faculty.

The children were the guests of the theatre management, and were brought down from the institution in a special Subway train provided for them by the officials of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company.

While Ben Greet related the narrative of "Oedipus Rex," a portrayal of the tragedy was thrown on the screen, and one of the teachers from the school stood at a corner of the stage with his hands thrust into a small circle of calcium light and translated the story told by the speaker into the deaf and dumb sign language for the benefit of those pupils whose sense of hearing had not yet been sufficiently restored to follow the audible sounds.

During a half-hour intermission in the entertainment Major Van Tassell and Mr. Bjorlee demonstrated the method by which sound perception and the power of speech are restored to those who come to the school lacking those faculties. Seated in the gallery were the members of the military band of the school, and from among these boys four were selected as subjects. Major Van Tassell explained that the boys in the band were the best able to differentiate musical tones and harmony because of their training.

"They have been trained by vibration to perceive not only sound but tone," explained Major Van Tassell. "They receive these sound vibrations through the sensitive nerves in the palms of the hands, the pit of the stomach, the small of the back, or through the soles of the feet, just as normal children perceive sound through vibrations against the ear drum.

"The hardest thing with a child who is congenitally deaf," continued the speaker, "is to train him to differentiate between musical notes and to perceive melodies. That they can be taught to do so I am going to prove by means of these four boys."

After the Major had concluded his remarks the four youngsters were sent to the stage and the great pipe organ began to sound the air of "America." After some hesitation the quartet began to sing the words of the song, somewhat haltingly, but in harmony with the music. Then the organ ceased and the boys sang without accompaniment. There was a slight discord, but the notes were fairly well maintained.

After this exhibition the youngsters returned to their seats, and the organist played various well-known airs fortissimo. Major Van Tassell and Mr. Bjorlee called at random upon various pupils to identify the melodies. A few responded in the sign language, but many replied in articulate speech. All answers were correct with the exception of one little 6-year-old, who identified "The Star-Spangled Banner" as "Old Hundred." This boy, the Major explained, is the best cornetist in the school, but is as yet totally unable to differentiate note vibrations, although sound perception is possible to him.

Mr. Bjorlee explained that the manner in which the dumb children had been taught to speak was also by means of sound vibration.

"There is no such thing as a dumb child in the world," he said, "except in such instances as where the vocal cords are incurably paralyzed. These boys and girls, or most of them, come to us congenitally unable to utter an articulate sound. I will not call them dumb, for I consider that word barbarous and obsolete.

"We teach them to speak by first learning the vibrations of the various vowels and consonants. The teacher places the child's hand firmly under his chin, and then repeats the sound which he desires the child to utter. By watching the instructor's lips, the child is able to attempt the same sound. When he does so, we compel him to take hold of his own chin firmly, so as to perceive the difference in the vibration of the sound which he utters and that which the teacher has just made.

"After constant repetition he learns to obtain the same sound perception for himself, and in time he can be brought to utter articulate sounds, until the power of speech of which an unkind fate has deprived him is finally bestowed upon him. Thus by sound vibration the deaf can be made to hear and understand articulate speech and the dumb can be made to talk."

In proof of his assertion, Mr. Bjorlee raised his voice somewhat loudly and began to ask certain boys, all of whom, he said, had come to the institution unable to speak, questions, to which they responded without the slightest hesitation and at time vied with each other in noisy, schoolboy chorus. It was difficult to believe that these children had ever been deprived of the power of speech.

Mr. Bjorlee described the manner in which the power of perceiving sound vibration is developed. The subject is first submitted to a period of training by means of heavy drums, loudly beaten in perfect rhythm, which results in sensitizing various nerve centres in the body to sound vibrations.

Then the course of speech instruction is begun in the manner already described, the pupil receiving the sound vibrations in the palm of the hand, which is pressed firmly under the teacher's chin. In addition three periods of half an hour each are set aside during the day in which the inmates of the institution are all assembled to "listen" to the music of the school band, and thus gradually learn to differentiate note and harmony vibrations.

FORTUNE FOR ADOPTED SON.

Alice A. Hicks Left W. W. Cocks's Brother $334,840.

Special to The New York Times.

MINEOLA, L. I., March 11.—Appraisal of the estate of Alice Alberton Hicks, widow of Benjamin E. Hicks of Westbury was filed to-day. The chief beneficiary is Frederick E. Hicks, an adopted sona nd brother of ex-Congressman William W. Cocks. He receives $334,840. To many relatives sums of $1,000 to $10,000 are left.

To charity $357,000 is bequeathed: Swarthmore College will receive $100,000; Nassau Hospital, $100,000; the Brooklyn S. P. C. C., $40,000; the Manhattan S. P. C. C., $20,000; the American S. P. C. A., $25,000 as a foundation in memory of the founder, Henry Berg, with whom the late Benjamin Hicks was associated; the New York Society for Improving the Condition of the Poor, $50,000; the Westbury Historical Society, $10,000; the Colored Orphan Asylum of New York, $10,000; the Children's Home at Mineola $2,000. The foreman of the Westbury estate, J. Bowen, will receive $25,000.

Cardinal's Suspended Hat.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Father Vaughan's sermons at the Cathedral during Lent are attracting Protestants as well as Catholics, and many of the former have noticed and wondered about a red, bell-shaped affair, with two thick tassels, which hangs high from the dome over the chancel. It is the hat belonging to his Eminence the late Cardinal McCloskey—not one that he wore, but rather an insignia of his high office, and which was always carried on a cushion by the Cardinal's special page. Church custom decrees that after death the hat shall be suspended in full sight of his former congregation at the Cathedral. L. W.

Also Some Curious Persons.

The Little Theatre opens extremely well. To begin with it is a delightful playhouse, a charm to the eye and an invitation to ease and comfort. But that is a mere beginning, the setting as it were, for the jewel. And in its opening bill the jewel is there in Mr. Galsworthy's new play "The Pigeon," which, if not exactly a perfect play according to the regular rules of the game, is worth dozens and dozens of the kind that are served up with all the familiar trimmings of the craft. Finally, the play is acted to the limit, that is to say, with understanding and skill by the artists, who in their several personalities and methods seem to have caught its spirit and to have been wafted along on a wave of sympathy and comprehension. Several of the principal figures, indeed, are acted as perfectly as it is possible to imagine them—and every character, even to the least of them, is projected with a suggestion of something that is real.

This, too, in spite of the fact that Mr. Galsworthy is pleased to term his play a fantasy, a label which it seems reasonable to suppose is applicable to the happenings exhibited rather than to the persons who make them possible.

Certainly, then, if the beginnings of this Little Theatre are to be regarded as an augury of its promises for the future, the public, as well as Mr. Ames and his stage manager, Mr. Platt, is to be most heartily and enthusiastically congratulated.

"The Pigeon" of Mr. Galsworthy's play is one Christopher Wellwyn, an artist, with an inclination to charity that, to the practical, passes all reasonable bounds. A sickly sentimentalist some might call him. He turns out his pockets to every beggar that comes along, and when the pockets are empty he invites the next beggar to his home.

"If I am to give up feeling nice here about people," he says, with his hand on his heart, "then I don't know what I am to do. I shall have to sit with my head in a bag."

And being that kind of man he naturally invites confidence. People tell him things. And then, of course, he can't help doing things for them.

Of course Mr. Wellwyn is the despair of those kindly disposed persons who are forever preaching against the pauperizing of poverty. And he is the despair, also, of his daughter Ann, a very healthy, natural, wholly normal young woman, who certainly doesn't get her practical common sense from the father's side. As for him, says Ann, his pockets are "spiritually—one enormous whole."

To Wellwyn's studio come a party of waifs—the "imps and elves" of humanity that we banish, so far as we can, from our streets and our thoughts. There is Mrs. Megan, a flower-girl, child-wife of a gambling boy of a husband. She is accommodated with blankets and a bath gown and the model's room. There is Ferrand, a French vagabond "exploited by the bourgeois," a philosopher of the gutter, a sort of modern Villon done in prose. There is Timson, a drunken old cabby, fallen to decay but grandiloquently British and strong against the "aliens." They are real people, these, however much each represents a general idea.

Wellwyn takes them all in for the night.

"Poor pigeon!" Ferrand mutters. "Espece de type anglais!"

For Ferrand knows well enough that luck "the little god" masters them all. He was born to be a rolling stone. Mrs. Megan was born loving pleasure. The cabby has more than a taste for drink. Not one of them has ever the ability to refuse assistance. Wellwyn's daughter comes down at midnight to find the cabby in a drunken stupor and Ferrand kissing Mrs. Megan. She is disgusted if not surprised. The one word "utter" expresses her view of the lot.

And the Christmas bells ring out.

"He is come," says Ferrand, with a magnificent flourish. "'Appy Christmas."

Christopher has advisers, a professor and a J. P. According to the professor, "we're to give the State all we can spare, to make the undeserving deserving." According to the J. P., "we ought to support private organizations for helping the deserving, and damn the undeserving." The parson "seems to be for a little bit of both." And so the three advocate, each his special cure, and argue till they quarrel, with no practical result.

Wellwyn tries to arrange the wastrel's lives with the aid of his wise friends, but they will not be arranged. The cabby, as a man-of-all-work, gets drunk, and is arrested, but not before he has spoilt the good, sensible plan of restoring Mrs. Megan to her worthless Mr. Megan by blabbing of her affair with Ferrand. Ferrand cannot or will not find work, and goes off a rolling stone again. Mrs. Megan is put into service, and then into an institution, an "excellent place," and flees from that to the world again. When Ferrand comes back from his wanderings it is to tell how he had tried to die, lying out on the ground with fever; how he had been in three institutions—"they are palaces; one may eat upon the floor"—and come out from them with horror; how Mrs. Megan, in her yearning for the joy of life, "embraced the life of joy." Even the old drunken cabby had "wished to die," under the wheels of a dray.

And while the theorists tumble over the prostrate Timson (hopelessly drunk), the flower-girl and Ferrand go off together, only to return more haggard and ragged than before. The girl ends by throwing herself into the river. Fished out and resuscitated, she is carried off by the Constable to be charged with attempted suicide. At that even gentle Christopher loses patience.

"Well, God in heaven," he cries, "of all the d—— topsy-turvey, not a soul in the world wants her alive and now she is to be prosecuted for trying to be where every one wishes her."

The bobby agrees. But what can he do? It's the law.

Ferrand, after drifting from workhouse to workhouse, is ready to quit. He sees his misfortune and that of the other "wasters." In another social circle, with enough money, they might have been all right; himself an original, an amateur, a dilettante, a traveler; the flower-girl charming and chic; even old Timson would be an "old-fashioned gentleman, drinking his liquor well." He thanks Christopher for understanding them. It is only by understanding that the reformers will ever touch their spirits. Meanwhile, they are wild birds, not to be caged. In the cages, the institutions and workhouses of the reformers, "tame birds pluck wild birds naked." But when Christopher moves to a new house Ferrand once more gets his card; old Timson gets one too. And the flower-girl shall have hers when she "comes out."

Poor Ann is in despair—naturally. The only reason they gave up the studio was to avoid the parasites.

What cannot be made clear in such a fragmentary recital of the story of "The Pigeon" is the charm of the thing itself. Deplore Christopher's supersentimentality, if you will, it is, nevertheless, a very heart-warming thing, and its humor is irresistible. Admit the worthlessness of the wastrels. They are still mighty human. And being human they inspire a spark of kindly feeling. Somehow or other it is less easy to sympathize with those estimable persons who are proceeding with their scientific efforts to improve conditions. When the J. P. and the reformer tumble over the drunken Timson, you merely feel that it is the visualization of theory's downfall when it comes against the concrete fact. Mr. Galsworthy's play offers no solution of a problem. Is there a solution? Probably not. The only thing is "charity"—not the charity of alms-giving, but of sympathy and understanding. Ferrand has suffered and he knows. His is first-hand testimony. Under other conditions he might have been other than he is. Being what he is he still has the sense to understand.

The cast, as has been said, is well-nigh perfect, and a blanket approval might justly cover the playing as a whole. But Mr. Frank Reicher, for one, deserves special attention for a remarkably fine characterization of the French vagabond. His is interpretation of the very highest order—rich, colorful, eloquent, and taking, apparently, all that the text has to give, while adding to it the value of a personality and art wholly in accord. The speech of self-justification, if such it may be called, is eloquently delivered by Mr. Reicher, and, in a thousand and one little details, he rounds out the figure to make it lifelike, to fix its racial and social peculiarities and to make it appealing in spite of its sordid character.

Mr. Sidney Valentine, a splendid actor, is most capitally humorous and wholly true to type in the rôle of the old cabby, and Mr. Russ Whytal, though he seems a trifle too expressive of the man's own sentimentality, is abundantly sympathetic and interesting as Christopher Wellwyn.

Miss Pamela Gaythorne is an admirable Mrs. Megan, especially to be commended for her restraint where it would have been easy to overdo, and Miss Louise Seymour, a newcomer, is altogether charming, fresh, and natural. Mr. Louden, Mr. Howe and Mr. Barry each deserve a word of appreciation, and Mr. Wilfred North as the "bobby" might seem to have been transplanted from the London pavement.

PLAYHOUSE'S DECORATIONS.

Lobby in White in Colonial Style and Auditorium in Walnut.

The audience at Winthrop Ames's Little Theatre last night found almost as much interest in the arrangement and decorations of the playhouse as they did in the production of the play. The red-brick, green-shuttered exterior, with white entrance doors, attracted first attention, and then the lobby came in for inspection. This is done in white, in Colonial style, with a fireplace at one end, opposite the entrance. A stairway leads down to the smoking room and the tearoom. The only relief to the white walls is a large piece of Italian brocade velvet of the eighteenth century, that still holds its brilliant colors.

The auditorium itself has only 299 seats, and is without a balcony or boxes. The seats are arranged on a steep incline, so that a full view of the stage can be had from every chair. The decorations, which follow the elliptical form of the hall, consist of high paneling in walnut effect, topped by tapestry hangings. This tapestry is a copy of a design by Jacques Tessier of the gobelin works, made about 1766-71, with central medallions from designs by Boucher.

The ceiling of the auditorium is in white, bordered with old ivory, with panels in low relief. The lighting is by two ceiling candelabra and several groups of electric candles around the walls. The curtains are of blue and silver brocade, with tapestry borders, and the drop curtain is of gobelin blue. The carpet is mouse gray and the seats, of walnut effect, are upholstered in brown leather.

The ladies' parlor, which opens from the lobby, has white woodwork and walls and is furnished in mahogany. Downstairs the smoking room has woodwork in walnut effect, with a red tiled floor and red leather upholstry on the wall benches. A number of old English prints of actors hang on the walls.

The tea room, which is half as big as the auditorium, has white woodwork, and also has a big fireplace at one end. The furniture is of oak, of the period of William and Mary. The other rooms of the building follow closely the Adams period of Colonial design. In the tea room there is a large service table and a number of small tables. Here tea and coffee are served free during the intermissions.

Included in the audience at last night's performance, for which no tickets had been sold, were:

Mrs. J. West Roosevelt, Mr. and Mrs. Cortlandt F. Bishop, Alexander S. Cochrane, Mr. and Mrs. Paul D. Cravath, Ernest Iselin, Mr. and Mrs. W. De Lancey Kountze, Robert B. Van Cortlandt, Nicholas Biddle, Robert J. Collier, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Erskine Ely, Mr. and Mrs. Henry W. Taft, Mr. and Mrs. M. Orme Wilson, Dr. and Mrs. Percy R. Turnure, Mr. and Mrs. Whitney Warren, and Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Meyer.

Theodore A. Liebler, Alf Hayman, Marc Klaw, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Burnham, Daniel Frohman, Frank A. Munsey, Dr. William H. Maxwell, Chairman of the Board of Education; William C. Reick, Elliott Schenck.

Prof. and Mrs. Louis K. Anspacher, Mr. and Mrs. John Ames Mitchell, Robert Underwood Johnson, Percy Mackaye, Prof. George P. Baker, Harvard University; Mr. and Mrs. Walter Damrosch, Charles Rann Kennedy, E. Hamilton Bell, Mr. and Mrs. Augustus Thomas, Prof. and Mrs. Brander Matthews, Miss Edith Wynne Matthison, Edward Locke, Miss Marguerite Merington, Mrs. Edith Ellis Baker, Furness, Henry Arthur Jones.

Pyle—Merle-Smith Wedding Apr. 29.

The marriage of Miss Anita Merle-Smith, second daughter of the Rev. Dr. Wilton Merle-Smith and Mrs. Merle-Smith, and James McAlpin Pyle, eldest son of Mrs. James Tolman Pyle and the late Mr. Pyle, will take place on April 29, at the residence of the bride's parents, 29 West Fifty-fourth Street. The bride's father will officiate. Owing to the recent death of Mr. Pyle's father, relatives and a few intimate friends only will be asked. Miss Merle-Smith will probably have no attendants and there will be no ushers. David McAlpin Pyle will be his brother's best man.

The engagement was announced in THE TIMES in January, at the same time as that of Mr. Pyle's sister, Miss Sara McAlpin Pyle, to Gustave White was announced. The latter wedding will not take place for several months.

Wed in Union Theological Seminary.

The Rev. Leslie Vickers, pastor of the Presbyterian Church at Tenafly, N. J., married Miss Louise White of this city yesterday in the Union Theological Seminary, where an uncle of the bride, Dr. Gaylord F. White, is a professor. The ceremony was performed by Dr. Stanley White, assisted by Dr. Francis Brown. The couple will make a trip to Australia to visit the parents of Dr. Vickers, returning to Tenafly in October.

Fantel—Schulhof.

Miss Hilda Schulhof, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Schulhof of 314 East Eighty-sixth street, and William Fantel, son of Mrs. Anna Fantel of 115 East Eighty-second Street, were married in Ellsmere Hall, Lenox Avenue and 126th Street, Sunday evening. The Rev. Dr. David Baun officiated.

The bridesmaids were Misses Ida and Lillian Schulhof, and the best man, Hugo Schulhof.

Mr. and Mrs. Cohn to Visit Here.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Cohn of Rochester, N. Y., who have been spending a few weeks in Pinehurst, N. C., left there Sunday for a visit to Richmond, Washington, and Atlantic City. They will also visit this city before their return to Rochester.

Change for Miss Arnold's Lecture.

Mrs. W. Pierson Hamilton has changed the place of Miss Ethel Arnold's lecture to-morrow afternoon at 3:30 on "The Place of Poetry in Human Life," from her residence, 32 East Thirty-sixth Street, to the Colony Club Assembly Room. This was necessary owing to the demand for seats.

Hans Christian Andersen Evening.

The American-Scandinavian Society will give a Hans Christian Andersen evening at the Park Avenue Hotel to-night. The Rev. J. V. Moldenhawer of Albany, will deliver an illustrated lecture. The artists will include Miss Inga Hoegsbro and Miss Ellen Arendrup. John A. Gade, president of the society, will receive, assisted by Mrs. Andrew J. Riis.

'BARON TRENCK' HAS A MERRY MELODY

A Minuet, "The Merry, Merry Way," Full of Cadences That Catch the Ear.

PRETTY FARMYARD SCENE

And Hungarian Music to Go with It—Tenor Nervous on the Opening Night.

BARON TRENCK, a comic opera in two acts, score by Felix Albini, book and lyrics by Henry Blossom and F. F. Schrader, founded on a libretto by A. M. Wilner and R. Rodansky. Casino Theatre.

Baron Trenck	Fritz Sturmfels
Nikola	John Slavin
Josef	Royal Cutter
Capt. Franz	Mitchell Lewis
Alla Wanja	Charles Galagher
Herr von Trautenbach	Pacie Ripple
Marquis d'Aucuneterre	Joseph Herbert
Count Zukoski	Charles Sherman
A Herald	Raymond Bloomer
Countess Lydia von Schawalbenau	Blanche Duffield
Mariza	Perle Barti
Frau Cornelia Stecher	Ethel Dufre Houston
Countess von Holstein	Jeanette Horton
Anna	Mabel Ferry
Ella	Ethel Hamilton

If Felix Albini's score of "Baron Trenck" that was heard at the Casino Theatre last night for the first time in New York has nothing else to recommend it, there is one melody that will be popular by this evening and will form the principal number of every hotel orchestra in the city. It is the air of the duet "In Merry, Merry Way," sung in the second act, a minuet with swings and cadences that compelled the audience to demand it over and over, and to have it repeated three times during the intermission.

However, there is more to the score than that. In fact, the music is pleasing throughout. The first act, that shows a farmyard in Silesia, has music of the rougher harmonious sort, adaptations of Hungarian czardas. In the second act, where the scene changes to the Court of Maria Theresa of Austria, the general scheme of the music becomes more formal and more melodious. None of the airs will ever find so much favor as the number mentioned.

The book is by Henry Blossom and F. F. Schrader, and is as good as comic opera books usually go. The production is made by F. C. Whitney. The story concerns the dashing Baron Trenck, Captain of Pandurs, who rescues the Countess Lydia from a band of brigands and falls in love with her. He is too impetuous for her tastes, however, and she runs away from him without disclosing her identity. The Baron has been ordered by the Empress to marry within a year, and the Countess also is under royal command to marry the Marquis d'Aucuneterre, the French Ambassador. At the Court the Countess and the Baron meet again, and after misunderstandings they come to a satisfactory agreement.

Fritz Sturmfels, said by the press agent to have been "the principal tenor of the Royal Opera, Leipsic," had the rôle of the Baron. Neither his singing nor his acting met with great favor last night, though he was obviously suffering from nervousness. Blanche Duffield sang the part of the Countess Lydia, and after the first act she gave an agreeable performance. John Slavin had the principal comedy rôle, that of a village dancing master, and Perle Barti appeared in the soubrette character of the dancing master's wife. Ethel Dufre Houston made a striking figure as a gossiping Court dame and sang her a few numbers very well. Other important rôles were taken by Charles Gallagher as the basso brigand, Joseph Herbert as the French Ambassador, and Pacie Rippel as the Major Domo.

The settings of the piece are very good, especially the second scene of the second act. This shows a ballroom at the Court, and is solidly built of silvered wood. The orchestra, conducted by Antonio de Novellis, was most effective.

MISS ROSE WOLBARST WEDS.

The wedding of Miss Rose Wolbarst and David Levy, of Montreal, Canada, took place on Sunday evening at the home of the bride's brother, Dr. Abraham L. Wolbarst, 113 East 19th Street. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Henry S. Morais, of Bensonhurst, and the Rev. Dr. A. M. Abramowitz, Rabbi of the Montreal synagogue which Mr. Levy has attended for many years. Rabbi Abramowitz came to this city especially to perform the service.

The bride's brother, Dr. Wolbarst, gave her away, and the best man was Philip Levy, the bridegroom's brother. The Levys will spend their honeymoon at Lake George and in Europe, and will reside permanently in Montreal.

The bride is the daughter of the late Bernard Wolbarst who died recently. Mr. Levy is master of the Ionic Lodge of the Masonic order in Montreal, and is active in the Zionist movement. He visited the Zionist colony in Montreal several years ago, and when the colony recently learned of his approaching marriage, they planted a grove of twelve trees which they named after him.

APPLE ORCHARDS ON THE
HUDSON RIVER
FOR 39 MEN AND WOMEN.

Thirty-nine men and women (incorporated) will employ an expert horticulturist and establish a commercial apple orchard under the same scientific methods that are making Oregon orchards pay $1,200 per acre per year. 12,000 trees will be planted, and each 5-acre interest should pay a net income of at least $1,000 to $2,000 a year.

Berries and other interplanted crops will pay a good yearly income while the trees are coming into bearing.

Cost of 5-acre interest, including all planting and care, $1,170; $270 cash, balance quarterly. Send for particulars.

Marriage and death notices intended for insertion in The New York Times may be telephoned to 1000 Bryant.

$500,000 Needed to Help Cancer Patients

We have reached a crisis in our work. With money we can purchase an addition to our present well-equipped plant that would give us double our present capacity.

This Hospital is supported by voluntary contributions, and all of its 100 beds are occupied. Will you not help us to receive the scores of sufferers who come to us for treatment, and for whom we have no room?

The recent purchase and installation of the most advanced apparatus for the treatment and relief of cancer have brought a flood of cases to us demanding care.

MONOPOLY VICTORY IN PATENT DECISION

Right to Restrict Sales or Suppress Patented Articles Upheld by Supreme Court.

MAY AFFECT TRUST SUITS

Chief Justice, Dissenting, Fears Growth of Monopolies in Defiance of General Law—Vote 4 to 3.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 11.—The Supreme Court of the United States to-day sustained the validity of contracts by which in a number of cases now under investigation or prosecution by the Department of Justice as violations of the Anti-Trust act the holder of a patent establishes a form of trust by the terms of restrictive licenses issued with each article sold.

The case settled to-day is of unusual importance because of its bearing upon these other cases, notably the shoe machinery case, but it has attracted attention here chiefly from the fact that the decision of the court was handed down by a minority of the full court—only four members—while Chief Justice White, Associate Justice Hughes, and Associate Justice Lamar, counted the strongest members of the court, dissented. Justice Day, owing to the death of his wife, did not participate, while the vacancy caused by the death of Justice Harlan is still unfilled.

The dissenting opinion, which was handed down by the Chief Justice, assails the opinion of the court as a blow directed at every essential power of the State tribunals, in that it brings under the application of the patent laws, which are exclusively within the jurisdiction of the Federal Courts, questions so slightly related to patent rights, that they may be extended to every field of human endeavor into which contracts enter. The Chief Justice added that under to-day's ruling, monopolies of all sorts may grow up and be tried only under the patent law regardless of the general law and of public policy.

The comment in Washington to-night is that to-day's decision will certainly be heard of in the next public discussion of the recall of judicial decisions The Chief Justice's hints at the possibility of another decision in the future on the same subject gives point to this talk, and the fact that the decision was handed down in reality by a minority of the court will revive all the adverse comment that grew out of the Tobacco Trust decree.

The Case at Issue.

The case decided is that of Henry Sidney et al. against the A. B. Dick Company, and it comes to the Supreme Court from the Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit. Henry Sidney et al. are a copartnership of New York, and the A. B. Dick Company is a Chicago corporation holding patents for the "Rotary Mimeograph," a form of stencil-duplicating machine. A machine of the form described was sold outright by the Dick Company to Miss Christina B. Skou of New York, with the "license restriction" that she should use with the machine only the stencil paper, ink, and other supplies manufactured by the patenting corporation. The bill as drawn against Sidney et al. was to restrain them from aiding and abetting Miss Skou in violating the restriction by using ink not bought of the Dick Company. The ink in question is unpatented.

The court, which in the prevailing opinion on this case consisted of Associate Justices Lurton, who handed down the decision; McKenna, Holmes, and Vandevanter, takes strong ground in sustaining the validity of the Dick contracts. It is within the right of the patentee, says the court, to suppress articles protected by patent or to sell them under restrictive conditions. This right to sell under restrictions is a part of the monopoly sought to be established by the patent laws under the authority of the Constitution, says the court, and an infringement of the conditions is essentially an infringement of the patent right, and redress may therefore be sought under the patent laws, the general law to the contrary notwithstanding, and the public policy of the State being what it may.

It is in declaring the case within the scope of the patent laws when the effect goes so far beyond the rights conveyed by patents that the majority side of the court drew down the sharpest criticism from the dissenting Justices.

Chief Justice White's View.

"My reluctance to dissent," began the Chief Justice, "is overcome in this case: First, because the ruling now made has a much wider scope than the mere parties to this record, since, in my opinion, the effect of the ruling is to destroy in a very large measure the judicial authority of the States by unwarrantedly extending the Federal judicial power. Second, because the result just stated, by the inevitable development of the principle announced, may not be confined to sporadic or isolated cases, but will be as broad as society itself, affecting a multitude of people and capable of operation upon every conceivable subject of human contract, interest, or activity, however intensely local or exclusively within State authority they otherwise might be.

"Third, because the gravity of these consequences which would ordinarily arise from such a result would be greatly aggravated by the ruling now made, since the ruling not only vastly extends the Federal judicial power as above stated, but as to all the innumerable subjects to which the ruling may be made to apply, makes it the duty of the courts of the United States to test the rights and obligations of the parties not by the general law of the land, in accord with the Conformity act, but by the provisions of the patent law, even although the subject considered may not be within the embrace of that law, thus disregarding the State law, overthrowing, it may be, the settled public policy of the State and injuriously affecting a multitude of persons.

Sees Evil Consequences.

"Lastly, I am led to express the reasons which constrain me to dissent because of the hope that if my forebodings of the evil consequences to result from the application of the construction now given be well founded, the statement of my reasons may serve a twofold purpose. First, to suggest that the application in future cases of the construction now given be confined within the narrowest limits, and second, to serve to make it clear that if evils arise their continuance will not be caused by the interpretation we now give to the statute, but will result from the inaction of the legislative department in failing to amend the statute so as to avoid the evil."

The Chief Justice's reference to the narrow limits that must be observed in applying to-day's ruling to future cases is taken as an invitation to reopen the case, and it is certain that in some other form a similar question will soon reach the Supreme Court. With Justice Day again on duty and the late Justice Harlan's place filled another decision may then be reached. In the light of the Chief Justice's dissenting opinion it is thought that the other patent trust cases now pending with the Department of Justice will be carried on.

The question certified from the lower court in the case at issue was: "Did the action of the defendants constitute contributory infringment of the complainants patents?"

There could have been no contributory infringment, by the defendant, says the court's decision, unless the use of Miss Skou's machine by herself with ink not bought from the Dick Company would have constituted direct infringement. The defendants asserted that the agreement to use the Dick Company's ink was collateral and depended on the general law against restraint of trade and not on the patent law. They suggest that if a breach of the restriction be held to support a suit for infringement of patent rights, parties will be deprived of the right to have the validity and general import of the restriction determined by the general law.

The Majority Opinion.

"We are unable to assent to these suggestions," says the majority opinion to-day. "We do not prescribe the jurisdiction of courts, Federal or State, but only give effect to it as fixed by law. If a bill asserts a right under the patent law to sell a patented machine subject to restrictions as to its use, and alleges a use in violation of the restrictions as an infringement of the patent, it presents a question of the extent of the patentee's privilege, which, if decided one way, brings the prohibited use within the provisions of the patent law, or, if determined in the other way, brings into operation only principles of the general law.

"The jurisdiction of circuit courts over such cases has been for more than a century exclusive by the express terms of the statute, although for the most part its jurisdictions over other kinds of suits arising under the Constitution and laws of the United States is only concurrent with that of the State courts.

"That a patentee may effectively restrict the time, place, or manner of using a patented machine, so that a prohibited use will constitute an infringement of the patent is fully conceded.

"The conclusion we reach is that there is no difference in principle between a sale subject to specific restrictions of the time, place, or purpose of use, and restrictions requiring a use only with other things necessary to the use of the patented article, purchased from the patentee.

"These limitations are merely the respect paid, and the effect given to those conditions of transfer of the patent articles which the law, laid down by statute, gave the original patentee a power to impose. Whether the law on this head should be changed and the power of sale sub modo should be withdrawn or limited is not a question for a court."

WON'T STOP COASTER SUIT.

Federal Prosecutor Says So, Though Trust Attorney Is Optimistic.

BUFFALO, N. Y., March 11.—That the Supreme Court decision on the rights of patentees completely upsets the Government's case against the so-called coaster brake trust, is maintained in a statement made by the corporation's attorneys here to-day. A different view is taken by the Federal authorities, and John Lord O'Brian, United States District Attorney, said the case against the coaster brake concern would be pressed.

"To-day's decision will have no effect on pending litigation in this district," said Mr. O'Brian. "In the coaster brake case the Government's contention is that the patent was not used in good faith, but for the purpose of concealing a monopoly, in short, that it was not a bonafide use of the patent privilege."

The Government's prosecution of the Association of Coaster Brake Licenses, as the alleged combine was known, resulted in the indictment on Jan. 6 of eighteen individuals and six corporations with factories in Connecticut, New York and Ohio.

REVIEW PACKERS' METHODS.

Government Attorneys Argue Against Motion for Acquittal.

CHICAGO, March 11.—Government attorneys concluded their argument to-day on the motion of the defense to have Judge Carpenter take the packers' case from the jury and discharge the ten defendants. To-morrow morning the defense will close its argument in support of the motion and it is expected that Judge Carpenter will give his decision without delay.

District Attorney James H. Wilkerson, Special Counsel James M. Sheean, and Special Counsel Pierce Butler occupied the entire day in presenting their arguments in opposition to the granting of the motion and declared that the Government had conclusively proved its case.

Attorney James M. Sheean spoke of the Veeder beef pool meetings held prior to 1902 and declared that the sole object of that combination was to restrict competition in violation of the Sherman law. He said that one of the purposes of the Sherman law was to prevent a monopoly of the meat business of the country by the big packers.

"Prior to 1902 this alleged combination operated through the Veeder pool," said Attorney Sheean. "For a part of a year the members met in secret at each other's houses to continue the combination. In March, 1903, the National Packing Company was organized and the Government contends that it was through this corporation that the combination has continued its control of the fresh meat industry."

Special Counsel Pierce Butler said:

"The Government has encountered many difficulties. Records we wanted have been destroyed. Witnesses were reticent in many instances. There was throughout the trial a lack of candor on the part of the packing company employes who were called to testify.

"As a result our evidence is of a circumstantial character. No one expected we would be able to prove every charge by direct testimony. Notwithstanding these difficulties the record in the case shows that the Government has proved every offense charged in the indictment."

HASTEN INCOME TAX ACTION.

Resolution Rescinding Approval Is Advanced to Third Reading.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., March 11.—The Hinman concurrent resolution repealing and rescinding the resolution passed by the Legislature last year in support of the Federal income tax was on the Assembly calendar to-night on the order of second reading. It was advanced to the order of third reading without debate or objection, as the result of an agreement between the majority and minority leaders of the House.

In pursuance of this agreement the Hinman resolution will come up for final reading on Wednesday. The Democratic minority, according to Senator Alfred E. Smith, will oppose its passage, and some Republicans are certain to join hands with the Democrats.

Owing to the large Republican majority in the Assembly it is certain that the resolution, which has the backing of the organization, will pass the House, but its fate in the Senate, with its small Democratic majority, is in doubt.

SUNSHINERS CONTEST A WILL

Fight for Bequest That Mrs. Gammon Revoked in a Codicil.

The International Sunshine Society of 56 Fifth Avenue filed a notice yesterday in the Surrogates' Court of a contest of a codicil of the will of Mrs. Emily C. Gammon, a wealthy widow, who died on Jan. 3 at the Elm Hotel, 327 West Twenty-seventh Street. In the codicil Mrs. Gammon revoked the bequest of her residuary estate in equal parts to the Home for Homeless Children, at Twenty-second Street and Fourth Avenue, and the International Sunshine Society.

Mrs. Cynthia W. Alden, President General of the International Sunshine Society, declared yesterday that the codicil was procured by undue influence exerted over the testator.

John B. Lord of 589 Montague Street, Brooklyn, attorney for the executor of Mrs. Gammon's will, said that the estate was valued at more than $20,000.

New York Position for W. S. Kinnear.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 11.—W. S. Kinnear, President of the Kansas City Terminal Company, is to resign soon to accept the Presidency of the United States Realty and Construction Company of New York. Mr. Kinnear came to Kansas City two years ago from Detroit, where he had been assistant general manager of the Michigan Central Railroad.

Ready to Survey Grand Trunk Route.

CONCORD, N.H., March 11.—The Southern New England Railroad Corporation, the Grand Trunk subsidiary, which recently filed articles of incorporation in New Hampshire, organized here to-day. President E. H. Fitzhugh says that surveyors are to be put to work at once to determine the most feasible route for the line which the company seeks permission to build from Vermont to Boston.

Opposes Federal Eight-Hour Bill.

WASHINGTON, March 11.—Frank C. B. Page of Brooklyn, representing torpedo manufacturers, testifying before the Senate Committee on Education and Labor to-day, opposed as unconstitutional the pending bill to prohibit more than eight hours' work on Government contracts. He said it would work great hardships on manufacturers; that laborers did not want to be prohibited from working overtime, and that the Government would have to pay more for its torpedoes under the proposed plan.

BUSINESS TAX WOULD HURT CITY, FELS SAYS

Noted Single Tax Advocate Insists That It Would Tend to Drive Away Trade.

SULLIVAN-BROOKS BILL GOOD

It Would Bring Vacant Land Into Profitable Use and Help Beautify the City, He Believes.

Joseph Fels of London and Philadelphia, who is using his fortune to spread interest in and acceptance of his belief in the single tax, came over to New York yesterday at the invitation of the Mayor's Commission on the Congestion of Population, which evolved and is backing the Sullivan-Brooks bill looking to the halving of the tax on improvements in this city. Mr. Fels stopped at the Hotel Chelsea as a guest of Frederick C. Howe. The Commission's Secretary wanted him for a conference at the City Club, where taxation was to be talked into a corner, and particularly the proposal for a specialized business-occupancy tax recently put forward by the Mayor's Commission on New Sources of City Revenue.

Mr. Fels does not approve of the new proposal. It involves the levying of a special tax on such businesses as theatres, hotels, restaurants, jewelry, art, cigar, and department stores, and automobile salesrooms, which, it is argued, could not escape to the less expensive precincts of New Jersey or Mount Vernon. The idea could not, he said, appeal to one dedicated to the untaxing of business and the taxing only of land values.

"And, besides," he said, "it is absurd to tax a business unless you want to get rid of it. If you were to levy, say, a $10 tax on dogs—greyhounds, skyes, big and little—the dogs would immediately and surely disappear, whether into sausage or in other ways, they would disappear. It is true that a theatre couldn't move over to a farming district, but the money invested in it could escape to less heavily taxed fields."

On the other hand, the advocates of the Sullivan-Brooks measure, which proposes by gradations extending over five years to lower the tax on buildings till it is half that on land, have a warm and enthusiastic friend in Mr. Fels. He holds up the prosperity of Vancouver as a shining example, and believes that its boom is due to the fact that it raises all its municipal revenue by taxing land values alone. Mr. Fels said:

Would Bring Idle Land Into Use.

"Put this new measure into effect in New York, and innumerable rotten shacks would come down and be replaced by better buildings and the quantities of vacant land would be thrown into use. Do you know that of the cities in the United States that have more than 100,000 population from one-fourth to one-half of the superficial area is taken up by vacant lots that never have been built on nor used in any way since the farmer tickled them with his plow? I would venture to say that the amount of unused land within the confines of this city amounts to one-fourth of its superficial area."

But did Mr. Fels think that a commission dedicated to the solving of the problems of congestion would welcome the appearance of more buildings in this already fairly densely built city?

"I think," he replied, "that the effect of the measure would be to induce people to go to the outskirts and build their own homes. And, besides, my pointing out the vast areas of wasted land is no indication that I think they should all be used for building purposes. I merely think they ought to be used, and they would be if they were taxed. Do you know that within the walls of Paris there are 25,000 acres of land used for intensive farming that goes a long way toward feeding that city?"

The Joseph Fels Fund Commission, which is open to many countries from Great Britain to New Zealand, offers to meet the local believers in the Fels tax ideas with contributions equal to the amount they raise. Only recently the Tax Reform League of Eastern Canada decided to attack the business tax, and it is calling upon the merchants and manufacturers of Ontario to subscribe one year's business tax to a fund to procure its abolition. The league is heartened in its campaigning by the assurance that Mr. Fels will contribute a sum equal to the total amount raised in Ontario up to $100,000. Since the commission has been in existence the calls upon it in this country alone have amounted to $25,000 a year, Mr. Fels said yesterday.

The Tariff as He Sees It.

And this campaign against the injustices of the present tax system has its ramifications. For instance, it dictated a recent contribution of $250 from Mr. Fels toward the relief of the child sufferers from the Lawrence strike. After signing the check he penned a letter insisting that the contribution should not be considered a charitable gift.

"The people have levied a burdensome tariff tax on themselves," he said, among other things, "and turned the proceeds over in trust to the American Woolen Company to be used in paying high wages to employes. The people were induced to do this by the representations of the American Woolen Company and similar concerns that this trust would be faithfully carried out. But the corporation has used the money instead for excessive dividends. Similar acts of legal embezzlement are being committed by other protected employers.

"The amount of the inclosed check I have charged in my ledger account against the American Woolen Company and other supporters of legalized robbery. I advance it in part payment of a debt they owe, without consulting them, because their child creditors are in distress through their reluctance to settle. I doubt whether they will recognize the obligation, in spite of its manifest justice, since it is not legally enforcible. Consequently if it must be considered a charitable gift, let it be fully understood that the real recipients of this charity are not the poor children from Lawrence, but the stockholders of the American Woolen Company and other upholders of existing wrongs."

NEW MERCHANT COMMITTEES.

Association Preparing to Extend Its Work Through Them.

The plans for expansion and for the extension of activities that were recently decided upon by the Merchants' Association have made a reconstruction of the committee plan necessary. By the resolution of the Board of Directors all the old committees have been discharged, and the Executive Committee has been instructed to revise them to meet the new policy of the association.

The Executive Committee has also been directed to increase its membership to five as soon as practicable, and to prepare a list of standing committees, to adopt a title and define the duties of each committee, and to name a chairman and any additional members required. It is said that twenty-six committees have been named.

Protest has been made by the association against the bill introduced at Albany by Senator Harte, which calls for the dividing of the firemen of the city into two platoons.

Opposes a Discharge for Cummins.

William J. Cummins, formerly a Director of the Carnegie Trust Company, against whom petitions in bankruptcy were filed on April 12 and July 1, 1911, applied for his discharge from bankruptcy yesterday before Judge Holt in the United States District Court. Only one creditor, James S. Watson, appeared to oppose the discharge. Mr. Watson was represented by Abner S. Werblin, who said that Mr. Watson's claim totals about $80,000 on an assigned claim of the Hungarian-American Bank. The case went over for two weeks. The Cummins liabilities were $5,060,812, and nominal assets $135,500.

CHANGE LIGGETT BY-LAWS.

Tobacco Company to Pay Officials Percentage of Increased Earnings.

At the first annual meeting in Jersey City yesterday of the Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company, one of the new companies formed in the dissolution of the American Tobacco Company, the proposed change in the by-laws which will give the officers of the company a direct interest in any profits over a certain amount was adopted. When the net profits exceed $4,552,784, the amount earned in the past year, 10 per cent. of the excess is to be distributed to the President and five Vice Presidents in the proportion of 2½ to the President and 1½ per cent. to each of the others.

The Liggett & Myers Company has been operating only since November, and the earnings for but one month, December, were made public at the meeting. These showed net earnings, exclusive of the company's share of undivided net earnings in the enterprises in which it holds stock, of $598,572. After all deductions there was a surplus for the month of $363,623.

The balance sheet showed total assets of $69,221,000, of which $41,450,000 is in the form of real estate, machinery, trademarks, &c., and $17,174,000 in tobacco on hand.

MERGING ELECTRIC ROADS.

New York Central Interests Control Three Up-State Companies.

ALBANY, N. Y., March 11.—A merger of the Syracuse Rapid Transit Company, the Oneida Railway Company, and the Utica and Mohawk Valley Railway with the New York State Railways is announced in an application by the New York State Railways to the Public Service Commission for permission to purchase the outstanding stock of the Syracuse Rapid Transit Company and for authority to issue $7,795,038 in bonds. The proceeds of the issue will be for refunding outstanding bonds and for purchasing stock and notes of the smaller companies.

The New York State Railways Company is the interurban electric system of the New York Central interests. It owns 57.94 per cent. of the stock of the Syracuse Rapid Transit Company, 96.13 per cent. of the stock of the Oneida Railway Company and all of the Utica and Mohawk Valley Railway stock. It has long been the programme to consolidate these properties with the New York State Railways.

RALLY IN ASPHALT STOCK.

General Company's Earnings for 1911 Said to Exceed Those of 1910.

PHILADELPHIA, March 11.—Following the big drop on Saturday in the price of the stock of the General Asphalt Company, there was a rally on the Stock Exchange to-day, and the stock recovered almost all of its loss.

The opening price of the common stock was 23, compared with 20 on Saturday. It advanced to 25⅝, and closed at 25. The preferred, which closed at 60 on Saturday, opened at 63, and advanced to 66, at which price it closed. Transactions in the stock were heavy.

A reassuring statement was issued by John M. Mack, President of the company, who explained the company's expenditures on account of oil development during the last four years, and made public figures showing that the company's net earnings for 1911 were in excess of those of the previous year.

AGAINST WALL PAPER PIRACY.

Importers Will Try to Stop the Stealing of Designs.

Samples of domestic wallpapers, the designs of which are said to have been copied entirely or in part from imported papers, are being collected by several New York importers, who will shortly place them before the Wallpaper Manufacturers, Limited, of Great Britain, preliminary to action for the protection of such designs under the international copyright laws. Discussing the situation yesterday, one of the leading importers in the trade said:

"This pirating, either wholy or in part, of our designs has been the source of considerable annoyance and loss of business to us for a long time, but until the recent visit of a representative of the Wallpaper Manufacturers, Limited, to this market no definite steps were taken to check the practice.

"It is not alone on the importer that this evil has its effect. Our attention has been called to a number of cases in which domestic papers have been made up with designs copied outright from imported samples and disposed of by unprincipled retail dealers to customers who had chosen the paper from the original sample on the stand furnished by the importer.

"These papers are usually made up at a very low cost, and are delivered to the customer as imported stock at a cost several times greater. Such substitutions cost the importers a considerable amount of business during the year. The average person cannot recognize the change in design, if there is any, and if any question is raised the retailer usually gets out successfully by telling his customer that all wallpapers look a little different after hanging."

CHARGES FRUIT LAND FRAUD.

C. O. Whitmore Seeks Receiver for Company Involved in Cuban Deal.

BOSTON, March 11.—The appointment of a receiver for the International Fruit and Sugar Company is sought in a bill brought in the Superior Court to-day by Charles O. Whitmore of Hartford, Conn. The defendant officers and Directors named were George F. Davis of Toronto, Ira G. Ross of Boston, and E. Edward Rice and Charles F. Hill, both of Brookline.

It is alleged that the company was used by the individual defendants in a scheme to defraud. They were officers in that company and the Canadian Cuba Land Company. It is charged in the complaint that the individual defendants caused the Canadian Company to transfer to the Fruit Company, at a grossly excessive price, 40,000 acres of land in the province of Pinar Del Rio, Cuba, and that $400,000 was the price paid, of which $350,000 was in cash and $50,000 in bonds of the Fruit Company.

The land was placed with the trust company as trustees to secure a mortgage executed to secure the issue of bonds by the Fruit Company. The latter was capitalized at $1,900,000. It is charged in the petition that the land was worth only $50,000.

It is alleged that the fruit company offered the stock and bonds to the public and falsely represented that the property was worth $2,000,000; that the business was that of a going concern.

An order of notice returnable Friday was issued.

PUSH WATER POWER INQUIRY.

Ferris Committee Authorized to Study State Ownership Plan.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., March 11.—The Senate to-night adopted a resolution continuing for a year the life of the Ferris Committee, which was authorized to investigate the question of water storage and the development of the State's National water power. The resolution adopted to-night enlarges the jurisdiction to include the question of water power development by the State itself for municipal and commercial uses.

The State ownership plan, by which it is intended that the State shall generate electric power and dispose of it at cost, is arousing considerable stir among those who are interested in power corporations. The committee is given $30,000 additional for expenses.

Anti-Injunction Bill Ready.

WASHINGTON, March 11.—The House Committee on Judiciary has completed its anti-injunction bill and will to-morrow take a final vote on it and report it to the House. This bill will be submitted by Chairman Clayton as the Democratic position on injunction legislation, which has been urged by labor leaders for many years.

OLD OIL SUBSIDIARY TELLS OF ITS VIRTUE

Vacuum Company Issues a Circular to Stockholders to Reassure Them.

POINT ABOUT THE PROFITS

Some Fractional Shareholders Sold Warrants Before They Realized Their Value.

The Vacuum Oil Company a former subsidiary of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, which from the point of view of the small stockholder has appeared as the one good little trust of all the brood of 26 Broadway orphaned by the Supreme Court decision, sent out a circular yesterday emphasizing its peculiar virtue and in contrast with the behavior of many of its orphan brothers, its lonely one.

Last month when stockholders of the other subsidiaries, all except those of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company now fighting the Standard Oil control, were complaining of the refusal to them of all information as to the financial standing of the various companies in which they had received allotments of stock, the Vacuum Oil Company issued a full balance sheet and financial statement. It showed among total assets of $25,000,000, the item of $10,605,312 covering stocks of foreign vacuum oil companies held. Yesterday the stockholders received a circular explaining away a possible misapprehension. It read:

> Inquiries from stockholders regarding our statement of Feb. 12, 1912, leads us to state that the stocks of the foreign vacuum oil companies were included in that statement at about $280,000 less than the value of same, as shown by the books of the foreign companies.
>
> The profits given in that statement include the profits on the Vacuum Oil Company's stocks of the foreign corporation, whether distributed in dividends or added to surplus.
>
> The yearly earnings of the company, from 1906 to 1910, with the exception of 1907 and 1908, show steady increase.

At the time the statement was given to stockholders a meeting was called to increase the capital from $2,500,000 to $15,000,000, stockholders being permitted to subscribe to the new stock at par at the rate of five new shares for one held. The same proportion was allowed to holders of fractional parts of a share. As each holder of a single share of the old Standard Oil of New Jersey stock had received only $2.54204 in Vacuum Oil stock the minimum accruing in new shares to any fractional holder amounted to $12.71 in par value.

The rights are valuable since the full shares of the company's stock sell around $300 a share, but many of the fractional holders, too confused to appreciate it, sold their stock without taking account of the warrants which they have since claimed.

The result has been that some of the purchasers of fractional lots of record of the date on which the warrants for new stock were allowed have found that their subscription privileges are disputed. The company has issued the warning with some warrants that they are in dispute and that trading in them is at the trader's risk.

One item in the circular which has excited curiosity is the request that stockholders who do not wish to take advantage of their rights to new stock return the warrant for it to the company as soon as possible. This, the circular says, "would be a convenience to the interest of yourself and all stockholders that will be appreciated."

Curb men were asking themselves yesterday what kind of a convenience it would be to a stockholder to return to the company a warrant which is quoted in the open market at the rate of $300 a share.

ARBITRAGE ON LITTLE BOARD.

One Firm Has London Connections—Others Are Thinking of Them.

The Consolidated Exchange has taken up the possibilities of handling arbitrage business with London. This was for years practically the exclusive perquisite of the "Big Board," but business in this department of the Stock Exchange has been stagnant ever since last Summer, when the Governing Committee put a stop to the old practice of making commission charges between the New York houses and their London connections, merely bookkeeping transactions in which one side of the deal canceled the other.

A rule went into effect last July requiring the New York houses to charge the full one-eighth commission. Whether the business would have fallen off any way as a result of the lack of public interest in the market is an open question, but that the brokers think that the new rule had much to do with it is evidenced by the fact that a majority of the members of the Stock Exchange have petitioned the Governing Committee to go back to the old system. This petition is now before the Committee on Commissions.

The Consolidated Exchange has taken no official action, but the Consolidated firm of Warren W. Erwin & Co. has circularized members of the "Little Board" inviting them to participated in the arbitrage business and explaining that they have made London connections which will make it comparatively simple to conduct arbitrage operations on the Consolidated Exchange.

New Protective Association Formed.

It was learned on reliable authority yesterday that a committee has been chosen from the credit departments of several representative New York wholesale men's furnishing houses to organize a protective association that will work in conjunction with the Clothiers' Association of New York and utilize its credit and adjustment bureau on a reciprocal basis. Jules Hart of Louis Meyers & Son is Chairman of the committee, and among the other members are W. H. Culber of Cluett, Peabody & Co., W. L. Smith of James P. Keiser, Inc., and A. C. Knothe of Knothe Brothers.

REFEREES' NOTICES.

SUPREME COURT, COUNTY OF NEW York.—HATTIE MOSSLER, Plaintiff, against JAMES A. CUNNINGHAM, Defendant.

In pursuance of a judgment of foreclosure and sale, duly made and entered in the above-entitled action and bearing date the 27th day of November, 1911, I, the undersigned, the referee in said judgment named, will sell at public auction, at the Exchange Salesroom, Nos. 14-16 Vesey Street, in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the 27th day of March, 1912, at 12 o'clock noon on that day, by Bryan L. Kennelly, auctioneer, the premises directed by said judgment to be sold, and therein described as follows: All that certain lot, piece, or parcel of land, with the buildings thereon erected, situate, lying, and being in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, (formerly the Twelfth Ward of the City of New York,) bounded and described as follows:

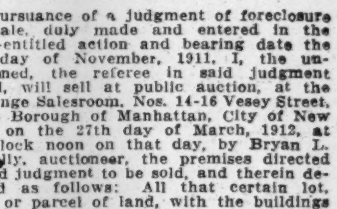
Beginning at a point on the southerly side of One Hundred and Sixteenth Street, distant three hundred and thirty-five (335) feet westerly from the corner formed by the intersection of the westerly side of First Avenue and the southerly side of One Hundred and Sixteenth Street; running thence southerly, and partly through the centre of a party wall, one hundred (100) feet and ten (10) inches; thence westerly, and parallel with One Hundred and Sixteenth Street, twenty (20) feet; thence northerly, and parallel again with First Avenue, and partly through the centre of a party wall, One Hundred (100) feet and ten (10) inches to the southerly side of One Hundred and Sixteenth Street, and thence easterly along said last mentioned street, twenty (20) feet to the place of beginning.

Dated New York, March 2, 1912.

PETER GATENS, Referee.

FIXMAN, LEWIS & SELIGSBERG, Attorneys for Plaintiff, 55 Liberty Street, Borough of Manhattan, New York City.

The following is a diagram of the property to be sold: its street number is 324 East 116th Street.



The approximate amount of the lien or charge, to satisfy which the above-described property is to be sold, is two thousand one hundred sixty-seven and 50-100 ($2,167.50) dollars, with interest thereon from the 27th day of November, 1911, together with costs and allowance amounting to two hundred sixty-one and 45-100 dollars with interest from November 27, 1911, together with the expenses of the sale. The approximate amount of the taxes, assessments and water rates, or other liens, which are to be allowed to the purchaser out of the purchase money, or paid by the referee, is four hundred five and 83-100 dollars and interest. Said premises will be sold subject to a first mortgage for eight thousand dollars and interest from July 1, 1911, at 5% per annum, which mortgage is past due.

Dated New York, March 2, 1912.

PETER GATENS, Referee.

Two Good Reasons

For two reasons we subject every company whose bonds we offer to a rigid investigation.

First.—Because we always purchase the control of such companies outright and must have absolute knowledge of their condition for self-protection.

Second.—So that if it ever seems advisable to issue bonds, we may be able to furnish investors absolutely trustworthy data regarding those securities.

SUBSIDIARY ROADS AID STEEL PROFITS

Witness Before Stanley Committee Quotes Figures to Show Corporation's Great Advantage.

FREIGHT RATES ARE HIGH

Duluth Line, He Says, Made a Return in 1910 of 240 Per Cent. on Its Capital Stock.

WASHINGTON, March 11.—Figures intended to show that railroad companies allied with the United States Steel Corporation by high freight rates earn large dividends which go to stockholders of the Steel Corporation, and that such railroads are an advantage to the Steel Trust over competing concerns that own none, were submitted to the Stanley Investigating Committee to-day by Guy M. Freer, a traffic authority.

An effort to shut out opinions of the witness as to the reasonableness of certain rates was made by Republican members of the committee, but it failed when the committee supported the decision of Chairman Stanley by a strict party vote. Statistics presented by Mr. Freer showed high freight rates on ore roads and large earnings.

The Duluth, Missabe & Northern Railroad, he showed, in 1910 made a return of more than 240 per cent. on its capital stock when the ore rate from the Minnesota mines to Lake Superior was 80 cents a ton. The Pittsburgh Steamship Company, another Steel Corporation subsidiary, which carries ore down the lakes, it was shown, made large earnings.

"The profit to the steamship company in the handling of the ore was 24½ cents a ton," Mr. Freer declared. "That profit on the total capitalization of $20,500,000 is 16 per cent."

Mr. Freer said that coal and other commodities were carried merely to reduce the expense of transporting the ore.

"There is an advantage to the Steel Corporation," said Mr. Freer, "over its competitors if it makes a profit on this transportation, which competitors do not make."

"Do any outside companies own docks at Lake Superior?" Mr. Stanley asked.

"I understand not."

The dock at Conneaut, Ohio, he said, was operated by a Steel Corporation subsidiary. In 1910 more than 6,000,000 tons of ore were handled at that dock. The dock company in 1910 made a profit of about 14½ cents a ton for handling ore. This charge is now under investigation, the dock company having been indicted for making an allowance on the dock charge to the United States Steel Corporation.

From Conneaut Harbor ore is transported to Pittsburgh over the Steel Corporation's road, the Bessemer & Lake Erie, at a net rate of 96 cents a ton, a distance of 140 miles. Mr. Freer said the net earnings of this road in 1910 were $3,728,000.

The 96 cents ore rate from Lake Erie ports, Mr. Freer said, was fixed at a conference of railroads in the district. Mr. Reed, counsel for the corporation, said the Bessemer & Lake Erie never participated in any such conference, but adopted the rate after it had been fixed by other roads.

LOSES STOCK GIVEN BROKER.

Davie Pledged Certificates and Court Upholds Bank's Title.

BOSTON, March 11.—If an owner of stock knowingly places in the hands of another the certificate therefor, the person to whom the certificate and instrument are delivered can pass a good title by delivery or pledge regardless of the relations between him and the owner, according to a decision handed down by the full bench of the Massachusetts Supreme Court to-day.

This decision was in a case decided against Capt. William H. Jackson, one of the customers of Robert E. Davie, known as the "Boy Broker," who is now serving a sentence for larceny. Jackson sought to have the Federal Trust Company of Boston ordered to return stock which he had intrusted to Davie.

In the course of dealings with Davie, Jackson allowed him to have possession of 1,170 shares of stock of the American News Company, a New York corporation, which were valued at $117,000. Jackson indorsed the certificates in blank, and Davie borrowed $80,000 of the Federal Trust Company, pledging 1,070 shares of this stock as security.

Western Trolley Lines Sold.

ROCK ISLAND, Ill., March 11.—Western capitalists, according to an announcement made here to-day, have taken over from New York bankers the control of the $11,000,000 Tri-City Railway and Light Company which operates the public utilities of Rock Island and Moline, Ill., and Davenport, Iowa. Among the men now in control of the company are Samuel Insull, G. B. Caldwell, Edward Russell, and H. L. Stewart of Chicago and J. G. White and William Butterworth of Moline.

YUKON GOLD DOING BETTER.

Gain in Operations 27 Per Cent.—Dredges Working More Days.

The annual report of the Yukon Gold Company for the year ended Dec. 31 shows an increase in the average working days of the company's dredges, substantial increases in the properties available for operations, and a gain of 27 per cent. in the gross value of gold recovered. On the other hand, the costs increased and the average values per cubic yard decreased. O. B. Perry, the company's consulting engineer and general manager, explains that the dredge operations began about three weeks earlier than in 1910, but the operating season was reduced approximately the same length of time by drought, which hampered the dredges.

The season for the seven dredges averaged 171½ days, as compared with 159 days in 1910. They handled 4,151,249 cubic yards and produced $2,671,845 gross gold. The average value per cubic yard was 64.35 cents, as compared with 66.18 the previous season, a circumstance due to the fact that one dredge was digging largely in worked ground and tailings. The increase in cost from 31.09 cents per cubic yard in 1910 to 35.43 in 1911 was chiefly due, the report says, to the greater percentage of frozen ground encountered in the season's operations.

The hydraulic operations washed 2,125,551 cubic yards of gravel, an increase of 19 per cent., the total gross production of these operations being $434,382, a decrease of $300,000, as compared with 1910. The report explains that the use of elevators on the rich creek gravels was suspended because this material could be handled by dredges less expensively. This is given to account for the falling off in the returns from hydraulic operations.

Yardage was increased by 1,930,000 by purchase and working agreements.

The balance sheet shows an increase in property and investment accounts from $11,885,460 to $12,163,412, and in equipment from $6,427,002 to $6,495,481.

TAKEN BY EQUITABLE TRUST.

North America Safe Deposit Goes Into New Hands.

The Equitable Trust Company, which absorbed the Trust Company of America and got possession of its large banking rooms at 37 Wall Street after the Equitable Trust offices were burned out in the Equitable Life fire, has now taken over the North America Safe Deposit Company, at 43 Exchange Place. The safe deposit company is under the old banking rooms of the National Bank of North America, which failed as a result of Charles W. Morse's operations. The Exchange Place front and 37 Wall Street are all part of the same building. The safe deposit company was formerly connected with the Trust Company of America, and its acquisition by the Equitable Trust carries with it the Colonial Safe Deposit Company, at 220 Broadway, where the Colonial Branch of the old Trust Company of America, now part of the Equitable Trust, is located.

The Equitable Trust Company owns also the Equitable Safe Deposit Company, at 618 Fifth Avenue. The latest report of the North American Safe Deposit Company shows John H. Flagler as President. It is capitalized at $150,000.

DETINNING DIVIDEND FAR OFF.

Stockholder Forgot That 20 Per Cent. Is Owing on Cumulative Preferred.

Vice President Adolph Kern of the Vulcan Detinning Company made an effective answer yesterday to the attempt of a stockholder to enlist others for an appeal to the management for common stock dividends. This stockholder suggests 3 per cent. as a possible starter. He had apparently overlooked the fact that the company's 7 per cent. preferred stock is cumulative and more than 20 per cent. in back dividends is due.

Vice President Kern pointed out this essential and also remarked that the litigation with the American Company over patent infringements is still in the courts, and although approximately $680,000 has been awarded the company the final decision will not be handed down for several months.

Seeking Calumet and Hecla Proxies.

Stockholders of the Seneca Mining Company, which is controlled by the Calumet & Hecla Mining Company, are being solicited for proxies by T. L. Chadbourne, Jr. The Chadbourne family are credited with holding 1,121 shares of the 8,805 not owned by the Calumet & Hecla, theirs being the largest minority interest. Mr. Chadbourne hopes to enter the Directorate as the representative of the minority interest.

PROPOSALS.

STATE OF NEW YORK.—OFFICE OF THE Superintendent of Public Works, Albany.—March 8th, 1912.

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS.—Sealed proposals will be received by the undersigned at his office in the Capitol in Albany, N. Y., until twelve o'clock noon of Tuesday, April 9th, 1912, at which place and hour they will be publicly opened and read, for improving the New York State Canals pursuant to the provisions of Chapter 147 of the Laws of 1903, and of the amendments thereto, as follows:

CONTRACT NO. 105
Erie Canal—Sections 9 and 10.

For the construction of five lift bridges over the Erie Canal, and all appertaining construction, at the following locations:
Union Street, Spencerport, Station 3287+8±
Washington Street, Adams Basin, Station 3441+23±
Park Avenue, Brockport, Station 3681+40±
At Hulberton, Station 4091+89.67
At Gasport, Station 5530+33±
Sheets 1 to 31 inclusive.

Plans may be seen and detailed specifications, engineer's estimate of quantities, proposal blanks, form of contract and bonds required and other information for proposers may be had at the office of the Superintendent of Public Works at Albany, N. Y., at the office of the Assistant Superintendent of Public Works for the Middle Division at Syracuse, N. Y.; at the office of the Assistant Superintendent of Public Works for the Western Division at Rochester, N. Y.; and at the canal office, Spaulding's Exchange, Buffalo, N. Y.

Copies of detailed plans or drawings may be obtained from the State Engineer and Surveyor at Albany, N. Y., upon payment to him of the cost of producing them.

Monthly estimates will be paid of ninety per centum (90 per cent.) of the work done at the contract price. Every proposal for said work must be accompanied by a money deposit in the form of a draft or certified check upon some good banking institution in the city of Albany or New York, issued by a national or State bank in good credit within the State and payable at sight to the Superintendent of Public Works for five per centum (5 per cent.) of the amount of the proposal.

The person whose proposal shall be accepted will be required to execute a contract and furnish bonds within ten days from the date of notice of award delivered to him or them in person or mailed to the address given in the proposal.

Upon execution of the contract and approval of bonds, the certified check or draft will be returned to the proposer unless the same shall have been presented for collection prior to such time, in which case the amount of the deposit will be refunded by the Superintendent of Public Works.

The deposits of bidders other than the one to whom the award of contract shall be made will be returned immediately after the award has been made.

The amount of bond required for faithful performance will be ten per centum (10 per cent.) of the amount of the estimated cost of the work according to the contract price, and an additional bond, known as the labor bond, in the sum of ten per centum (10 per cent.) of the amount of the estimated cost of the work according to the contract price, will be required as security that the contractor will pay in full at least once in each month all laborers employed by him upon the work specified to be done in the contract.

In the event that more than one surety company is offered as surety on said bonds, co-insurance only will be accepted.

Each proposal must be addressed to the Superintendent of Public Works, Albany, N. Y., and must be indorsed on the envelope with the name of the construction for which the proposal is made.

Award, if made, will be made to the person or persons whose proposal shall be lowest in cost to the State for doing the work, and which shall comply with all provisions required to render it formal. Before any award shall be made the lowest bidder will be required to satisfy the Superintendent of Public Works of his ability to provide suitable equipment and materials for the proper performance of the work.

The right is reserved to reject all proposals and readvertise and award the contract in the regular manner if, in the judgment of the undersigned, the interests of the State will be enhanced thereby.

DUNCAN W. PECK,
Superintendent of Public Works.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Decline in Prices Follows Mid-day Period of Pronounced Dullness.

SELLING ACTIVE AT CLOSE

Profit Taking and Renewed Short Selling Influence Prices—Ill Effects of Foreign Coal Strikes Spread.

After drifting into a period of dullness toward mid-day, during which prices maintained a firm tone, the stock market yesterday was subjected to a more pronounced selling movement than any which it had encountered since the recent upturn in prices began. During the course of this selling, which did not assume anything like a large scale until the last hour, prices for the leading issues yielded sufficiently to wipe out the advances which had been made during the first hour of trading and to result in a number of instances in net losses for the day. The conspicuous exception among the active stocks to this general movement was Lehigh Valley, which retained 1¼ points, or about half of its maximum advance.

Passing over the minor considerations which bore on the movement of special issues yesterday, it can hardly be doubted that the beginning of another week of the idleness of the English coal miners lessened the indifference which this market has displayed toward the labor troubles abroad. A large number of German coal miners also went on strike, and in France, too, the miners were responding to a call for a twenty-four-hour suspension of work as a protest against legislation of which the miners disapprove. The latter is but a passing incident, but the spread of the coal strike on a serious scale to Germany cannot but heighten the burden which these labor disputes are putting upon industries in Germany and Great Britain. It was being estimated in London yesterday that already 1,000,000 workers in addition to the miners themselves have been made idle because of the suspension of work at the mines, and each day necessarily adds to the losses which such conditions involve. Much is still hoped for from the conferences which are expected to follow to-day's gathering of the representatives of the British coal miners, but meanwhile wages are being lost and production curtailed.

Such a situation in itself would offer sufficient explanation for an unsettled movement of prices in the securities markets, but in the case of our own stocks a natural reaction after the rise of the past fortnight would equally well explain yesterday's moderate recession. In the English market consols were lower yesterday, but strength was not lacking in other departments of the Stock Exchange, including even a number of the English railway stocks. This movement of prices in London suggests a continuance of confidence in the early adjustment of the labor troubles, and further, that our own market was reflecting not so much any disquiet over the labor troubles, actual and threatened, as pressure of sales called out in part by the very dullness of the market during the middle of yesterday's session. This was doubtless sufficinet to lead many traders to the belief that the upward movement for the time being had spent itself, and sales for the realization of profits, or for the assumption of a new position on the short side of the account were natural sequels to such a conclusion on the part of traders.

Spelter	6.90	7.00	6.90	7.00

The following prices obtained on the Metal Exchange in London yesterday for spot and future deliveries of copper and pig tin. These final figures for the day compare with Friday's last prices:

	Monday. £	s.	d.	Friday. £	s.	d.
Copper, spot	64	8	9	64	13	9
Copper, futures	65	3	9	65	8	9
Pig tin, spot	192	15	0	190	0	0
Pig tin, futures	187	10	0	186	5	0

The market ended steady. Spanish pig lead was unchanged at £15 16s 3d and spelter at £26 10s. Cleveland warrants were 3d higher, at 50s 6d.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Less Haste and More Safety.

The embarrassment in which A. E. Stilwell's new Kansas City, Mexico & Orient road now finds itself, even if it does not result in the loss of any money for the bondholders as its promoter optimistically hopes, is nevertheless likely to serve a good purpose in teaching careless investors to seek disinterested advice before trusting their savings to the securities of a new and little known enterprise. The public has been defrauded enough times by dreamers and dishonest boomers to put it on its guard, but too many people still buy first and investigate afterward. Two years ago a Western man with a title prefixed to his name organized a company for the construction of a 300-mile railroad. He then authorized the issuance of $20,000,000 in bonds to finance his project and actually sold $2,000,000 of the issue abroad. Some of them have since found their way into hands of American investors, who evidently thought that they were getting securities issued on a little known division of a large system. So far as can be learned, the new road has not advanced beyond the acquisition of part of the right of way and a little grading work. Meanwhile the bonds have been steadily depreciating in price. The promoter may have been honestly mislead by his enthusiasm, but the feelings of his security holders are no more kindly toward him for that reason.

⁂

Safeguarding the Investor.

As a matter of fact, there is no reason for a person with funds to invest to put the money into worthless or highly speculative securities. The facilities for supplying correct information are so free of access to any investor as to make it an inexcusable blunder to buy bonds such as those of the Western paper-railroad. Any of the banks, or trust companies doing a bond business, or any of the bond houses is quick to proffer disinterested advice when it is asked for. If the uninformed man or woman seeking a safe investment is lacking in confidence in any brokerage house there is the "investment specialist," who has no securities of his own to sell and who acts only in an advisory capacity in placing other peoples' money. There is a growing disposition on the part of treasurers of funds, executors and trustees to seek the advice of some recognized authority before going into the market for bonds.

⁂

Inter.-Met. Tangle Unraveled.

Since the expiration of the five-year voting trust in Interborough-Metropolitan preferred last year and the refusal of a large majority of the holders of the voting trust certificates for the stock to accept the invitation to extend them, the preferred stock has sold at a premium on the Exchange over the "voting trust certificates extended." This premium has ranged around one point and more. On transactions in stock the certificates were not a good delivery, and vice versa, and the premium commanded by the stock represented the larger speculation in the stock itself. Yesterday about midway in the afternoon session Secretary Ely of the Stock Exchange sent this word over the ticker: "The Interborough-Metropolitan voting trustees announce they will, upon request of any holder of preferred stock voting trust certificates, surrender preferred stock in exchange therefor." The effect was immediate elimination of the premium. There are $16,955,900 worth of shares of preferred stock outstanding as such, and $28,784,100 worth of the certificates. Yesterday morning the preferred stock was selling as high as 59⅝, while the extreme high on the certificates was 57. Between 1 and 2 o'clock the certificates ran up by eighths to 58, while the stock ranged from 58⅞ to 59⅛. After the announcement the stock on sales of 2,100 sold off from 58⅝ to 57⅝, and closed at 58, while the voting trust certificates sold from 58 up as high as 58⅞, closing at 57⅝.

Curb Courtesy.

The Curb Association is not likely to make any difficulty about the trading in Standard Oil subsidiaries in the open market, although the various split-off companies have not paid the listing fee of $100 or, except in a few cases, established transfer offices in New York. The attitude of the Curb authorities is that since the old Standard Oil Company of New Jersey was listed when the association was formed, courtesy demands that the subsidiary shares, detached from the old stock by force of the Supreme Court decree, be admitted to trading without formality. The same holds good with the tobacco issues which resulted from the reorganization of the American Tobacco Company. Incidentally the fever of speculation in the Standard Oil issues had noticeably subsided yesterday. The sudden reaction in the market at the close of last week discouraged some of the traders, who had been counting on the certainty of getting out at a profit each day without the risk of having to put up the considerable amount of cash necessary to carry their transactions over night, and where a crowd of fifty in the subsidiaries was not uncommon a few days ago a half dozen were all that could be counted yesterday.

⁂

Stock Market Averages.

The twenty-five leading railroad stocks and twenty-five industrials yesterday averaged a decline of about a third of a point at the close, compared with Saturday's final prices, but in a rise earlier in the day reached higher levels than last week, and the highest since January third. McCRUM-HOWELL'S BIG SLUMP

Preferred Shares Off Nearly 50 Points and Common Also Weak in Chicago on Fear That Dividends Will Be Passed.

Trading in the principal out-of-town markets yesterday was characterized by some heavy declines and some sharp advances in local stocks.

The strongest issue in Baltimore was Consolidation Coal, which has been advancing for several days in consequence of the active demand at good prices for coal. Bonds are in demand with increased over-the-counter business reported.

The Boston coppers were dull and a shade easier than they have been lately. The announcement of the plans for providing additional milling facilities for the newer Calumet & Hecla properties had no effect on quotations. Telephone was firm.

A violent break in the McCrum-Howell issues in Chicago excited considerable attention, and gave strength to persistent rumors that the company may pass the payment of a dividend on both classes of its stock. The common, opening at 12, was 8 points beneath the previous closing level, while the preferred, opening at 63, was almost 17 points off. The common rose slightly on succeeding sales, but later sank back to 11. The preferred sold down to 50, almost 30 points under Saturday.

American Can common sold at 14, the highest price it has attained in several years. The preferred held firm about 95½. Eastern orders resulted in an advance of several points in National Carbon common. Quaker Oats common was set back 4 points, Commonwealth Edison more than 1 point, and fractional declines occurred elsewhere.

The spectacular antics of the Asphalt stocks continued to dominate the Philadelphia market yesterday. This time it was a violent rebound which, before the second hour was over, had lifted the preferred shares no less than 6 points and the common nearly as much. Later on they reacted somewhat, losing about half the initial advance, but before the close renewed buying carried them up again almost to the earlier high price. Reading and United States Steel were active at a decline.

Yesterday's transactions on the various out-of-town Exchanges, as reported to THE NEW YORK TIMES, were as follows:

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

Room traders on the Consolidated Stock Exchange regarded the closing decline in the market as reflecting a weaker technical position, owing to the virtual elimination of the short interest. The immediate influence which started the market downward was disappointment over the fact that the United States Supreme Court failed to hand down the expected decision in the anthracite trust case. In the early afternoon, when a decision in this case was momentarily looked for, all the coal stocks showed strength.

BOURSES OF EUROPE

London Market Weak Owing to Continuation of Coal Strike—Consols Lower.

STEADINESS ON CONTINENT

Relief in Berlin Because the German Mine Strike Is Less General Than Had Been Expected.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Tuesday, March 12.—The Times says in its City article to-day:

"The pressure for money was great yesterday, owing partly to preparations for paying £1,000,000 of Brazilian Treasury bills which mature this morning. The balance of what is needed for the retirement will be called to-day, but probably a good deal of the money well be restored to the market promptly.

"The Bank of England did a very large business in short bills yesterday, apparently because the market wished to provide itself amply, foreseeing that it would have to find cash in connection with The Brazilian bill payment.

"Discount rates were a shade harder, especially for longer maturities, but business was on a small scale. British Treasury six months' bills were allotted at an average rate of 2 9-16 per cent.

"In most departments of the stock market yesterday operators were waiting to see how the negotiations for the settlement of the coal strike would shape to-day, and there was an almost general pause in business. The dullness of gilt-edged securities was due to expectations of gold withdrawals and the other causes which hardened discount rates.

"Advices from Paris indicated anxiety concerning the labor outlook on the Continent, and the Bourse was a free seller of American shares and Rio Tinto.

"Continued activity was displayed by Nigerian tin shares. The South African market distinguished itself by a broadening of activity and some improvement in prices.

"The home railway market was quiet, while the foreign railway market was dull. In the miscellaneous market Canadian Marconi was again actively dealt in and Shell-Transport showed strength.

"In the market for home Government securities consols weakened, owing to fears of gold withdrawals and the firmness of discount rates."

LONDON, March 11.—Money and discount rates were firm to-day.

The Bank of England bought two-thirds and India the remainder of the $3,500,000 new gold offered in the open market.

The mining carryover received the principal attention on the Stock Exchange. Home rails and gilt-edged securities were quiet at irregular price changes pending developments in the coal strike, and consols declined three-sixteenths in the afternoon. Mexican rails closed weak, but Kaffirs and oil and tin shares were firm.

American securities opened easy, but later in the forenoon prices improved on covering. During the rest of the session the trading was quiet and values moved within narrow limits. The closing was steady.

Money, 3@3¼ per cent.

The rate of discount in the open market for short bills is 3⅝@3¾ per cent.

The rate of discount in the open market for three months' bills is 3½@3⅝ per cent.

Gold premium at Madrid, 7.65; at Lisbon, 9.50.

PARIS, March 11.—Prices were steady on the Bourse to-day.

Three per cent. rentes, 94 francs 82½ centimes for the account.

Exchange on London, 25 francs 25 centimes for checks.

Private discount rate, 3¼ per cent.

BERLIN, March 11.—The Börse was firm and some prices were higher to-day because the coal strike is less general than was expected.

Exchange on London, 20 marks 47 pfennigs for checks.

Money, 4@4½ per cent.

Private discount rate, 4⅝ per cent.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

Bamberger, Loeb & Co. of 25 Broad Street, specialists in American Tobacco subsidiaries and other Curb securities, have organized a statistical and inquiry department, which is in charge of Richard C. Fabb.

These securities have been admitted to the listing on the Stock Exchange: $8,132,000 refunding mortgage 4 per cent. bonds, $12,017,400 adjustment 5 per cent. bonds, and $8,897,000 capital stock of the Third Avenue Railway Company. These have been stricken from the list: Third Avenue Railway Company refunding mortgage 4 per cent. bonds, when issued, adjustment 5 per cent. bonds, when issued, and capital stock. Notice has been received from Chino Copper Company of proposed increase in capital stock from $4,000,000 to $4,500,000.

C. E. Mitchell & Co. and W. E. R. Smith & Co. are offering $300,000 first mortgage 5 per cent. bonds made in 1904 by the Mercer County Traction Company of Trenton, N. J., at 97 and interest. The bonds are guaranteed as to principal and interest by the Trenton Street Railway Company, who own the stock of the Mercer County Traction Company, and by the Trenton & Mercer County Traction Company, who operate the Trenton Street Railway system.

An issue of $300,000 first mortgage 5 per cent. bonds, made by the Mercer County Traction Company of Trenton, N. J., in 1904, and since then closely held by the principal parties in interest, is now being offered publicly by C. E. Mitchell & Co. and W. E. R. Smith & Co., at 97 and interest. The bonds are guaranteed by the Trenton Street Railway Company, owner of the Trenton Street Railway system, of which the property securing these bonds is an integral part.

THE OUTSIDE SECURITIES.

Trading on the Curb Sluggish and Narrow.

Trading on the Curb was in diminished volume yesterday, and price movements were narrow. Some of the Standard Oil subsidiaries made gains, although transactions were few. The mining list was irregular and moved within narrow limits. Bonds were sluggish.

⁂

Transactions reported yesterday in the outside market, with opening, high, low, and last prices, were as follows:

Automatic Pencils and Other Articles Are Not "Personal Ornaments."

In sustaining protests filed by Newhouse & Engel, and others, the Board of United States General Appraisers yesterday decided that the Collector at Chicago erred in classifying a variety of articles as "personal ornaments" as that term is used in the Tariff Act of 1909. Assessment was made at the rate of 85 per cent ad valorem, whereas the protestants set up the contention that they are dutiable properly at 45 per cent either as manufactures of metal or glass.

The goods included automatic lead pencils provided with a movable lead which is made to protrude from the barrel by means of a sliding cylinder, the latter being in chief value of metal. The other merchandise comprised flax tape measures inclosed in metal cases, gun metal mesh bags and purses, chatelaines, vanity cases, small mirrors, puff boxes, coin purses, powder boxes, perfume flasks, etc. Judge Sharretts holds that the goods are articles of utility, and as such dutiable according to the components of chief value as claimed by the importers. The collector is reversed.

Merchandise lost in transit after reaching this country, does not constitute a "non importation" according to a decision handed down by Judge Somerville. Wilson Bros., alleged a shortage in certain importations. It developed that the loss occurred between New York and Chicago. Under these circumstances, the Board holds that no relief can be granted, the full duties accruing on the complete shipment as made from Europe.

RECEIVER FOR REALTY CO.

Bankruptcy Petition Puts Liabilities at $130,000 and Assets $30,000.

A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against the New York Central Realty Company of 1,328 Broadway by Hays, Hershfield & Wolf, attorneys for these creditors: Bloomingdale Brothers, $1,000; Julius Popper, $1,000, and Joseph Auerbach, $1,000. The liabilities are stated to be $130,00 and the assets $30,000. Judge Holt appointed A. Gordon Murray receiver, with a bond of $15,000.

The company was incorporated in June, 1903, with a capital stock of $6,000, which was increased to $200,000 in 1906, but was not rated in Bradstreet's. William H. Cooper was President up to June, 1910, when he was succeeded by C. L. Van Slyke. The company has done a large business in real estate developments in New Rochelle, Rye, Crestwood, Elmsford, Tuckahoe, Mamaroneck, near Bronx Park, and Cold Spring, N. Y., and East Rutherford and Woodfern, N. J.

The company has issued three classes of bonds—coupon bonds, single-payment bonds, and accumulative bonds. The annual balance sheet of the company on Jan. 1, 1911, it is said, showed assets of $2,763,587 and liabilities of $1,298,999. Several judgments have been obtained against the company in the last six months.

FURNISS ESTATE IN COURT.

Heirs to $40,000,000 Asked to Consent to Temporary Adminstratorship.

Surrogate Cohalan issued an order yesterday granting permission to serve citations on Mrs. Margaret E. Zimmerman and Miss Clementina Furniss, sisters of Miss Sophia R. Furniss, who died a month ago, by leaving them at 280 Madison Avenue, where the two women, each of whom is about 80 years old, live. One of the women is bedridden. The citations call on them to show cause why a temporary administrator of the $40,000,000 estate of their father, William P. Furniss, the West Indian merchant prince, should not be appointed by the court to succeed their sister, who was the sole surviving trustee of the great estate.

The estate was left in trust, and the last trusteeship expired with Miss Sophia Furniss, who had no power to appoint a successor. At the death of the surviving sisters the estate will be distributed among the heirs who have not assigned their interests precisely as though Mr. Furniss had left no will.

The motion for the appointment of a court trustee is on the calendar of the Surrogates' Court for to-morrow, but in view of the delay in serving the two sisters a postponement is expected.

NEW POWDER MILL IN UTAH.

Du Pones Seek Western Site to Avoid High Freight Rates.

Special to The New York Times.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, March 11.—H. G. Haskell, a Director of the du Pont Powder Company of Delaware, is here in search of a location for a branch plant. He declares that his company intends to spread out through the West in order to save freight bills and insure prompt delivery of powder orders.

A site under consideration is the famous "copper plant" built by Salt Lake financiers who joined an Eastern promotion scheme. The promoters made a large fortune for which they created tangible assets of a few brick buildings in a remote section. After lying idle for more than ten years the buildings may be put to use, affording employment to 200 men in making powder.

BROKERS SUE MRS. LE DUC.

L. Stevens & Co. Declare She Owes Them $5,500 in Commissions.

Mrs. Alexander Le Duc, widow of a former member of the Produce Exchange, has been sued by L. Stevens & Company of 111 Broadway, who complain in papers filed yesterday in the Supreme Court that Mrs. Le Duc has not paid them $5,500 for commissions.

The plaintiffs declared that Mrs. Le Duc dealt in stocks to the extent of $460,000 from July to December, 1910, and that her transactions from that date until April, 1911, amounted to $40,000.

Record Purchase of Texas Land.

Special to The New York Times.

FORT STOCKTON, Texas, March 11.—In the sale to-day of 40,000 acres of land belonging to the Fort Stockton Irrigated Land Company to E. C. Gatlin of Kansas City, Mo., for $1,250,000 all records of big land transactions in Western Texas were broken. The purchaser announces he will spend $500,000 in extending the irrigation system upon the land.

COMMODITIES MARKET.

Cotton Advances, Wheat Seesaws; Corn, Oats, and Pork Firmer.

Wheat was erratic yesterday, at times strong with coarse grain, but finally easing on realizing and limited cash and export demand. Corn was firm on weather conditions, with practically no pressure in the cash market, while oats showed latent strength due to prospects of a late start. Provisions were steady with grain.

Cotton again rose to new high levels, the new crop months leading, reflecting overabundance of precipitation. Large interests were credited with selling on the rise.

WHEAT.

The market was extremely sensitive yesterday with the undertone nervous. During most of the session prices ruled at fair fractional net advances, but considerable realizing occurred on these bulges, so that final prices were at the low. News was rather mixed, but in line with the increased bullish sentiment, partly the result of last week's farm reserve report; the disposition was to pay most attention to factors subjected to a bullish construction, which also accounted for the enthusiasm displayed by outsiders at various times. At the start, disappointing Liverpool cables were ignored, and the market seemed to borrow much of its strength from the advancing tendency of coarse grain. New-crop deliveries led the upward movement, ostensibly due to the efforts on the part of large interests to stimulate interest in these positions, on the theory that when snow covering disappears, particularly east of the River, an unfavorable start of the Winter wheat crop will be revealed. There are many authorities, however, who are skeptical regarding these early damage advices, claiming that the bountiful subsoil moisture throughout practically the entire belt is a feature which will probably obviate the reports of poor germination, so prevalent last year. The decrease in the domestic visible was some what larger than expected, amounting to 1,332,000 bushels, bringing the total down to below 56,000,000 bushels, against 38,000,000 bushels last year. Otherwise statistics were rather bearish, however. The Canadian visible increased 1,325,000 bushels, with the total now 27,000,000 bushels, against 9,000,000 bushels a year ago. There was an increase of over 3,500,000 bushels in the amount of wheat on passage, while world's wheat exports amounted to 9,168,000 bushels, (Argentine and Australia shipping more freely,) against 10,208,000 bushels last week and 12,320,000 bushels a year ago. Cash advices were not essentially changed, with a continued liberal inquiry at the Southwest, but at other points demand was not active. Asking prices on flour have been advanced slightly, but without much response. There were about 40,000 bushels of Manitoba sold for export, but on the other hand private advices from the West were that Antwerp bids were ridiculously out of line, thought to indicate the recent small business from the local market being exceptional. Cash No. 2 red quoted at $1.06, elevator export basis, and $1.08¼ free on board, afloat, for export; No. 2 hard, $1.15; No. 1 Northern Spring, $1.25; No. 1 Manitoba, $1.18¾.

OTHER GRAINS.

CORN.—Hesitation was noted at the outset, but following there was a large speculative inquiry which carried prices to new high ground, and for the greater part of the session served to absorb the heavy speculative realizing rather freely. At the close prices receded, however, to near Saturday's finals. Sentiment is bullish, due to prospects of small receipts, as with milder weather complaints as to the condition of the roads are expected in volume. The country is not selling freely, and outside cash markets showed substantial gains. Highly optimistic crop accounts from Argentina are exerting little influence. The visible increase of 898,000 bushels was about in line with expectations. The total visible is now 15,154,000 bushels, against 12,614,000 bushels last year. There was no export business. Cash No. 2 Western quoted at 80¼c in elevator, domestic basis, and 73¼c f. o. b. afloat for export. Steamer 75c, domestic basis.

OATS.—Independent strength was shown by this market. There was heavy buying on the theory that the snow covering and frozen ground will result in delayed seeding operations. Moreover, successful Western speculators are credited with operating on the bull side. There is little pressure from the country, although competition from Canada is talked of on the advances. The domestic visible decreased 131,000 bushels, the total being 14,235,000 bushels, or about the same as last year. In Canada the oats visible amounts to slightly over 8,000,000 bushels, increasing 2,380,000 bushels for the week. Cash standards and No. 2 white quoted at 61c; No. 3 white, 60½c.

PROVISIONS.

Liberal receipts, increased hedging pressure and a limited cash demand, resulted in lower prices early, but a better tone developed with the strength of feed stuffs.

COTTONSEED OIL.

Active support appeared to have been withdrawn yesterday and pressure, particularly in the deferred options, was greater. Part of this was believed to represent hedging operations. There were some claims of crude being sold more freely, but in most instances holders were credited with receiving asking prices, and most of the business at the South transpiring at this time is on the basis of approximately 35c per gallon. The improved lard market at the West and higher cotton levels, the latter still in reflection of unpropitious weather conditions, were practically ignored.

COTTON.

The character of the market and of the news advices exhibits no distinct change. Prices were substantially higher yesterday, although the extreme advances of about 20 points were gradually reduced to the opening levels, which were from 7 to 10 points over those at the close Saturday. Shorts were further intimidated by the continuation of precipitation in the central and western belt, while predictions of rain for practically the entire section overnight were not comforting to these interests. Leading bulls apparently are still disposed to give liberal support when hesitation is noted, but, as is customary, the increment of offerings on the bulge was attributed to the leading holders. Enthusiasm on the buying side seemed to wane somewhat with the new high levels for the new crop months this season, and there has undoubtedly been more or less profit taking by people who are obsessed with the idea that, with the advent of clearing weather conditions, calamity talk will become much less pronounced. Some selling was also inspired by claims from the eastern belt that, despite claims of a bad start, planting does not necessarily have to be completed at an early date to obtain a large crop, while with each advance in cotton prices it is argued that the prospects for a material reduction in acreage correspondingly fades. Subsoil moisture is believed to be excellent; in fact, in some parts of Mississippi there were claims that lowlands were being flooded. Weather conditions are still dominant in the market and easily outweigh the labor troubles abroad as an immediate influence. Liverpool cables promised to aid the bears yesterday, but just prior to our opening advanced to over a parity, presumably on private weather advices from this side. The South again bought freely in the local market, and, aside from the liquidation credited to the big interests, it was thought that Wall Street sold on balance. Irregularity in demand is stated to exist at the South for spots, but the basis is maintained as a rule. Yesterday's official Southern spot quotations were unchanged to ⅛c decline; New York spot cotton, 20c advance; middlings, 10.80c. Differences between the local market and the South have been partly readjusted, but there is still a disparity, and it is this feature with the encouraging dry goods situation, in connection with unsuitable climatic conditions, which limits aggressiveness on the bear side. Exports were again heavy yesterday, and for the season so far total nearly 8,400,000 bales, against 6,416,000 bales a year ago.

COFFEE.

Coffee sales aggregated 44,000 bags and final prices were steady, at 6 points decline for February, and unchanged to 4 points higher for the other positions. Havre was unchanged, and Hamburg ¼ to ½ pfg. net lower. Traders abroad are apparently waiting for more settled labor conditions, as their connection with the labor troubles in the coal mines and operations are small. Warehouse deliveries of Brazilian coffee at United States ports last week were 132,893 bags, against 130,294 the previous week, and 72,195 last year.

Spot coffee was steady, unchanged, 14½c. for Rio 7.

BUSINESS TROUBLES.

JOSEPH KRUPP & CO.—A petition has been filed against Joseph Krupp, trading as Joseph Krupp & Co., manufacturer of shirts at 50 Leonard Street, by James N. Rosenberg, attorney for these creditors: Faulkner, Page & Co., $500; Schefer, Schramm & Vogel, $300, and Clarence Whitman & Co., $100. The liabilities are $40,000 and assets $10,000.

DIEHL'S BAKERY AND CONFECTIONERY.—A petition has been filed against Howard P. and Clara H. Diehl, doing business as Diehl's Bakery and Confectionery, at Mount Kisco, by John J. Ackerman, attorney for these creditors: Philip Diehl $5,500, Philip Diehl & Son $2,414, and Lewis B. Richards $1,260. Mr. Ackerman stated that the liabilities are $16,000 and the assets $5,000.

BAMBERGER & OSTHEIMER, dealers in dry goods and men's furnishings at 1,494 First Avenue, made an assignment yesterday to Simon S. Hamburger, and a petition in bankruptcy was filed against them by these creditors: Abraham C. Bernstein $140, Gutman Brothers $134, and Louis Weisberger $250. The liabilities are $10,000 and assets about $2,000 to $4,000.

HEIDT & COHEN.—A petition has been filed against Joseph Heidt and Jacob Cohen, who compose the firm of Heidt & Cohen, manufacturers of cloaks and suits at 134 West Twenty-fourth Street, by these creditors: Isador Scheler $274, Joseph Rosenthal $250, and Samuel J. Billig $1. The liabilities are $3,000 and assets $500.

LOUIS SCHWARZ of 7,724 Washington Avenue, formerly a dealer in wines and liquors, has filed a petition with liabilities $4,472 and no assets. This is his second time in bankruptcy.

GREEN & SCHOLINSKY.—A petition has been filed against Barnett Green and Abraham Scholinsky, who compose the firm of Green & Scholinsky, clothing manufacturers, at 45 East Broadway, by these creditors: Michael Hirsch, $706; Joseph Jerski, $800, and Louis Rosenberg & Son, $50. Judge Holt appointed Henry H. Kaufman receiver.

LEVY & EPSTEIN.—Morris Levy and Morris Epstein, who compose the firm of Levy & Epstein of 160 East 112th Street, have filed a petition, with liabilities $2,640, and no assets.

CENTRAL PARK TAXICAB COMPANY.—Judge Holt has granted a motion to dismiss the petition filed on April 11, 1911, against the Central Park Taxicab Company of 145 West 110th Street, on application of Leonard Bronner, who filed an answer for the company some time ago, in which the acts of bankruptcy were denied, and W. H. Willis, referee in bankruptcy, reported that no proof was offered before him in support of the allegations in the petition.

SMIT BROTHERS & PROBSTEIN.—Judge Holt has granted a motion to dismiss the petition filed on Jan. 5 against Smit Brothers & Probstein, importers of diamonds, of 71 Nassau Street, on application of Walter T. Kohn, who stated that the firm had made a settlement with creditors at 42½ cents on the dollar. The liabilities were reported to be $250,000.

TITNER & WEINSHENKER.—Judge Holt has dismissed the petition filed on Jan. 9 against Titner & Weinshenker, wholesale dealers in furs and skins, at 13 East Seventeenth Street, on a settlement at 25 cents on the dollar. The liabilities were about $27,000.

HARRY WEISBERG.—Judge Holt has confirmed a composition of Harry Weisberg, dealer in dry goods at 1,923 Second Avenue, with creditors at 25 cents on the dollar. The liabilities were $6,917.

LEGAL NOTICES.

IN THE DISTRICT (FORMERLY CIRCUIT) Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York.—CENTRAL TRUST COMPANY OF NEW YORK, Complainant, against THE THIRD AVENUE RAILROAD COMPANY and others, Defendants.

In pursuance of an order and decree duly made and filed in this cause on the 28th day of December, 1911, notice is hereby given that there has been filed with the undersigned, as Special Master, the accounts of Frederick W. Whitridge, the receiver of the mortgaged property herein, from September 1, 1911, to and including December 31, 1911, such being the accounts of said receiver from the date to which his accounts heretofore filed with the Special Master extended.

And take further notice that the receiver aforesaid has also filed with the Special Master a detailed statement of the mortgaged assets of the Third Avenue Railroad Company and of the other assets which have come into his hands as receiver, and which have now been transferred to the Third Avenue Railway Company, and of the liabilities of the receiver, which have now been assumed by the Third Avenue Railway Company, and a balance sheet showing the accounts of the receiver as of December 31, 1911.

And take further notice that included in such statement are statements of the property and assets that were in the possession or under the control of the receiver on December 31, 1911, and that further included in such statement is a list of the claims asserted by said receiver as existing against him or against the trust estate in his possession and a list of his unfulfilled contracts and other obligations.

And take further notice that all objections to the accounts aforesaid and all claims against the receiver or against the trust estate in his hands or that was in his hands, or any part thereof, and all claims against the moneys remaining in the hands of the undersigned as Special Master, must be filed with the Special Master on or before the 18th day of March, 1912. Said objections and claims must be filed at the office of the undersigned, Special Master, at No. 71 Broadway, Borough of Manhattan, New York City.

Notice and warning is hereby given that all claims against Frederick W. Whitridge, as receiver, or against the property or estate that has been in his hands, or any part thereof, or against any moneys in the hands of the Special Master, must be filed as aforesaid or else the same and the assertion of the same will be forever barred.

Take further notice that all objections to the accounts aforesaid of the receiver must be filed in the office of the Special Master on or before said date, or else the same will be forever barred.

And finally, let all interested parties take notice that on Tuesday, March 19, 1912, at four-thirty o'clock in the afternoon, a hearing will be had before the undersigned at his office, in regard to said accounts and all the other proceedings of the receiver aforementioned, and in regard to the condition of the trust estate in his hands and in regard to the disposition of the moneys in the hands of the Special Master, and that any and all interested parties may attend upon such hearing. Upon such hearing, or as the same shall be adjourned, the Special Master will proceed to hear and determine any objections or claims filed as aforesaid with him, and to adjust, settle and state the accounts, and to determine all matters in respect thereto and in respect of said trust estate and of moneys in the hands of the undersigned as Special Master.

February 16th, 1912.

HOWARD TAYLOR, Special Master, Office and Post Office Address, No. 71 Broadway, Borough of Manhattan, New York City.

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Astor Estate Sells Row of Ten West Harlem Dwellings—E. L. Larkin Buys West Thirty-third Street Loft Site—Merchants Association Leases New Quarters.

One of the most interesting of the many sales which have imparted considerable activity to Harlem realty during the last few weeks has just been concluded by the Astor estate, which has parted with a large portion of its extensive holdings on the south side of 130th Street, between Fifth and Lenox Avenues. The greater part of the block front is occupied by a row of semi-detached three-story brick houses, twenty-eight in number, which have for years been one of the landmarks in Harlem.

Ten of these houses have been sold to an investor, being from 44 to 62 West 130th Street, the westerly portion of the block and adjoining the large plot on the southwest corner of Lenox Avenue and 130th Street, sold a few days ago by John Jacob Astor to Max Marx. A one-story taxpayer, with several stores, occupies the corner.

The ten dwellings just sold have a frontage on the street of 250 feet by 99.11 feet deep. The houses were extensively renovated about a year ago, and nearly all are rented. Set back a few feet from the street, these houses, with their broad verandas, have long been the most characteristic row of private dwellings in Harlem. They are over forty years old. They have lately been under the management of Robert Levers as broker.

Old Water Street Tenements Sold.

D. & W. Mullins have sold for Lefferts and Harold Strebeigh, executors, to Joseph Ronan, 665 and 667 Water Street—two old tenements, on plot 36 by 70. The last conveyance of this property was in 1856.

The Private Dwelling Market.

George A. Bowman has sold for David Mr. MacLetchee to Samuel Green the four-story dwelling 1994 Madison Avenue, on the northwest corner of 127th Street.

The American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions has sold, through Hazleton & Levy, the two three-story dwellings 175 and 177 West Ninety-third Street, on a plot 32 by 65.

Fritz Fuchs has resold 337 West Fifty-seventh Street, a four-story dwelling on a lot 20 by 100.5, recently purchased from the John J. Clancy estate.

The Flemish Realty Company has resold, through S. B. Goodale & Perry, to Solomon L. Paskas, 31 West Sixteenth Street, a four-story and basement dwelling, on lot 25 by 92. The seller acquired the property recently in a trade with the Hoguet estate for an apartment house at 158th Street and Broadway.

Buys Loft Site in West 33d Street.

A large west side plot, from 430 to 438 West Thirty-third Street, between Ninth and Tenth Avenues, has been purchased by Edward L. Larkin from the Rudolph Wallach Company, which bought the property about four months ago for $56,000 at the auction sale of the Thorn estate held by Joseph P. Day. The plot is 75 by 100 feet and is occupied by five old three-story dwellings. The new owner intends to improve the property with a tall loft structure. The John Peel Company acted as brokers in the deal.

Old South Church Leased.

The Fifth Church of Christ Scientist, which has been holding services in Berkeley Lyceum, has leased the old church of the South Reformed Congregation at the southeast corner of Madison Avenue and Thirty-eighth Street. About two years ago the congregation of South Church purchased a new site at Park Avenue and Eighty-fifth Street, and have been occupying its new edifice for about a year. The old property, which is covered by the Murray Hill private dwelling restriction, was placed on the market and is still for sale at $700,000. The lease to the Scientist Church is for a term of years, with a cancellation clause which would permit of immediate possession in the event of a sale of the property. Pease & Elliman were the brokers in the transaction.

A Washington Heights Trade.

Theodore Bertsch has transferred to Edward H. Rogers a plot 26.6 by 95 on the west side of Audubon Avenue, 53 feet south of 185th Street, in part payment for the new law tenement, 507 and 509 West 172d Street, on a plot 43.9 by 94.6.

Brooklyn.

E. Sharum sold 105 Jefferson Avenue, Brooklyn, a three-story brownstone front dwelling, on a plot 16.8 by 100, near Bedford Avenue.

Long Island.

Frederick J. Stegmaier has sold to Benjamin H. Sweet of Manhattan, a parcel 1,189 feet on the east side of Jamaica Avenue, adjoining Garretson and Young farms; also 817 by 564 adjoining land of New York & Queens County Railway Company, and land of Kiesel, Flushing, subject to a mortgage of $40,050.

Philip Miller has sold to Denison P. Sheserro of New Rochelle, fourteen lots at Long Island City on the Payntar map, subject to a mortgage of $34,000.

Charles LeBihan has sold to Margaret Schabchorn of Newark, six lots at Springfield, subject to a mortgage of $1,200.

Charles W. Sanders has sold to Frederick Schuter of Bronx, a parcel 100 feet on the north side of Lake Street, Corona.

Rawdon W. Kellogg has sold to Matthew J. Goldner of Elmhurst, a parcel 450 feet on the south side of University Place, 186 feet on the west side of Wyckoff Avenue, 450 feet on the south side of South Street, and 186 feet on the east side of Union Place, Woodhaven.

Adolph Lievendag has sold to Lena Dreyfoos of Manhattan, a parcel 50 by 125 on the east side of Farrington Street, Flushing.

New Jersey.

Mooyer & Marston have sold for David Ely to a client, the farm consisting of twelve acres, located on Hanover Road, Florham Park.

Suburban.

Warren & Skillin have sold to a client the former home of the late Judge Thomas, on the west side of Broadway, 350 feet south of Sunnyside Lane, Irvington, N. Y., consisting of about two acres of ground with stone mansion and stable.

Recent Buyers.

The Sunderland and the Norman, six-story apartment houses at 522 to 530 West 136th Street, reported sold on Sunday by Andrew J. Cobe, have been purchased by the New York Real Estate Security Company, which has recently acquired several high-class apartments on the upper west side for investment. The McVickar-Gaillard Realty Company acted as brokers.

Merchants' Association in Woolworth Building.

The Merchants' Association of New York, now located at 54 Lafayette Street, has leased new quarters in the new Woolworth Building.

The rooms, which will occupy about half of the ninth floor, will be elaborately furnished and decorated. The lease is for a term of ten years.

Realty Scheduled for Public Sale.

Among the offerings to be made to-day by Joseph P. Day, in the Vesey Street Salesroom, are a number of parcels involving an important Subway corner parcel on the southwest corner of Broadway and Fiftieth Street, the Dietz homestead at Hempstead, a number of private dwellings, an east side row of tenements, and a garage.

Leases.

H. C. Senior & Co. have leased for Dr. Francis Tweddell the five-story American basement dwelling 71 West Sixty-eighth Street for a long term to Charles S. Sweedy. The lease carries a clause with option to buy.

George R. Read & Co. have leased to M. H. Harris, optician, for a long term of years, the entire ground floor and basement at the southeast corner of Nassau and John Streets; for the National Railway Publication Company to the Keystone Type Foundry, for a long term of years, the store, basement, and sub-basement in 23 Park Place, and the store 19 Barclay Street.

J. Arthur Fischer has leased to George W. Cobb, Jr., the five-story loft building 263 Front Street for a term of years; also, for Mr. Oliver to John F. Baxter, the four-story brownstone dwelling 767 St. Nicholas Avenue; also, for V. Bernardi to William Penn, the three-story and basement dwelling 240 East Thirty-fourth Street.

The Cross & Brown Company has leased for William F. Newkirk the entire building on plot 20 by 100 at 42 West Thirty-fourth Street for a long term of years to "George," located for a number of years at 44 West Thirty-fourth Street.

The Felbel Speyer Company have leased the store and basement at 1 East Forty-sixth Street, and Spingarn Brothers have renewed their lease of 636 and 638 Broadway. S. M. Bondy negotiated both transactions.

John J. Kavanagh has leased for Edward C. Arnold to K. S. & A. S. Baliozlan, Oriental rugs, the store floor 1,078 Madison Avenue for a term of years.

Duff & Brown Company have leased for a term of years the stores 1,707 and 1,709 Amsterdam Avenue for Martin Ungrich to George Glenz.

Benjamin Bernstein has leased for Florence M. Riddle the store and basement at 452 Seventh Avenue for a term of years, also for J. G. Hatfield the store at 528 Seventh Avenue, and for the James Van Dyk Company the store at 2,713 Third Avenue.

The Charles F. Noyes Company has leased for the Lawyers Title Insurance and Trust Company the entire fifteenth floor of its building at 160 Broadway to Hirsch, Scheuerman & Limberg.

Frederick Southack & Alwyn Ball, Jr., have leased the entire building 364 Washington Street, corner of North Moore Street, for Henry B. Walsh estate to the General Drug Company.

Notes.

There were no auction offerings of real estate yesterday in either the Manhattan or Bronx salesrooms.

A regular meeting of the United Real Estate Owners' Association will be held this evening at 110 East Fifty-ninth Street. Under the order of special business an important resolution sent by one of the locals creating a special fund to take care of real estate interests at Albany and New York City will come up for discussion.

The Harlem Property Owners' Association will meet at 147 East 125th Street Thursday evening.

In the recently reported sale of the southwest corner of Seventh Avenue and 116th Street by Adolph Lewisohn, L. J. Phillips & Co. were associated as brokers.

The northwest corner of Seventh Avenue and 123d Street, 200 by 100, which was rumored as having been acquired for a Harlem theatre last week, was transferred yesterday by Sadie H. Jacobs to the People's Vaudeville Company, of which Marcus Loew is President.

FORECLOSURE SALE.

NOTICE OF FORECLOSURE SALE PURSUANT TO ADJOURNMENT.

CHANCERY SALE.—In pursuance and by virtue of decrees of foreclosure and sale in favor of THE NEW YORK TRUST COMPANY, complainant, made and entered by the Circuit Court of the United States for the Eastern District of Michigan, Southern Division, and of the Circuit Court of the United States for the Northern District of Ohio, Western Division, and of the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of Ohio, Eastern Division, which decrees were dated on the 24th day of April, A. D. 1911, and entered in said Eastern District of Michigan, Southern Division, May 4th, 1911; in said Northern District of Ohio, Western Division, May 6th, 1911, and in said Southern District of Ohio, Eastern Division, May 19th, 1911, in causes pending in said respective courts, and which were entitled: The New York Trust Company, complainant, vs. Detroit, Toledo & Ironton Railway Company et al., defendants; Knickerbocker Trust Company, complainant, vs. Detroit, Toledo & Ironton Railway Company, defendant; William J. Courtney et al., complainants, vs. Detroit, Toledo & Ironton Railway Company, defendant; (Consolidated Cause. In Equity); the causes pending in the Circuit Court of the United States for the Northern District of Ohio, Western Division, and in the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of Ohio, Eastern Division, being ancillary to the cause pending in the Circuit Court of the United States for the Eastern District of Michigan, Southern Division; and in pursuance of orders directing adjournment of sale, entered therein on the 26th day of September, A. D. 1911, and on the 23d day of December, A. D. 1911, NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the undersigned, Special Master Commissioner of said courts, will sell at public auction to the highest bidder, on TUESDAY, THE NINTH DAY OF APRIL, A. D. 1912, at 12 o'clock noon, Standard time, of said day, at the former Delray Station building of the Detroit, Toledo & Ironton Railway Company, on River Street, in the City of Detroit, County of Wayne, and State of Michigan, being on the property described to be sold, as an entirety in one parcel, all the properties by the said decrees directed to be sold, to wit: ALL the properties by the said decrees declared to be covered by the General Lien and Divisional First Mortgage from the Detroit, Toledo & Ironton Railway Company to The New York Trust Company, dated May 2, 1905, and by the said decrees directed to be sold.

The said Master Commissioner will accept no bid of less than $2,500,000, which minimum sum was fixed by the Court in the said decrees in order to prevent a sacrifice and to protect the interests of all concerned as the least sum for which the said property should be sold. He will not accept any bid unless the bidder shall forthwith place in his hands at the time of bidding, as a part of his bid and a pledge to make the same good if accepted and the sale confirmed, the sum of one hundred and fifty thousand dollars in cash, certified check or certificate of deposit approved by the Master, which sum shall be forfeited in case the bidder, if successful, shall fail to make good his bid and comply with the terms of the said decrees and of any orders thereafter, made as to future payments or otherwise. But the same shall be applied on the purchase price in case of such compliance, or returned in case the bid is not successful or the sale shall not be confirmed by the court. Nor will the Master accept a bid unless the purchaser shall, upon making his bid, pay to the Master for deposit in the registry of the said Court the sum of $11,769.80, or such other sum as shall be adjudged to be due to the Tiffin & Northwestern Railroad Company on the matters set forth in its intervening petition in the said suit; provided the said sum shall not have been paid by the receivers or other parties to the said suit prior to the said sale. If the bid of the purchaser is not accepted and the sale to him confirmed said last named deposit shall be returned to the purchaser; otherwise the said fund shall be held subject to such orders as the Court may make on the said intervening petition. The right of the court is reserved to reject any bid and to retake and resell the property or any part thereof upon failure of the purchaser to comply with any order of the Court as to the payment of the remainder of the purchase price or any part thereof, or upon failure of the purchaser to comply with any condition of the sale or any order of the court in that regard.

There shall be paid in cash of the price at which the said properties shall be sold in addition to the amounts paid at the time of the sale, such further portions of the purchase money as the court shall direct. The remainder of the purchase price may be paid either in cash or in claims payable under Article 3 of the said decrees, or in receivers' certificates payable under Article 3 thereof, or in the said General Lien and Divisional First Mortgage bonds with overdue coupons thereof, or in Consolidated bonds with overdue coupons thereof, at such proportion of value as the holders thereof would be entitled to receive thereon on distribution of the proceeds of the sale in case the purchase price were wholly paid in cash.

All taxes and assessments upon the properties sold and all said receivers' certificates, and all claims payable under said Article 3 of the said decrees will be allowed out of the purchase money where the purchaser produces proofs of such liens and claims and receipts for the payment thereof, or surrenders such certificates. The Special Master will, in his discretion, accept, temporarily, instead of the actual delivery of the said bonds and coupons or receivers' certificates, the certificate of any trust company, satisfactory to him, that it holds the said bonds and coupons or receivers' certificates subject to the order of the said Special Master, and will deliver them to him on demand for cancellation or other disposition.

The said Master, in pursuance and by virtue of the decrees of foreclosure in favor of Knickerbocker Trust Company, complainant, made and entered by the said Circuit Courts of the United States in this advertisement of sale first mentioned, dated and entered on the same days and in the same places as the said decrees in favor of the New York Trust Company, complainant, WILL ALSO AT THE SAME TIME AND PLACE OFFER FOR SALE and in separate parcels all other lines of railway and additional mileage of the defendant Railway Company and other property of any kind and nature which has been constructed or acquired in whole or in part by means of said Consolidated Bonds or with the proceeds of the sale or disposition thereof; subject only to purchase money liens thereon as in said Consolidated Mortgage set forth, not including in said property, however, any property which is subject to the prior lien thereon of the said General Lien and Divisional First Mortgage (all of which said property subject to said General Lien and Divisional First Mortgage is to be sold under and pursuant to the preceding provisions of this notice), one hundred shares of the stock of the Toledo Southern Railway Company and ten hundred and fourteen shares of preferred stock of the Ann Arbor Railroad Company, being certain property of the said Detroit, Toledo and Ironton Railway Company included in the mortgage or deed of trust from that company to Knickerbocker Trust Company, complainant herein, dated May 2, 1905, to secure certain bonds designated as Consolidated Bonds. The Master will accept no bid for the said shares of stock from any bidder who shall not place in his hands or deposit with him at the time of making the bid, as a pledge that the bidder will make good his bid if accepted by the Court, the sum of twenty-five dollars per share in cash, certified cheque or certificate of deposit approved by the Master, which sum shall be forfeited in case the bidder if successful shall fail to make good his bid and comply with the terms of the said decrees and any orders thereafter made as to future payments or otherwise, but which said sum shall be applied on the purchase price of the said stock in case of such compliance, or will be returned in case the said bid is not successful or the sale shall not be confirmed by the Court. The right of the Court is reserved to reject any bid and to resell the said stock, or any part thereof, upon the failure of the purchaser to comply with any order of the Court as to the payment of the purchase price or any part thereof, in cash or otherwise, as may be directed. If either the said properties, not, as aforesaid, subject to the General Lien and Divisional First Mortgage, or the said shares of stock shall be purchased by or on behalf of the holders of the said Consolidated Bonds, the remainder of the purchase price over and above the amount in cash required to be paid at the time of sale, may be paid either in cash or in receivers' certificates, or in claims payable under Article 3 of the aforesaid decree of The New York Trust Company, or in said Consolidated Bonds and overdue coupons thereon, at such proportionate value as the holders thereof will be entitled to receive thereon respectively on distribution of the proceeds of such sale, in case such purchase price were wholly paid in cash.

Any person proposing to purchase at the said sale either the said railway properties or the said stock, is referred to the said decrees in this notice specifically mentioned, and to the notice or advertisement of said sale heretofore published by the undersigned Special Master Commissioner upon the 15th, 22d, and 29th of August, and the 5th, 12th, and 19th of September, A. D. 1911, in the following newspapers, viz.: Detroit Free Press, Toledo Blade, and New York Times, for a more full and complete description of the property, rights, and franchises therein directed to be sold, which it is proposed to sell in accordance with the foregoing notice, and also for the terms and conditions upon which the sale of the said properties, rights, and franchises shall be made. The said three decrees in favor of The New York Trust Company, Complainant, are exact duplicates of each other, and the said three decrees in favor of Knickerbocker Trust Company, Complainant, are exact duplicates of each other, and all of the said decrees may be found filed and recorded in the offices of the Clerks of the United States Circuit Courts at Detroit, Michigan; Toledo, Ohio, and Columbus, Ohio, respectively, and which are subject to the inspection of the public generally. Certified copies of the said decrees will be in the possession of the said Special Master at the time and place of sale, and may be inspected by interested persons or bidders.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, March 11.—The Western disturbance has reached the lower Red River Valley with a secondary one over Southern Mississippi, and snow and rains continued in the Rocky Mountain region and extended into the central valleys, the Gulf States, Virginia and the lake region.

While temperatures have generally risen from the Mississippi Valley eastward they are still below seasonal and have again fallen considerably in the northwest, with rising pressure and clearing weather.

The disturbances over the Gulf region will continue eastward, attended by snows or rains east of the Mississippi on Tuesday, and followed by generally clearing weather Wednesday except in New England and the north portion of the Middle Atlantic States.

It will be colder Tuesday in the Mississippi and the Missouri Valleys, and Wednesday in the Atlantic States. It will be warmer Wednesday in the Northwest.

Winds along the New England Coast will be light to moderate variable, becoming southeast and brisk over south portion Tuesday night; Middle Atlantic Coast, moderate south and southeast, increasing by Tuesday night; South Atlantic Coast, brisk and high northeast and east.

Steamships departing Tuesday for European ports will have moderate south and southeast winds, with snow or rain to the Grand Banks.

FORECAST FOR TO-DAY AND WEDNESDAY.

Eastern New York—Snow north, rain or snow in south portion Tuesday and Wednesday; south and southeast winds, increasing Tuesday night.

Southern New England—Rain or snow Tuesday and Wednesday; south and southeast winds increasing Tuesday night.

New Jersey and Eastern Pennsylvania—Rain or snow Tuesday; Wednesday clearing and colder; increasing south and southeast winds.

Northern New England—Increasing cloudiness Tuesday, snow at night and Wednesday; moderate variable winds.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at midnight, taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

OUT OF EMPLOYMENT?

Persistency always pays if you direct your energies in the right path. There are very few of the 200,000 daily purchasers of The Times out of employment. If you are in the minority, however, and want the right position, it will pay you to read the Help Wanted advertisements in The New York Times and find just what you are looking for. The men that read The New York Times are the substantial kind of men that you wish to locate with.

BOARD OF EDUCATION.

The present indications are that the public school teachers will receive their March pay on March 29. The Easter vacation will begin on April 1. As Friday falls on March 29, this will enable teachers who wish to spend the vacation out of town to start on their journey either on that day or on March 30. It is unusual for the March salaries to be paid so early.

Teachers in the high schools will not receive their increases in salary nor the arrearages on next pay day. The training school teachers, who received the increases for the month of February, but not for January, will get their March increases on March 29, but will have to wait another month for their January increases. The explanation of this which was given yesterday is that the readjustment of the salary schedules, which is now in progress, necessitates the postponement of the payment of the training school teachers' January increases until May, as then these increases will be on the new basis, which allows the training teachers more than the old basis. It is hoped that payment of the high school teachers' increases and arrearages will be made on May 1, but the fear was expressed at the Department of Education building yesterday that this would be a physical impossibility, and that the high school teachers would have to wait until June for these payments.

Alfredo Samonati of Montevideo, Inspector of Schools of Uruguay, was a visitor at the Department of Education building yesterday. He brought with him a letter of introduction to City Supt. William H. Maxwell from William R. Shepherd of Columbia University. Mr. Samonati is especially interested in vocational schools and manual training schools. Every facility will be afforded him to inspect them. Prof. H. Okayama of Tokio, head of the higher manual schools system of Japan, was also one of Dr. Maxwell's visitors. Prof. Okayama is interested in high schools and elementary schools.

The Committee on By-Laws and Legislation held a meeting yesterday afternoon at the office of the Chairman, Robert L. Harrison, 59 Wall Street. The Board of Superintendents and the Board of Examiners were both represented at the meeting. The chief subject considered was the question of the high school licenses.

THE CIVIL SERVICE.

City.

The subjects and weights for the examination on April 16 by the Municipal Civil Service Commission for the position of Assistant Engineer, Board of Water Supply, are as follows: Technical, 50; experience, 20; mathematics, 15; report, 15. Seventy-five per cent. will be required on technical papers. The minimum age is twenty-one years, and there are from fifteen to twenty vacancies at $1,350 a year. Candidates must be willing to accept employment in any part of the State, and appointments will not be made to any other department.

For the examination for Civil Service Examiner in Engineering, which will be held on April 30, the subjects and weights are: Technical, 5; experience, 3; mathematics, 1; report, 1. Seventy-five per cent. will be required on the technical papers. Candidates must have good general knowledge and experience in the various branches of engineering, particularly relating to municipal work, and in the conducting of examinations. They should be familiar with the principles of the civil service and its application to the municipal service. General ability and common sense, rather than expert knowledge, will be the test. A technical education and at least five years' practical experience will be required. The minimum age is twenty-five years and the salary is $2,700.

United States.

The United States Civil Service Commission announces an examination at the New York Custom House on April 3 to fill vacancies in the position of photo-engraver in the Bureau of Printing, Manila, P. I. The usual entrance salary is $2,000 a year. Promotion will depend upon vacancies occurring in the higher grades, and will be based upon efficiency and the ability and disposition to instruct the Filipino workmen employed by the bureau. The examination will consist of the following subjects, weighted as indicated: Spelling twenty words in ordinary use, 15; simple tests in addition, subtraction, multiplication, and division of whole numbers and United States money, 15; letter writing, 15; penmanship, 15; copying from plain copy, 15; training, experience, and fitness, 25. Applicants must show that they have had experience in the following branches of photo-engraving: Line photographing, halftone photographing, stripping, printing, halftone etching, operating routing machine, proving and blocking finished cuts, finishing and tri-color photographing and etching. They must also state the nature of their apprenticeship and when and under whom it was served. The Bureau of Printing employs Filipinos as workmen. Applicants for this examination should possess therefore the requisites of instructors and have the disposition to impart their knowledge to the native help. The age limit is 18 to 40 years on the date of the examination.

SUMMONSES.

AT A STATED TERM OF THE DISTRICT Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York, held at the Court House, Post Office Building, in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the 17th day of February, 1912. Present: Learned Hand, District Judge.

FRANCIS CHILD, Jr., as Trustee in Bankruptcy of Harold R. Hare and Charles H. Seifert, individually and as copartners trading as "The Rubber Shop," complainant, against NATIONAL PARK BANK, HAROLD R. HARE, and "HENRY" N. BELL, said name "Henry" being fictitious and unknown to complainant, doing business under the name or style of "The Diamond Tire Company," respondents.—In Equity.

Upon the annexed subpoena and the complaint in this suit, a copy of which is hereto annexed, praying for a decree that a trust be declared in favor of the complainant herein as Trustee to certain moneys deposited with the respondent, the National Park Bank, in the name of the respondent Bell, upon the certificate of the return of the Marshal for the Southern District of New York, a certified copy of which is hereto annexed, and upon the annexed petition of Alexander Appel, verified the 16th day of February, 1912, by which satisfactory proof has been made, that after due and diligent inquiry and search, the respondent, "Henry" N. Bell, cannot be found within the Southern District of New York, and that the respondent, Harold R. Hare, is not a resident of the Southern District of New York, and that his present whereabouts are unknown.

Now, on motion of Messrs. Cohen, Creevey & Richter, solicitors for the complainant, it is ORDERED that the respondents, "Henry" N. Bell and Harold R. Hare, appear, plead, answer or demur to the complaint of the Trustee herein, on or before the 9th day of April, 1912, and that this order be served on the respondents "Henry" N. Bell and Harold R. Hare by publication, such notice of publication to be published in The New York Times, a newspaper published in the City of New York, once a week for a period of six consecutive weeks, and further that on or before the day of first publication, as aforesaid, the complainant deposit in the General Post Office, in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, Southern District of New York, copies of the subpoena, complaint, and this order, contained in a securely closed, post-paid wrapper, directed to the respondent "Henry" N. Bell at his address, No. 413 West 56th Street, Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, and that a copy of this order be served upon the respondent, the National Park Bank.

LEARNED HAND, U. S. D. J.

WOMAN DIES IN FIRE FOR HER CHILDREN

She Didn't Know They Had Been Rescued When She Ran Into Burning Home.

HER CHARRED BODY FOUND

While Down a Fire Escape in the Rear of the Building Some One Was Carrying Her Little Ones.

Mrs. Celia Kooperstein was burned to death in an effort to save her three children in a fire at her home, 307 Tompkins Avenue, Brooklyn, yesterday. While the woman was groping her way up the stairs and halls through smoke and flames to her apartment on the third floor, her children were being carried down the fire escape in the rear of the building by Owen Bowes of 126 Marcy Avenue.

Mrs. Kooperstein was out shopping when the fire started in the building. It was a four-story apartment dwelling, with a shoe store on the ground floor. The firemen were preparing to throw streams of water on the building when Mrs. Kooperstein broke through the crowd which had not been forced back of the fire lines, and rushed into the building before any one could stop her. A fireman found her charred body on the stairs leading to the third floor.

The halls and front of the building looked like a furnace at that time. It was certain that no one could attempt to enter the building by the front entrance and come out alive. The fire had not extended to the rear of the building, and tenants from the third and fourth floors escaped in that way.

Bowes was passing the building when the fire started, and he entered the place to alarm the tenants. On the third floor he found the three children of Mrs. Kooperstein alone. They had been left there while their mother went to a store a short distance away. They are Theodore, 4 years old; Lillian, 8, and Albert, 1 year, who was in his crib. Bowes seized all three and went down the fire escape in the rear with them to the yard.

Policemen Dawson and Blackmore of the Gates Avenue Station were passing the house in a patrol wagon as some of the tenants were rushing to the street panic stricken. The policemen went to the rear of the building, hoping to gain an entrance to the upper floors. They saw Mrs. Gussie Lester and her two children, Rose and William, 4 and 2 years old, and her niece, Fannie Cohen, on the fire escape at the third floor. The women were terrified, and seemed to be about to drop the children when the two policemen climed the fire escape and assisted all to the ground.

William Viertutz was burned while trying to escape from his room on the second floor.

The building is one of a row of four-story tenements. The origin of the fire is not known.

THINK IT A NEW A. P. A.

Some Catholics Suspect Aims of "The Guardians of Liberty."

A new organization which calls itself the Guardians of Liberty has opened headquarters in the Masonic Hall, at 50 West Twenty-fourth Street. It is sending out literature to persons who may become active members of it without having their names made public. This list of membership "is not made secret through fear or cowardice, but as a matter of prudence and policy," says a circular letter.

Prominent members of the Catholic clergy say that this organization is an attempt to revive the American Protestant Association, which flourished for a short time some years ago. A call at the headquarters of the Guardians of Liberty yesterday by a TIMES reporter disclosed a small, square room on the seventh floor, furnished with a long table and a few desks. Two men were at work. One of them was P. Corning Edwards, Acting Chief Recorder.

"Any publicity concerning this organization now would be premature," he said. "A little later some duly accredited member of the organization will be present to furnish all of the information we care to give out. I can tell you nothing."

Asked if he did not have some literature that would explain the objects and aims of the organization, he produced two printed documents. One of them was a "declaration of principals and the Constitution of the Guardians of Liberty" and the other was a circular letter which is being sent out to a selected list of persons. The declaration of principles says:

First—We declare it to be our unalterable purpose to preserve, defend, and forever hold sacred the blood-bought legacy of liberty inherited from our forefathers.

Second—We unite as a non-sectarian, non-partisan moral force for the enactment and enforcement of such laws as will abolish class legislation. We oppose granting to any corporation or combination of individuals preferential rights or privileges which stifle competition, sacrifice the independent business man, or monopolize trade and transportation.

Third—We stand unalterably for the complete separation of Church and State.

Fourth—We unite to protect our country and its free institutions from the efforts of any religious-political organization which may attempt to manipulate or influence the political or social development of our country.

Fifth—We concern ourselves with no religious faith, but we take issue with any church or other organization interfering with established American institutions and civil Government.

Sixth—We maintain it to be the right of the State to give free education and public instruction, but the religious instruction of children we hold to be the exclusive duty and prerogatives of parents.

Seventh—We are opposed to the use of public funds, local or National, for any religious purpose whatever.

Eighth—We maintain it to be inconsistent with and destructive of free government to appoint or elect to political or military office any person who openly or secretly concedes superior authority to any foreign political or ecclesiastical power whatsoever.

The constitution provides a plan for a National organization. The circular letter carries these names as the members of the Executive Committee: Charles D. Haines, a former Democratic Congressman from Columbia County; Lieut. Gen. Nelson A. Miles, (retired,) Major Gen. D. E. Sickles, and Rear Admiral G. W. Baird.

Mgr. Lavelle glanced at a condensed account of the purpose of this new organization and said:

"I would have to know something more about it before I would discuss it. If we said anything here it might be taken as semi-official, so we will say nothing."

MAD WOMAN LETTER WRITER.

Hollis, L. I., Shocked to Discover the Author of Scurrilous Notes.

Residents of Hollis, L. I., who for the last month have been receiving scurrilous letters and were indignantly seeking to discover the author of them, were shocked yesterday to learn that the anonymous writer was Mrs. G. A. Williams, wife of a retired coal dealer, and one of the most respected women in the community.

Mrs. Williams, it was learned, had been pronounced mentally deranged by a physician, and was sent to a private sanitarium yesterday by her family, where she will remain until cured. Among those who received the reviling letters were many of the most intimate friends of the unfortunate woman.

CALLS WILSON ADVENTURER.

Col. Watterson Sees Tokens That the Governor's Boom Is Waning.

Special to The New York Times.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., March 11.—Col. Henry Watterson will say in The Courier-Journal to-morrow:

> There are many signs and tokens that the Woodrow Wilson Presidential boom has started on down grade. To the initiate these are unmistakable. From the first they were inevitable.
>
> In its inception the scheme to nominate Woodrow Wilson for President of the United States was foredoomed to failure. It resembled one of those visionary mining deals attractive to look at, but laid for the most part in printers' ink, and hot air. It began with a gilt-edged Wall Street promotion. It still conceals a mysterious Wall Street connection, for it is backed by plenty of money. Really it is a spectacle for gods and men.
>
> Here we have a man of "book learning" chiefly; a theorizing experimentalist; as far as party service and knowledge of public affairs are concerned, a political adventurer who has thrown aside the convictions of a lifetime, ably expounded, to follow Bryan and Roosevelt in the embrace of principles the very reverse, claiming the Democratic nomination for President by a schoolboy right of discovery and by otherwise damning every competitor in sight.
>
> What has Woodrow Wilson done in New Jersey besides sitting on George Harvey and crushing Jim Smith? The robber Castle of Trustism on the Delaware stands still unscaled. He does not even stay at home in Trenton and attend to the routine duties of the office to which he was elected. He seems dazed by the dazzling prize before him. He roams around from pillar to post, proclaiming his devotion to the new gospels he affects to have had revealed to him, while his agents, richly financed, circulate tons of documentary falsehood. Who pays the freight? Where does he get it? It will be observed that the Republicans are all for Woodrow Wilson.

It was Col. Watterson who charged that Gov. Wilson had aquiesced in a suggestion that the Colonel persuade Thomas F. Ryan to contribute to the Wilson campaign fund.

BOY ON THE COURT'S KNEE.

Justice Questions a Youngster Whose Mother Seeks His Custody.

James Locke, 5 years old, pleaded his own case before Justice Maddox in the Queens County Supreme Court, Long Island City, yesterday, where the mother, Mrs. Louise Mulrooney, had begun proceedings to compel the boy's grandmother, Mrs. Anna Locke, and his father, Edward Locke of 743 Crescent Street, Astoria, to restore him to her custody.

Sitting on the Justice's knee while lawyers, litigants, and spectators in the court room looked on, the boy answered questions that had much to do with deciding his future. Leaning forward from her seat in the witness chair, the grandmother watched the child with quivering lips. Back among the spectators sat the mother stifling her sobs.

"Do you love your grandmother?" inquired the Justice, as he held the child in his arms.

"Yes, sir," lisped the boy, "I love her very much."

"Do you like to live with her?" continued the Justice.

"That's my home with my grandma," the boy answered.

When Mrs. Mulrooney took the witness stand she told a pathetic story. She said that her mother love overcame all scruples, and she pleaded for the custody of the boy, who was born out of wedlock.

"Mr. Locke and I decided to say that we were married, and we went to live together," said the witness.

"I didn't want my people to know. I didn't want the disgrace, and so we told our families that we were married. I am married now," the witness went on. "My husband is a good man. He knows my story. He has forgiven me and sent me to bring my child to our home."

Justice Maddox said he thought it better for the welfare of the child that he be continued in the care of his grandmother.

"I am delighted to see that The New York Times is to present the story of the Holy Grail as told in the wonderful pictures by the great painter, Abbey, who was a personal friend of mine. I am glad that they are to be lifted up for all to see. I hope that all my Socialist friends will get hold of a copy and study the ideal set forth in those pictures and pursue that ideal.

"For since my earliest days I have studied the tales of the Knights of the Round Table, and I held up before me as my boyhood, my great ideal that splendid knight Sir Galahad, 'whose strength was as the strength of ten because his heart was pure.' How wonderful, how beautiful a thing—a heart that is pure."

—Father Vaughan, in his Sunday sermon at St. Patrick's Cathedral.

The Complete Fifteen Panels of Edwin A. Abbey's
"Quest of the Holy Grail"

Reproduced in actual colors in the best process known to printing will be one of the features of the

Easter Edition of The New York Times, March 24

Nothing like this superb section has ever been given away by a newspaper before. It is reproduced by the best process known to printing, on extra heavy super paper, and represents the very finest product of the printer's skill.

This is the first time these most famous modern mural decorations in the world have ever been reproduced in their entirety with all of their vivid and harmonious coloring. Special permission to reproduce them was given THE NEW YORK TIMES by Mrs. Abbey and Curtis & Cameron, holders of the copyrights. There will be eight pages in full color, as follows:

THE TITLES OF THE FIFTEEN PANELS

Page 2—The Departure; or, The Benediction Upon the Quest, (full page in length,) with small panel of the Loathly Damsel.
Page 3—The Oath of Knighthood.
The Voyage to Sarras in Solomon's Ship.
The Key to the Castle.
Galahad Departs from His Bride.
Pages 4 and 5—Double Page Panels of The Round Table of King Arthur.
The Castle of the Grail.
The Golden Tree and the Achievement of the Grail.
The Conquest of the Seven Deadly Sins.

The high quality of the paper used for this section and the slow and careful method of three-color process printing required to get the results striven for involve so much time and expense that this edition of THE NEW YORK TIMES is necessarily limited. Each copy of this section alone costs more than any reader of THE NEW YORK TIMES will pay for THE SUNDAY TIMES complete.

It will not be possible to supply the demand of all the casual purchasers of THE SUNDAY TIMES on March 24, but an edition will be planned estimated to supply those who read THE TIMES regularly.

This timely notice is given so that those who wish to be sure of securing a copy of the Easter Edition of March 24 may place an order for the regular delivery of THE TIMES at once, because preference will naturally have to be given to those who are regularly served with THE TIMES.

NOTICE TO NEWSDEALERS.

The New York Times will not undertake to supply any great number of extra copies of the Easter Edition. To be sure of a supply increase your regular order of daily and Sunday Times at once. The Easter Edition is limited to the regular readers of The Times.

You are also advised to take special pains when the Easter Edition section of The Times is delivered to you to carefully handle it, and deliver it unsoiled to the readers. Many persons will wish to preserve and frame these pictures, and if received in poor condition newsdealers will be asked for another copy, and under no circumstances can extra copies of the section be obtained.

In New York City, Jersey City, and Newark,
Daily and Sunday Times
50 cents one month.

Outside New York City
Daily and Sunday Times
75 cents one month.

DON'T SEND MONEY.

The New York Times can't undertake to supply copies of the Easter Edition with the Abbey Holy Grail pictures from this office. Orders must be placed with newsdealers. The edition is limited to newsdealers' orders and regular subscribers. Become a regular reader to-day if you are not one.

For the convenience of those who are not already regular readers of THE TIMES, this printed form is given. Fill it out and send it to THE NEW YORK TIMES office or to your newsdealer and you will be sure to get this unusual and valuable Easter Edition on March 24.

To The New York Times, Times Square, New York City:

That I may be assured of a copy of the Easter Edition of The New York Times of March 24, with the reproduction in the original colors of the fifteen Abbey Holy Grail pictures, enter my order for The New York Times, daily and Sunday, for one month.
